DISORDER OVER 200 MILE FRONT IN MILK STRIKE

Hang Milo Reno in Effigy Over Truce.

Madison, Wis., May 15.—(Special.)—Adjt. Gen. Ralph M. Immell tonight announced that 225 members of the National Guard will be sworn in as special deputies in Shawano county tomorrow. They will wear civilian clothes.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 15.—(AP)—Numerous disorders along a 200 mile front including a battle between several hundred pickets and deputies, and a growing shortage of the fluid in the cities marked the third day of Wisconsin's milk strike.

At Bonduel, a village northwest of Green Bay, a crowd estimated by police at 500 persons closed in on a milk truck and pommeled, the milk dumped. As a spike plank stopped the truck deputies hurled tear bombs.

Farmers caught some of the bombs tossed them back at the deputies and soon all were enveloped in a cloud of gas. Deputies were pulled from the truck and pummelled, the milk dumped and the escort party forced to refuge in a dairy plant under a hail of rocks.

The farmers then started a rock bombardment which shattered many windows of the dairy and withdrew only after its operators agreed to post a sign announcing the plant was closed. Three officers were injured, one, Stanley Hoffman, suffering a broken nose.

Denounce Leader for Truce.

In other sections the temper of the farmer found expression in the burning at Kaukuna by strikers of a straw effigy of Milo Reno, national farm holiday leader, who called off a farm strike of proposed general proportions last week and in the turning back of all market bound farm products in Fond du Lac county.

A Racine county truck bringing milk for Milwaukee's children was stopped near this city and its load dumped to provide the first critical test of Gov. A. G. Schmedeman's plan to bring through strike lines milk for children and the ailing. Placards on such trucks were intended to insure immunity from pickets.

Dr. John P. Koehler, Milwaukee health commissioner, was besieged by dozens of women who said their babies were crying for milk. He reassured them, explaining emergency deliveries were late but that an adequate supply for children less than 5 years old and for the sick would be available.

But in Milwaukee, Racine, Kenosha, Sheboygan, Green Bay and other cities there was no milk for able-bodied adults. Sale of milk in stores was still prohibited by order of Gov. Schmedeman.

Another County Opened.

The governor lifted the marketing ban on one more county, despite warning of Walter M. Singler, strike chief and president of the Wisconsin Cooperative Milk pool, that opening up more markets would result in "dire consequences."

Counties are opened under his plan for normal marketing when state officials receive petitions of a majority of farmers opposing the strike. Singler charged hundreds of names signed to these petitions were forgeries.

Adjt. Gen. Ralph M. Immell today informed Singler he will be held "personally responsible," for any violence which occurs. He charged Singler's leadership and his rebellion against the conservative element which controlled the farm holiday association has provoked Wisconsin farmers to excesses.

Singler retorted that he cannot control the actions of individual members of his pool, and said that frequently he had insisted that pickets conduct themselves in a lawful manner.

HIT 23 PLANTS

BY PAUL POTTER.

Twenty-three milk and cream factories in the strike area of northern and eastern Wisconsin last night were given notice by the Chicago board of health that they would not be permitted to resume shipments of milk to Chicago until given the approval of Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board.

All but two of the plants affected have been closed since last Friday by orders of Gov. A. G. Schmedeman of Wisconsin, until at least two-thirds of all dairy farmers in their territory had signed petitions that they wished to resume the marketing of their milk. The other two plants were the scene yesterday of violence and picketing.

Judge Borrelli Sets High Goal for the Dyers

Municipal Judge Francis Borrelli summoned the master cleaners and dyers of Chicago to the Knickerbocker hotel last night for a pep meeting in the industry's current campaign to rid itself of racketeers. Judge Borrelli is the new dictator of the industry.

Owners of 115 dye houses were in attendance, representing all shades of conduct in the industry. Among the concerns reporting present were the Drexel Cleaners and Dyers, of which Murray [The Camel] Humphries is a silent partner; the Central Cleaners and Dyers, of which George [Bugs] Moran is vice president, and the Michigan Cleaners and Dyers, whose owners are under indictment for playing with explosives.

Judge Describes Himself.

The judge began his discourse by telling a joke about the confusion he created in attempting to address three cross-eyed men from the bench. Then, with everybody in good humor, he told the audience something about himself.

"I have been on the Municipal bench of the great city of Chicago, county of Cook, for eleven years," he said, "and have administered justice without fear or favor, fair and square, with equal rights for all and favoritism for none—that's my motto. I want to say right here and now that I did not seek this job, but was approached. I have no sponsor and owe no favors to anybody."

Judge Borrelli's last remark restored him the attention of a number who, up to this time, had been watching each other more closely than they had the speaker's table. Pounding the table and shaking his hair from his eyes, the judge then stated the paramount issue.

The Issue Is Defined.

"I have never in my life seen a more intelligent and a more responsive audience—a fine body of men—but what are you going to do to help me?" he demanded. "I say that the terrible conditions in this wonderful industry must be cleaned up and restored to the pedestal of honor by you men, who have sacrificed your lives for it. Bombings must cease and acid throwers must be tossed to the four winds."

The judge continued for half an hour invoking providence and quoting Shakespeare and Omar Khayyam. He concluded with a perspiring plea that the cleaners clean up the industry for the honor of Chicago, the United States, themselves and their children's children.

The question before the house, he said, was whether the cleaning price should be raised from 40 to 85 cents per garment on a cash and carry basis and to $1 for delivery service, beginning next Friday. Judge Borrelli, Harscher said, would appreciate a personal pledge from every cleaner on his honor as a gentleman to cooperate 100 per cent, and each should rise as his name was called.

Q.—Atlas Cleaners? A.—A hundred per cent, if my competitors go along.

Are You Registered? Today Is Last Chance

Today is the last day on which Chicago voters not already registered in precincts where they now live can have their names placed on the poll lists for the election on June 5. The board of election commissioners will keep its office on the third floor of the city hall open until 9 o'clock tonight to permit belated registrations. On June 5 twenty-four judges will be elected in addition to delegates to the July 12 convention for repeal of the 18th amendment.

EarlyWetVote in Wyoming Running 8 to 1

Cheyenne, Wyo., May 15.—(AP)—With more than half the state reporting incomplete returns, Wyoming's precinct conventions tonight had elected 334 delegates pledged to repeal to 40 for retention of the eighteenth amendment.

Delegates elected today will gather in 23 county conventions May 18 pledged to elect wet or dry delegates to the state repeal convention at Casper May 25.

The wet totals mounted as returns from far-flung precincts filtered slowly in. As many counties had not set up machinery for gathering the returns, it was unlikely that further counts would be available before tomorrow.

Fourth State to Vote.

The popular vote available in 91 precincts was nearly 6 to 1 for repeal. The total was 6,290 wet and 1,341 dry.

Sheridan county, the first to report complete unofficial precinct counts, elected 72 delegates for repeal and none against it.

Wyoming is the fourth state to vote on repeal. Michigan, Wisconsin, and Rhode Island previously ratified the resolution.

New Jersey Decides Today.

Newark, N. J., May 15.—(AP)—New Jersey voters in the primary elections tomorrow apparently will ballot in favor of repeal of the 18th amendment. The convention probably will be early in June, the anti-repeal forces failing to file a sufficient number of names on petitions in eleven of the 21 counties is regarded as assuring repeal ratification.

BULLET CLIPS OFF WRIST WATCH; ROBBER SEIZED

Stephen Tierney, 27 years old, 1508 East 63d street, wore a wrist watch when he and a companion went out to play the part of robbers on April 30.

The two men went into a restaurant at 6530 South Halsted street and forced the proprietor to hand over his money. As they fled they engaged in a pistol battle with Harry Ragnett, 1241 West 74th place, a private watchman.

Ragnett's aim was good. He fatally wounded William Hazelbauer, 19 years old, 341 West 42d street, the confederate of Tierney. The latter escaped, but one of Ragnett's bullets had clipped his watch from his wrist. With the timepiece as a clew, Lieut. Eugene Barry learned from a jeweler that it had been purchased by Tierney's wife and presented to him as a gift.

RACKET UNIONS SUE FOR PEACE; PLEDGE REFORM

We'll Kick Out Gang, Galvin Promises.

The so-called outlaw teamsters' unions, ruled by John Sheridan Sr. and Mike Galvin, with the reputed backing of the Capone syndicate, yesterday sued for peace with Mayor Kelly and State's Attorney Courtney.

Galvin, who runs the Chicago General Teamsters' union and through it is alleged to levy tribute for himself and the Capone syndicate on dealers in tobacco, vegetables and other commodities, spent most of the afternoon around the Criminal courts building, bearing an olive branch to the state's attorney. Toward evening he finally gained an interview with Capt. Daniel Gilbert, chief investigator of the state's attorney's office.

Reform Pledge Covers Sheridan.

"Tell the state's attorney we've had enough," Galvin told Capt. Gilbert. "We're willing to go along and do anything he suggests—hold a meeting under his sponsorship and kick out any one he thinks is racketeering."

The pledge of reform, Galvin said, applied not only to himself but to his ally, Sheridan, overlord of the Chicago Teamsters' union, whose jurisdiction covers coal, building material, and city hauling. Galvin was a witness Sunday to the ill timed efforts of Sheridan to call a special meeting of his coal teamsters and hikers' union. A garrison of 200 policemen occupied the union hall at 814 West Harrison street and the meeting was not held.

Mayor Seeks Unification.

In an effort to bring the Sheridan and Galvin contingents under responsible leadership in the International Brotherhood of Teamsters and the American Federation of Labor, Mayor Kelly will confer at 3 p. m. today with Daniel J. Tobin of Indianapolis, president of the international brotherhood.

"As the situation stands now these so-called outlaw unions are an easy prey to gangsters because of their numerical weakness," the mayor explained. "The Sheridan union has about 7,000 or 8,000 members, against the 32,000 in the international brotherhood. Our purpose is to bring the members of the smaller unions under the wing of the more powerful unions—the members being willing.

"In that way, we trust, the business men will be relieved of having to pay extortion money to union leaders under gangster domination and will have an opportunity to deal openly and above board with responsible labor leadership."

White Refused Court Delay.

Willie [Three Fingered Jack] White, William [Klondike] O'Donnell, and Murray Humphries are the reputed gang triumvirate behind the Sheridan and Galvin unions. White had a disappointing court session yesterday. He was before Judge James F. Fardy in Criminal court on an old gun carrying charge.

White's attorney, Everett Jennings, pleaded tearfully for indefinite postponement of his client's trial because, he maintained, "the public mind was inflamed against him." The lawyer offered a scrapbook of newspaper clippings to support his plea.

"An attempt has been made deliberately to create a state of public hysteria against Mr. White," pleaded Attorney Jennings. "The minds of prospective jurors must inevitably be inflamed and it would be impossible to select a fair and impartial jury."

White Views with Alarm.

White, public enemy No. 2, smartly groomed in a tailored gray suit and a bright red tie, wagged his head over the plight his lawyer pictured for him.

"The state is ready for trial now," countered Prosecutor Charles S. Dougherty. "The plea for delay is absurd. White has able and expensive legal talent. If they are apprehensive over adverse publicity, their best course would be to ask an immediate trial and vindication."

Judge Fardy allowed Attorney Jennings 24 hours to file his scrapbook of clippings and warned him to be ready for trial today.

Meanwhile Capt. Gilbert announced the breakup of a union racket sponsored by Danny Stanton, south side Capone stalwart, almost before the racket was fairly launched. Stanton, it appeared, had called a meeting Sunday night at 21 West Adams street for organization of the "beer coil cleaners' union."

The score of dupes and a half dozen Stanton allies who showed up were met by a squad of Capt. Gilbert's men. The dupes, the Stanton allies and one

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 15.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt will forward his 3 billion 300 million dollar public works construction and industry control program to congress this week but without recommendation of the specific tax levy to meet the expense.

The ways and means committee of the house will formulate the provision for the tax to raise annually the 220 millions that will be required to meet interest and amortization charges on bond issues aggregating more than 5 billions for the financing of the public works and the farm mortgage adjustment programs.

White House Conference.

These decisions were reached at a White House conference this afternoon between the President and the key men of congress. Present were Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, Democratic leader of the senate; Speaker Henry T. Rainey [Dem., Ill.], Representative Joseph W. Byrns of Tennessee, Democratic leader of the house; Senators Pat Harrison [Dem., Miss.], chairman, and David Reed [Rep., Pa.], and Budget Director Lewis Douglas.

The President explained to the leaders the provisions of that part of the bill providing for a planned industrial economy under government supervision involving agreements fixing minimum wages, maximum prices, and volume of production.

The discussion, however, revolved chiefly around the tax levy. The imposts considered included a sales tax of 1¼ or 1½ per cent on all articles except food and clothing, an additional tax of 1 cent a gallon on gasoline, a tax on dividends on stocks, additional taxes on incomes and various excise taxes.

Dislikes Sales Tax.

The President thought that a sales tax should be avoided if possible, but he stated that if congress should decide on a sales tax he would acquiesce.

Organized labor, which has effectively opposed sales taxes heretofore, is to be placated by the fact that the tax levy will finance public works construction for the increase of employment. With this in mind, Democratic leaders plan to call whatever tax is levied a "reemployment tax."

One point dwelt upon in the conference was that these and other taxes can be repealed when and if the repeal of prohibition is ratified, revenue approximating one billion dollars a year being expected from a restoration of liquor. It is possible that the President's message transmitting the proposed legislation will convey this hint.

Robinson Tells of Conference.

"The conference," said Senator Robinson, "had particular reference to the public works bill and the provision of a sinking fund which it is estimated will require 220 million dollars.

"Various methods of raising the necessary amount were discussed. No final decision was reached.

"There was considerable discussion of the sales tax. The general impression among some members of congress is that it would be difficult to impose a sales tax."

The senate floor leader also mentioned that congress may be able to adjourn June 10 or 12.

Choice of Tax Evils.

There must be some tax and one qualified to raise 220 million dollars a year, Senator Harrison was positive. It was, therefore, a case of a choice between medicines all of which are unpalatable.

The public work program, it was disclosed, is to be financed entirely by bond issues and not by issues of greenbacks. The President stated this in the conference. The bonds are to bear interest at 3 per cent and a sinking fund is to be provided that will retire them in 30 years.

ROOSEVELT ASKS TRUCE TO ARMS IN NOTE TODAY

Chancellor Talks to Germans Tomorrow.

Europe Troubled

BERLIN.—Chancellor Hitler of Germany secludes himself to work out his "mysterious" address to the reichstag tomorrow; arrays arguments for message to world.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 15.—[Special.]—Fearful that the powers of Europe are plunging toward another war, President Roosevelt will issue tomorrow a plea for the success of the world disarmament conference.

The President, it was learned, will take sides with France and England against the plan of Germany, under the spur of Chancellor Hitler, to rearm.

The Roosevelt pronouncement, which is intended to be a Monroe Doctrine for the world, is timed to come ahead of the dramatic speech which Hitler is to make before the German reichstag on Wednesday. In that speech, it is reported, Hitler will declare for the renunciation of the treaty of Versailles and for the right of Germany to build up its armies to massive strength.

Details Kept Secret.

The details of the Roosevelt message were being kept a closely guarded secret tonight. It could not be learned whether he will cable it to his ambassador-at-large, Norman Davis, or direct it to all of the principal powers of Europe.

Mr. Davis, who is America's delegate to the disarmament conference at Geneva, has already shown this nation's opposition to the Hitler military program, in conferences with the Hitler "good will" messenger to London, Dr. Rosenberg. France and England have both actively protested against the German stand, which it is admitted would disrupt the entire hopes of success at the disarmament conference.

Forces Germany to Stand Alone.

Now President Roosevelt, it is reported, will place the United States in forceful language on the side of England and France. In adhering to his program, Chancellor Hitler will be forced to stand alone before the world and lead Germany to a policy of isolation.

In view of Hitler's obvious unwillingness to take such a stand without the support of the reichstag, which only a few weeks ago he consigned to ignominious retirement after its members had voted all their powers to him, and which Hitler is now resummoning to hear a pronouncement on armament, President Roosevelt is said to believe that a frank message from the United States at this time may restrain Hitler.

The President today announced that he would hold a press conference at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, instead of Wednesday morning as is customary. It was learned tonight that he intends to reveal the text of his message on disarmament at that time.

Confers with Secretaries.

The message was drafted today at a conference attended by Secretary of State Hull, Undersecretary William Phillips, Assistant Secretary Raymond Moley, William C. Bullitt, assistant to Secretary Hull, and Senator Joe T. Robinson, Democratic leader of the senate.

The President's position on disarmament will be fully disclosed in the pronouncement, it was reported. He will reveal a stand in favor of the United States participating on consultative pacts with the other leading powers of Europe whenever a conflict between nations arises.

France especially has insisted upon including such a plan for consultation in the disarmament pact, declaring that unless the United States agrees to come into conference with the other nations in event of a threatened war and there to assert its position openly France will not consent to disarm.

The President has shown a willingness to join in such an agreement, but he has insisted that at all times the United States shall be free to maintain any position deemed to the best interests of this nation.

President Willing to Join.

Instead, however, of adhering to a policy of neutrality as in the past, Mr. Roosevelt promises that the United States will sit in with the other powers to weigh the facts of a threatened disruption of peace and then to join with the other signatories, if the United States so desires, in inflicting trade and embargo penalties upon the nation found to be the aggressor and in the wrong.

The President, it is declared, will outline such a policy fully in his message. He spent several hours last night going over the necessity for issuing a statement of position at this time, discussing the problem with advisers after his return from a yachting trip on the Potomac.

Finally determining that he must announce a definite stand, in an effort to ward off the threat of Hitlerism, and in order to show the attitude of the United States before Hitler takes his stand before the reichstag on Wednesday, the President concluded that he would prepare a communication.

The whole of today, practically, was spent in writing that document.

WAR LORDS WARN FRANCE

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, May 15.—The army general staff today warned the government that eventual German rearmament is a certainty and recommended that defense measures be taken immediately. Among the defense measures recommended is an increase in the term of compulsory military service from one year to 18 months.

The principal recommendation of the army chiefs is not to reduce the man power of the French army even if such a reduction is accompanied by greater mechanization.

Discuss Army Reorganization.

These subjects came in for a long discussion today at a meeting of the supreme council of national defense, presided over by President Lebrun. The main subject discussed was Premier Daladier's plan for reorganization of the army through which he hopes both to improve the efficiency of the French war machine and cut down expenses.

Daladier's plan is to get more defensive value from a smaller force by concentrating units which are now scattered throughout the country in garrisons near the frontier and basing combat tactics exclusively upon the utilization of fixed fortifications along the German border.

General preparation of troops would be partly sacrificed to an intensive training in the utilization of limited terrains and specialized defense. Motorized units would be especially grouped and drilled with the idea of providing a mobile coverage at occasional gaps in the chain of fortifications. Thus, the whole French army, outside of the colonial forces, would become a covering force and be maintained permanently on a wartime footing.

Army Chiefs Oppose Plan.

It is understood that the army chiefs, headed by Gen. Maxime Weygand, are cool toward the plan—perhaps because specialized training would diminish the offensive value of troops in case a "preventive war" against Germany became necessary.

Gen. Weygand is understood to have pleaded for the maintenance of the greatest possible number of men under arms at all times so as to have a more solid nucleus in case of war.

Gen. Weygand is said to have revealed confidential reports of the army intelligence service showing that Germany intends to rearm at all costs and to have warned against the futility of any attempts to prevent it by an international accord. It is the belief in French army circles that small scale violations of the proscription on heavy artillery, poison gas, and other weapons have increased recently in intensity and are now approaching a mass production basis.

Charge Germans Make Gas.

Revelations in a French morning paper two days ago, which greatly agitated the British press, to the effect that fifteen millimeter howitzers are being turned out on a large scale by a factory in Dusseldorf and that important quantities of phosgene gas are being manufactured at the Stolzenburg chemical works have not yet been officially confirmed, but it is believed here that the information on which the article was based came from the secret files of the army, and more "leaks" are expected.

While the war lords were confabbing with politicians, international peace makers, represented by Joseph Paul-Boncour, French foreign minister, and Ambassador Norman H. Davis of the United States, were also at work. President Roosevelt's envoy conferred with Paul-Boncour today in an effort to save the disarmament conference from blowing up.

It is understood that the Americans, French, and British are planning statements at Geneva Thursday in answer to Hitler's speech in the reichstag Wednesday. It is indignantly denied that these three nations are acting in concert.

At the same time, the American delegate is exercising pressure on the French to start thinking about some serious disarmament as soon as the German menace has been dispelled.

Britain Recalls Envoy.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 15.—As a result of ministerial discussions on disarmament today it was decided to order Capt. Anthony Eden, undersecretary of foreign affairs, who has been representing Britain at the disarmament conference in Geneva, to return to London immediately to report to the cabinet.

Capt. Eden was instructed to leave Geneva tonight. He will fly from Paris to London tomorrow morning. The cabinet's disarmament committee will meet during the day and Capt. Eden will attend.

Britain is greatly agitated over the German disarmament position, and some observers believe Chancellor Hitler's speech to the reichstag Wednesday may be the signal for a new war.

Economic Parley Periled.

Fear is expressed that unless some peaceful solution of the German demand for equality in armaments can be found the world economic conference, which is scheduled to meet here on June 12, will be sure to fail. It is possible that if a speedy agreement on armaments is not reached the economic conference may be postponed.

Prime Minister MacDonald and Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon today refused to answer questions in the house of commons concerning the state of Europe. They said they were insufficiently informed pending Hitler's speech.

HITLER SECLUDES SELF; WORKS ON MYSTERY SPEECH

Arrays Thoughts for His Message to World.

BERLIN, May 15.—(AP)—Chancellor Adolf Hitler, who is faced with the gravest decision concerning foreign affairs since he came to power Jan. 30, is expected to go into seclusion tomorrow to formulate his speech for Wednesday's special session of the reichstag.

According to a spokesman who knows him intimately, the chancellor will conceive his speech in solitude, and nobody—not even his cabinet members—will know before he begins to speak at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in what words he has decided to clothe Germany's arms program and demands.

Meets Trusted Lieutenants.

Since he issued a call to the reichstag last week the chancellor has spent his time conferring with Foreign Minister Konstantin von Neurath, Count Rudolf Nadolny, Germany's representative at the disarmament conference, and with other trusted lieutenants who have met him at Munich.

"From now on," a spokesman said, "he will be secluded alone and will commune with himself. He will marshall his thoughts and array his arguments as he intends to present them to the world on Wednesday."

A semi-official announcement meanwhile stated that no cabinet session was scheduled until after the reichstag meeting.

Socialists Make Demand.

Paul Loebe, former Socialist speaker of the reichstag, asked the speaker, Capt. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, to open the Socialist committee room in the Parliament building, which has been sealed by police order.

Instructions were issued to the Socialist members to inquire of the doorkeeper on their arrival where they should go. Loebe also asked that Socialist members who have been sent to jail be released. This should be done, he said, because of the parliamentary immunity provision.

Hitler Rebukes Austria.

VIENNA, May 15.—(AP)—Chancellor Hitler of Germany, through his minister here, today warned Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss of Austria that now is no time for Austria to be "slapping Germany in the face."

The rebuke from Hitler was occasioned by the snub administered Saturday to two Nazi officials on their arrival in Austria on a visit. They were informed, through police, that their visit was "not very desirable."

The visitors were Hans Kerrl, Prussian minister of justice, and Hans Frank, Bavarian minister of justice. The Austrian Nazis, their power steadily increasing, are strongly opposed to the Dollfuss dictatorial régime.

Frank Is Irritated.

Frank, obviously irritated by the government's action here, said the incident would not go unanswered and this afternoon the German minister visited Dollfuss for a heart to heart talk.

At the same time, the German Aero club canceled its entries in the Austrian Alpine flight.

Chancellor Dollfuss, in reply to the German protest, told the minister no hostility toward Germany was intended. He said the incident upon the arrival of the officials was directed solely against Frank as an individual.

Semi-official sources pointed out that Frank had threatened a German Nazi invasion of Austria in a speech at Munich and that Austria's protest in this connection was still unanswered by the Hitler government.

Nazis Pledge to Respect Treaty.

FREE CITY OF DANZIG, May 15.—(AP)—Danzig Nazi leaders gave assurances today that if they come to power after the election May 28 the treaties between Danzig and Poland will be fully respected. These assurances were given to Helmer Rosting, the league of nation's high commissioner. The Nazi leaders also promised loyal adherence to the Danzig constitution.

The Nazis, in close sympathy with the Nazis of Germany, declared they wanted friendly relations with Poland and asserted they would "do everything to safeguard Polish property and Polish citizens in Danzig."

Canadian House Approves Trade Pact with France

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., May 15.—The new Franco-Canadian trade treaty was approved in the house of commons today after four hours of discussion. Secretary of State Charles Cahn, who arranged it, admitted to critical Liberals that Canadian wheat would not benefit by the halved French tariffs unless French production fell below consumption requirements. The reason Canada does not raise its general tariff to put it in a better European bargaining position, Cahn said, was because the dominion did not desire to offend the United States, which mainly is effected by the Canadian general tariff.

SEATTLE NEWSPAPERS ALL ISSUE DESPITE PRINTERS' LOCKOUT

Seattle, Wash., May 15.—[Special.]—The first day of the lockout of printers in the three Seattle newspapers, the Times, Post-Intelligencer, and Star, passed with all printing their regular editions. Printers were not admitted to the plants when they appeared for work, and imported crews took over the composing rooms, which they had never seen before.

The lockout climaxed four years' efforts to renew a contract with the Seattle Typographical union, in which the local refused to accede to the recommendations of their international president. The publishers decided on a showdown and brought in out-of-town crews.

The principal controversy is over selection of men for vacancies and layoffs under the five day week plan. The union contends the man should be allowed to select his own substitute. The publishers refused to yield on this point, holding that there are cases where they would have to go down the list of names to the man they needed.

The union offered the publishers a 10 per cent wage reduction agreement after employés in all other departments had taken substantial wage cuts.

Surplus Despite Curtailment.

The orders are directed at the possibility that farmers who have held milk on their farms several days may ship it to the milk plants which Gov. Schmedeman permits to reopen this week. In all, nearly 750,000 pounds of milk daily are affected by the health board orders. In the three days this supply has been kept out of Chicago by orders of the state of Wisconsin, however, Chicago has continued to receive a surplus over its current needs of fresh milk and cream.

Dr. Bundesen last night requested that representatives of each of the closed plants as well as officers of the Chicago concerns to whom they ship meet at his offices in the city hall this morning at 10:30 a. m.

"The order was issued to protect against receipt of milk or cream, which may have been held several days on farms," Dr. Bundesen stated, "as well as milk which might be placed in jeopardy during shipment. Any one found to have shipped stale milk to Chicago will have their board of health permit revoked permanently."

Ample and Fresh Supply Assured.

A survey made by the health board yesterday assured that the city would have an ample supply of milk and cream. Precautions have been taken, it was announced, to insure that "only fresh, clean milk not over twenty-four hours old is permitted to be received in Chicago."

Illinois farmers made their milk deliveries yesterday without the appearance of pickets or guards. The recent flare-up of picketers in McHenry county ceased Sunday afternoon, following a truce meeting between the Independents and officials of the Pure Milk association at Elgin in which their differences were said to have been settled. The ring leaders of the strike near Woodstock last Saturday were permitted to ship their milk again this morning.

DEERFIELD POOR MASTER REFUSES TO RESIGN POST

The Deerfield township board, which takes in Highland Park and Highwood, last night formally demanded the resignation of Poormaster William J. Obee on charges of incompetence.

Obee, who was present, refused and said the charges are untrue. The board then instructed Attorney Maurice Berkson to take legal steps to remove him.

The demand for Obee's resignation was contained in a lengthy resolution. The only "no" vote cast was by Obee, himself. This resolution stated that Poormaster Obee had failed to keep proper accounts; had failed to prepare statements of receipts and disbursements during 1931 and 1932; had carelessly presented bills to the board for approval though some were erroneous, false or excessive, and had extended merchandise contracts with an officer of the town.

The board also passed a resolution paving the way for legal action against merchants who may have profited on poor relief accounts.

Poormaster Obee defended his régime, asserting that "any one might make mistakes in such a large assignment." He was supported by Charles Glass, a general merchant of Highwood.

YOUNG BLAMES U. S. FOR WORLD CURRENCY WOES

Insistence on Gold for Debts Assailed.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 15. — (AP) — Owen D. Young, author of the reparations payment plan, held the United States responsible in an address tonight for having "ruined the currency and banking systems of the world," with the resultant paralysis of international trade, through its insistence upon collecting war debts in gold.

Young declared a failure to temper "the letter of the bond" with a realization and acceptance of the obligations of relationship, both among individuals and nations, had aggravated the world-wide economic crisis.

"In these difficult times, individuals, guided by their own self interest, are learning that the letter of the bond is not supreme," he said. "If that be true of individuals, how much more should it be true of great nations. The large self interest of the creditor requires him to take account of the basic obligations of relationship. If anger and prejudice be substituted for patience and understanding, the bond will not succeed—the basic obligation will be violated."

Holds Treaties May Fail.

Throughout his address ran the thesis that "you cannot dispose of living questions merely by writing a treaty, a constitution or a statute."

"I venture the statement that the lamentable things happening in Germany today have their seeds in unfortunate clauses of the treaty of Versailles," he said.

"The whole world is learning," he declared, "that treaties, constitutions, ordinances and bonds are good only to the extent that they are made coincident with basic human relationships which have the approval of that sensitive, quick acting, and dominant power, the public opinion of the world."

After suggesting that instead of passing the blame along it perhaps would be better "if we all accepted our own share and then resolved to profit by our own mistakes," Young swung into his criticism of America's attitude toward the war debts.

Got Bond, But Not Money.

"On the debts we got the bond, to be sure, but did we get our money? On the debts we said they had no relationship to reparations, and it was true as written in the bond. But what happened when reparations failed? Perhaps you will permit me to follow this a little further. We insisted, as I said, that our allies sign the bond to return money which we had advanced—no, not money even, but goods which we had contributed to a common cause.

"We asked them to sign the bond. They could only repay that debt by sending us their goods. To the extent which we would not accept sufficiently of their goods, they could only pay by sending us their gold. So, having refused their goods, we took their gold until we ruined the currency and banking systems of the world, including our own; until international exchanges and trade were paralyzed.

"The fact about it is—the sad fact, the indicting fact—that we insisted upon the bond, we insisted upon the performance of the bond, and then we made it utterly impossible for the bond to be performed.

"Pay the Penalty Now."

"We violated that basic obligation of relationship which underlay the bond itself. And we pay the penalty now.

"Had the commerce of the world been developed and enlarged, had barriers to trade been diminished rather than increased, had our efforts and our capital been applied to productive ends, had we not tried to gain by speculation what we did not earn, the normal indebtedness resulting from such extension of credit would not have been burdensome on the borrower or insecure to the lender, because every dollar would have paid its own way and more.

"Have we learned the lesson that we cannot lend at home and then close the bank where our debtor has his money? Have we learned that we cannot lend abroad and then destroy international trade, which is the only bank out of which our foreign indebtedness can be paid?"

The United States "escaped from the letter of the bond" when it declined to sign the league of nations covenant, Young said, but "did we escape our obligations to the world?"

Sign, But War Goes On.

"Great nations sign the Kellogg-Briand pact and celebrate in every capital in the world the significance of the signature," he said. "Still war goes on. The letter of the bond is not effective unless it is coupled with those obligations of relationship to which the bond itself must always be related and must be subordinate. You cannot escape entanglements by mere refusal to sign the bond. You cannot collect debts or get disarmament by writing the formula on a piece of paper. You cannot escape wars by the magic of the bond."

Asserting that if nations must now learn the lesson that communities have learned—that freedom of action must be restrained not only by statute and municipal ordinance but by "courtesy, by good feeling, and by faith" as well, Young continued:

"If so, it becomes all the more important to stress our education in international courtesy and good faith, those relationships which, after all, must govern our present behavior and our ultimate fate."

Fall Disturbed World.

"We face a world disturbed economically and politically, each reacting on the other," he said, "where the costs of armaments threaten the economic life blood of the nations, and where armies endanger their peace. They create fear instead of faith, and we only need to look at the problems in our country as a whole, the problems in our community, the doubts in our own homes to realize what fear can do."

Young expressed disappointment with the democracies that followed in the wake of the war.

"Our democracies, instead of gathering up the best with charity toward all, have, like our mobs, developed the worst, governed as they seem to have been by prejudice, not understanding; by selfishness, not sympathy," he said. "So democracies in their wild rush for their own advantage have contributed, too, in bringing a world of plenty to a state of penury."

MONACO RESTORES RULE BY THE PEOPLE; ORDERS ELECTIONS

MONTE CARLO, May 15.—(AP)—Restoration of constitutional government in the little principality of Monaco, suspended since 1930, was decreed today by Prince Louis II.

The Monegasque electors have been in a sort of passive revolt since Prince Louis suspended some of the guarantees in the old constitution two years ago, when his dynasty was threatened by a manifestation of discontent among his people.

Municipal elections are called for the end of June and parliamentary elections for the middle of July. The exact form of the new constitution has not been announced.

It was understood the prince's decision was taken after pressure by France through Maurice Bouilloux-Lafont, French minister of state for Monaco. Monaco is under the protection of France, which appointed the Parisian banker as minister of state to adjust the principality's topsy-turvy affairs.

TARIFF TACTICS OF EUROPE ROIL SECRETARY HULL

Resents Evidences of Bad Faith.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 15.—[Special.]—With the Roosevelt administration going international minded in a big way while the famed internationalists of Great Britain and France continue nationalistic policies Secretary of State Cordell Hull lashed out savagely today at European statesmen for pursuing tactics he deems unfavorable to speedy world economic recovery.

The secretary was referring particularly to the action of Great Britain and France in continuing to boost tariffs and other trade barriers on the eve of the world economic conference and in making reservations to the tariff truce they have entered into upon the urging of the United States. He was asked if a successful issue of the economic conference would make it necessary to undo the Anglo-Argentine and other tariff and exchange agreements recently made by the European powers.

Assails Foreign Statesmen.

"They would take their own course, Mr. Hull replied. "As you know, different countries are in the control of statesmen who have not learned anything thus far either from the panic or the three and a half years' opportunity by domestic methods to get out of the panic. I just assume their people sooner or later will kick and club them into some kind of sensibility of what is really going on."

Internationally minded Mr. Hull indicated likewise that he entertains a low opinion of the Hitler government of Germany for its nationalistic insistence upon the right of Germany to equality of armament, which threatens to disrupt the Geneva disarmament conference and indirectly affect unfavorably the London economic conference. But he declined to express himself on the incident that has kicked up a war scare in Europe.

Administration Disillusioned.

Mr. Hull's utterance was the first public disclosure of the disillusionment of the Roosevelt administration regarding the actual accomplishments of the White House conversations with European statesmen in preparation for the world economic conference.

Here President Roosevelt has junked the American policy of isolation and has made such concessions to internationalism as willingness to level tariff walls, sign a consultative peace pact, and embargo munitions export to a nation deemed to be an aggressor, and yet Europe is raising obstructions to the consummation of those great ventures in internationalism—the economic conference and the disarmament conference.

"The big point in this movement," said Mr. Hull, "is whether the nations—especially all the more important commercial nations—are moving to develop a will and disposition to enter into this movement in support of a suitable program of international action and business recovery, supplementing a domestic program in every country. If and when they manifest that disposition that will insure the substantial and definite carrying out of this program, whether it is done rapidly or over a longer period.

Could Restore Confidence.

"The big point is whether they are disposed to carry it out in its fundamental aspects, and if they are, why, then, whether they move rapidly or just steadily and gradually is not so material—just so they are moving forward with it. That within itself would inspire confidence within the different nations and confidence is about 80 per cent sometimes of panic recovery when you have gone through liquidation and adopted sound credit conditions."

"If they show that disposition what are some of the things they could accomplish?" the secretary of state was asked.

"They could," he replied, "enter into stabilization of currencies and exchange. They could enter into a permanent agreement not to increase obstructions to movements of international capital and goods and services. They could agree on methods of attacking this whole problem of the obstructions. And there are several methods of doing that.

Standardization of Exchange.

"They could gradually approach the question of international standardization of the monetary situation. There are large fields of important problems and conditions like these that are awaiting treatment by concerted action of the countries. That is the only way it can be treated."

"Could they stabilize the monetary system during the sitting of the conference?"

OPPOSES YEAR'S PAY FOR SENATOR WALSH'S WIDOW, WED 5 DAYS

Washington, D. C., May 15.—[Special.]—The payment of a year's salary of a member of a senator to Mrs. Thomas J. Walsh, widow of the senator from Montana, will be opposed by Representative Stephen M. Young of Ohio, because Mrs. Walsh was married to the senator only five days and as Mr. Young expressed it, because she is "a lady of means."

"It would doubtless be entirely proper to pay a year's salary to the widow of a senator provided the widow was his life partner, who had helped him as he climbed the ladder and served his country," Mr. Young said. "This case is different. It might be fitting and proper to make an appropriation for Senator Walsh's daughter, but for the widow of five days—absolutely no!"

The resolution making the appropriation is expected to be adopted.

SEEK $3,000,000 OF TAXES IN 67 RECEIVER SUITS

New Actions Hit Hotels, Theaters and Clubs.

Sixty-seven suits seeking the appointment of county receivers to collect approximately $3,000,000 in delinquent taxes were filed yesterday before County Judge Jarecki by attorneys representing County Treasurer McDonough.

Hotels, theaters, apartment hotels, business and club properties were included as defendants in the suits. Unless they pay the bulk of their 1928, 1929 and 1930 taxes within a short period, receivers will be appointed who will collect rents and other income until the taxes are paid, Judge Jarecki warned.

Thirty lawyers representing large property owners, already made defendants in county receivership suits, appeared before Judge Jarecki yesterday. To all appeals for compromises and delays the judge returned a firm negative.

Two Hotels Face Inquiry.

Representatives of the Stevens and La Salle hotels informed the court that they had made a formal answer to an information filed against them by State's Attorney Courtney, but that nothing had yet been paid on the more than $1,000,000 due on these properties in delinquent taxes.

"There was a receiver appointed for those hotels more than a year ago," the judge remarked. "Some months ago the receiver told Federal Judge Wilkerson that $250,000 in cash had been accumulated from the hotel's income. We'll find out why none of that was paid on the tax bills."

The Willoughby Tower, 8 South Michigan avenue, sent before Judge Jarecki a lawyer who said that $100,000 in back taxes had been paid on the property and that the remainder would be settled in monthly installments of $7,000.

"I won't be a party to this compromise until I discover if the building's finances will permit a larger down payment than $100,000," the judge said. He ordered the state's attorney's office to report Thursday on this question.

Judge Jarecki then summoned all the attorneys before him and announced:

"All these cases are so similar that I have formed an opinion and will hold to it until reversed by the Supreme court. Unless a substantial part of the taxes are paid I will assume that you are not acting in good faith. A minimum payment of 60 per cent of the delinquent taxes will be necessary before any consideration will be given you by this court."

Gets Title and Trust Report.

A week ago Judge Jarecki ordered an investigation of charges that the Chicago Title and Trust company had failed to pay $10,000,000 in delinquent taxes upon properties in its charge. The investigation was completed yesterday and a report was made. The judge said it would take Hayden Bell, assistant state's attorney and tax expert, a week to study the report.

"I want to thank the Chicago Title and Trust company and its attorneys for the cooperation it has extended in this investigation," the judge said. "It has given voluminous information about various properties and this willingness to help has been gratifying."

Among the properties named in the sixty-seven suits filed by County Treasurer McDonough yesterday were the South Shore Country club, the Midwest Athletic club, the White City amusement park, the Graemere hotel, Embassy hotel, Eastgate hotel, Illinois Steel company and the Hotel Sherman annex.

In reference to the suit against the otel Sherman Annex, Ernest Byfield, receiver for the property, said last night that he believed the suit was not justified.

"We are turning over almost every penny we make to pay for taxes on the Hotel Sherman property," he declared. "Since May, 1932, we have paid $350,000 in taxes. We are doing everything we can to help the county treasurer and this suit for a county receiver certainly should not have been filed."

Plan New Tax System Bill.

Mayor Kelly yesterday announced that he had decided to ask State Senator Francis J. Loughran to withdraw senate bill 601 which proposed to abolish the present county assessorship and board of appeals, substituting instead a board of assessment and revision, of which the assessor would be a member.

"The only purpose I had in mind in sponsoring this bill was to stabilize the value of the tax warrants and to remove obstacles to the speedy recovery of the city from its present financial dilemma," said the mayor. "In view of the opposition which has developed, I shall ask that the bill be withdrawn and I will call a conference of representatives of all taxing bodies and of taxpayers with a view to drafting a new bill which will accomplish the same purpose."

Bill Drafted After 15 Per Cent Cut.

The Chicago Real Estate board led a fight against the present bill. The measure was drafted after the present board of appeals, consisting of George F. Nixon and Fred Brummel, had ordered a 15 per cent cut in the 1931 assessment on homes and small flat buildings, thus affecting the value of the 1931 tax anticipation warrants. The legality of the board of appeals' action is soon to be decided by the state Supreme court.

Collection of taxes, including current and delinquent real estate taxes and 1931 personal property taxes, amounted to $810,647 yesterday. Real estate taxes paid in totaled $630,502 and personal property taxes amounted to $180,145. Eight cashiers in the county treasurer's office were kept busy accepting tax payments, whereas ordinarily only three employes are needed for this duty.

EVANSTON ASKS RECEIVER SUITS TO COLLECT TAXES

The Evanston city council voted last night to ask the county collector to start receivership proceedings under the new Skarda law against seven Evanston taxpayers to force payment of delinquent taxes. The taxpayers and amounts of taxes listed as due follows:

Evanston Hotel company, $19,018; the Evanshire hotel, $12,934; the Orrington Building corporation, $11,989; the Georgian hotel, $38,715; the Eagle Building corporation, $6,453; T. C. Bouchard, $11,291, and Alwart Brothers Coal company, $13,481.

The list was presented to the council by Ald. Clinton Merrick.

BLAST WRECKS BUNGALOW; TWO MEN ARE BURNED

Clarence Murray, 23 years old, and Edward Holtz, also 23, his brother-in-law, were burned about the face last night in a gas explosion in the basement of their home at 1627 North Fairfield avenue. The home, a bungalow, was virtually wrecked. Police believe that accumulated gas from a leak in the basement was ignited when Clarence switched on an electric light.

Holtz's son, Donald, 2 years old, who was playing upstairs on the first floor, was scratched. Stephen Murray and his wife, Olga, parents of Clarence, and Emil Gohr, 82 years old, father of Mrs. Murray, were shaken up.

GANGS CUT ALCOHOL BELOW HALF OF OLD PRICE, RAID REVEALS

Inflation has not yet set in in the bootleg alcohol business.

This was learned last night by Police Sergeant Charles McMullen and his squad when they raided the speakeasy of Miles Green at 6425 South Park way. With Green were Thomas Osborne, 35 years old, 6436 Cottage Grove avenue, and James Martin, 33, of 7010 Cregier avenue, and on a counter was a five gallon can of alcohol.

"These boys," Green explained to the policemen, "are collectors for Sonny Boy Quirk's syndicate. They just brought in a can and I am paying them off. The price is now $10.95 for five gallons."

The three men were arrested and will be turned over to the federal authorities for prosecution. The current alcohol price is less than half that charged in the days of general prosperity.

$12,467,629 Payment to Cover 3 Months.

Teachers and other school employes will get checks for three months' pay, totaling $12,467,629, on Friday.

Progress of the clerical work of preparing the pay rolls for last October, November, and December enabled school officials to announce yesterday that the checks can be sent to the schools Thursday night, for distribution the following day.

The pay day, representing the results of efforts which Mayor Kelly started as soon as he took office and which he continued daily until he was able to announce the pay day last week, represent the biggest installment which school employes have received on their back wages since their pay troubles started two years ago.

Checks Range Up to $1,100.

But their arrears are still greater than the payments they will receive this week, and prospects of further large reductions in those arrears are regarded as poor, unless congress makes provision for the use of federal funds for municipal pay rolls.

The pay checks to be sent out this week will range in amount from about $400, for the lowest paid elementary school teachers, to approximately $1,100, for teachers in high schools, Crane Junior college, and Chicago Normal school who have reached the upper limits of the salary brackets.

The teachers, after they receive these checks, will still have four and a half months' pay due them, from Jan. 1 to May 15. These arrears range from $600 for the lowest paid teachers to about $1,750 for those in the highest salary brackets.

In exchange for the 1932 warrants which the city is giving the bankers the school board will give the city interim certificates, to be replaced in a week or two by 1933 tax warrants.

Cut 30 Million Debt to 18.

The total salary arrears of the school board after the present pay day is completed, will be about $18,000,000, as compared with $30,000,000 on April 15. Teachers in the interim have received pay for the three weeks they worked in September, and now are to be paid for the remaining three months of 1932, but at the same time have accumulated another month in arrears.

Limit Tax Warrant Issues.

If the school board is to adhere to its policy of issuing tax warrants against not more than 50 per cent of its levies, the only policy under which it appears to have any hope at present of getting further funds from Chicago banks, it will have only about $7,000,000 worth of 1933 warrants which it can use for pay roll purposes during the present year.

Its 1933 educational fund tax levy, from which virtually all salaries are paid, was $44,000,000. To meet the September, October, November and December pay rolls the board will have to turn $14,948,000 in 1933 warrants over to the city aggregate of funds, replacing 1932 warrants sold out of those funds.

May Pay with Warrants.

That the board intends to meet at least part of its pay rolls by giving warrants to its employes was indicated yesterday when it was learned that $5,000,000 in 1933 warrants are being split up into denominations of $25 and $50. The offer of these warrants to school employes would meet salary obligations for five or six weeks.

County employes also will be paid Thursday and Friday, for the last two weeks of last October, County Treasurer McDonough announced. At the same time judges and clerks of election will be paid for their work during the registration of voters and revision of poll lists last October.

The two pay rolls totaled $930,000 and the money will be advanced in anticipation of earnings of county offices during June and July.

DOUGLAS VOTER DIES.

SOUTH JUBILANT OVER "UTOPIAN" POWER PROJECT

Chattanooga, Knoxville See Special Benefits.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Chattanooga, Tenn., May 15.—[Special.]—From the Great Smoky mountains to Mississippi, the people of the south are getting ready to celebrate the signing of the Muscle Shoals-Tennessee valley bill, hailing it as the greatest legislation, the finest recognition that has ever come to them.

This is the new frontier for the building of the industrial-rural Utopia, and while they do not want any "booms," their advice is to "go south, young man." If Senator George Norris, who was the moving spirit in the project, accepts invitations to the festivals planned in these parts he will be garlanded with wild flowers and crowned as the hero of the age.

Just what it all means is written in bulky engineer's reports, which do not make any too optimistic reading. It is not more power that these states need. They already have more than they can use or sell. Concrete results will flow to the few thousand immediate workers and from the sale of goods to contractors.

Knoxville to Get Channel.

Chattanooga is saved a ten million dollar bill in the municipal flood control levees. Knoxville is to get a nine foot channel to the sea. Each community sees a special benefit and beyond that a vague, general benefit, something national in scope, calling for extreme coöperation.

What coöperation is coming will have to be superimposed upon the locally enthusiastic groups of boosters and real estate men by the power of the Tennessee valley authority, which is to get $50,000,000 to carry on its work of joining the rural population of these towns and mountain valleys to the factories which it is figured somebody will build.

Kingsport, Tenn., is pointed to as a model of the life that is to come, although that, incidentally, was built by "private interests" for the selfish purpose of building up traffic for a railroad. In fact, Tennessee was getting along quite well in this plan of putting farmers to work in factories and still keeping them farmers, so when one thing failed they had another. The dark secret is that this whole thing seems to have started in a university, among a group of professors.

University Head Backs Plan.

Dr. H. A. Morgan, president of the University of Tennessee, has been preaching decentralization of industry and its integration with agriculture for many years. He even talked about it at a power convention, and these gentlemen were very sympathetic. But they never did much about making rates lower, which is the first essential. The American Engineering council took it up and appointed committees, which studied over the project for two years. They, too, thought highly of it, but it never occurred to them that it was a government job. Too much politics and red tape in that, they thought. They suggested last October that it was a big enough job for Mr. Hoover to tackle.

"Make agriculture the shock absorber to industry," said Prof. W. R. Woolwich of the engineering department of the university. "This requires national coöperative effort on the biggest scale, the best brains in agriculture, industry, economics, finance, engineering, government, sociology, psychology and education."

Hopes to Realize Ideal.

One of President Roosevelt's acts when he stepped into office was to get the bureau of land economics of the department of agriculture to offer recommendations on decent realization diffusion and expansion of southern industry and agriculture in the Tennessee valley. Dr. L. C. Gray came out to talk with the Tennessee experts. He told them that the President wanted to deal with the watershed as a whole, that he conceived it as realizing certain ideals that he cherishes.

"Evidently," he said, "our President has a conception in dealing with water and power problems that is different from that of the past. He has in mind this development as one method of regulating power in the interests of the general welfare, and this conception grows out of the feeling, which has been intensified by the depression, that if our system of civilization is to exist it must be based more and more on general social planning and less on the individualism that has characterized the past.

"The Tennessee project rests in part on the desire to promote by government policies and artificial measures the speeding up of this process of industrial decentralization, and doing it by planned procedure. Part of the question grew out of a wonder how the people of these states, with their strong individualism and their traditional attitudes towards government interference, will respond to such a program. It is obvious that it will be a failure unless the people respond.

"There has already been substantial development, but without very much fuller investigation of specific industries and their needs and the specific resources and advantages of this area it is difficult to see how rapidly industry can develop in response to this stimulus. Will the people take hold, not merely as a program for spending money in states, but in recognition of the fact that it is really a phase of the new deal, a constructive attempt to develop a new type of procedure that calls for throwing off some of our traditional conceptions and some of our local jealousies of federal government and its agencies?

May Need Tax Adjustments.

"To be very concrete there are probably some adjustments in taxation that will need to be made in some of these states. If the ideal of this program is realized there may need to be some change in labor legislation.

"Some of these states need to take a more general attitude in regard to parks than they have in the past. It seems to me that it is evident to many thinking people that if we are to retain some measure of our industrial freedom, freedom of initiative, which is one of the outstanding characteristics of capitalism, capitalism itself must be willing to adjust itself to profound changes and to accept measures that are necessary in the general economic stability and welfare, or otherwise the capitalist system must be displaced by some other form of common coöperation and association."

Says Importance Exaggerated.

Prof. J. A. Switzer, another engineering and power expert, said at this conference, which was held less than a month ago, that the importance of Muscle Shoals and Cove Creek as a source of power was enormously exaggerated. The total amount, he pointed out, is less than 25 per cent of the amount of power which was generated in this territory last year by the Public Utilities Power company. Since 1920 not one permit for the development of water power has been issued in Tennessee.

"We are penalized," he said, "by the fact that we are located above Muscle Shoals and congress was not able to decide what to do with it. There was a large amount of undeveloped power. Some of this cannot be developed economically. It is not economical to build plants in 1933 that will not be needed until 1943 and 1953. There must be an economical connection between requirements and building. At the present time the power companies we have in this territory have an installed capacity to take care of our normal requirements for the next five years or so, and unless there is a great influx of industries to absorb large blocks of power it will not be economical to develop power too far in advance of need."

But considerations of this kind were brushed aside to make room for the general plan, the ideal of the President. He had at his hand, too, the most complete survey of the Tennessee basin, made by the war department engineers. There was the Norris propaganda, disputing the reports of pessimistic engineers.

The people in the valley are talking about coöperation and adopting resolutions of unselfishness, but each community is crying its own distinct advantages. In its logical outcome the Roosevelt plan, as it is interpreted by Prof. Raymond Moley, will not help the cities much, but contemplates the removal of industries from the big cities to where they will find a steady, dependable lot of employés among the "subsistence farmers." But Chattanooga wants to be the capital, and Nashville, although outside the Tennessee valley, has already made a bold bid for the headquarters of the Tennessee valley authority. And Knoxville and Asheville, to say nothing of the capital of the Muscle Shoals district, Florence, Ala., are ready to reap the reward of their long years of waiting.

SONSTEBY PLANS COURT TO HANDLE AUTO CASES ONLY

AUTOMOBILE THEFTS.

Automobiles stolen, 79; recovered, 71; stripped, 13 (from police records for twenty-four hours ending at midnight Sunday).

Chief Justice John J. Sonsteby of the Municipal court is making preparations for a court in the municipal building at 11th and State streets, where only cases involving automobile and accessory thefts will be heard. The new court will hear cases of both minors and adults. Creation of such a court was advocated by the Chicago crime commission in a report on automobile theft conditions issued yesterday.

"We are planning to move the Women's court from the police building," said Judge Sonsteby yesterday. "This will make available a courtroom for automobile cases.

"Under the old arrangement both men and boys were tried in the Boys' court. The crime commission, the juvenile authorities and a number of women's organizations complained to me that the trials of men in the Boys' court gave a character to the courtroom which was unfortunate for minors. Within the last week we have moved the cases in which adult auto thieves are involved into a courtroom just across the hall from the boys' court."

200 Buildings Destroyed; Number Injured.

Auburn, Me., May 15.—(AP)—Fire raging through the New Auburn section of this city late today devastated an area four blocks wide and nearly two miles long, destroying at least 200 homes and places of business and made more than 700 persons homeless.

A public school house, a synagogue and a parochial school were among the buildings destroyed. A Catholic church, in the center of the fire swept area, withstood the flames.

Consider Firebug Theory.

With the great incendiary fire of a week ago in Ellsworth foremost in everyone's mind, the possibility that today's catastrophe may also have been the work of an incendiary was widely discussed. Arthur Pontbriant, owner of the garage in which the fire started, expressed the opinion that the blaze had been set.

Auburn has a population of 18,000. The blaze started about 1 p. m. in a garage. A high wind flung the flames in three directions, igniting closely packed tenement houses. These structures, three to five stories high, burst into flames. A triangular space containing nearly 20 buildings was a roaring furnace almost before the first hose line was laid.

Embers Carried Many Blocks.

Burning material was carried for blocks, setting fires in advance of the main blaze and isolating whole blocks of buildings—all doomed to ultimate destruction.

The fire climbed up from the tenement section, spreading to higher ground parallel to the Androscoggin river. Scores of single residences and two family houses were destroyed.

The Wilson school was ablaze shortly after its pupils had been dismissed. St. Louis school, a parochial institution, had been razed a short time before. The Beth Abraham synagogue was soon destroyed.

Fire departments came to the aid from Portland, Augusta, Rumford, Norway and Gardiner.

JEWELRY CLERK ROBBED.

Bennett Lasher, owner of a jewelry store at 3805 South Kedzie avenue, was slugged yesterday by two bandits who robbed him of $15 and three diamond rings valued at $150 and took $25 from a customer, Val P. Liebe, 4855 South Kolin avenue.

REFEREE HOLDS NEW BANKRUPTCY CLAUSE INVALID

Garfield Charles, referee in bankruptcy of the federal court, yesterday held unconstitutional section 74 of the new bankruptcy act. This section permits owners of real estate to attempt to arrange with their creditors a reorganization of the property without going through formal bankruptcy proceedings.

The ruling was given in the case of Louis Burgh, 5644 Washington boulevard, and his wife, Catherine. They are the owners of a property on which a $75,000 bond issue has been defaulted, and they filed a voluntary bankruptcy petition. Under their petition they sought an order from Referee Charles to compel a bondholders' committee to turn over to them a list of the bondholders, that they might negotiate directly with them.

Attorneys for the bondholders' committee moved to quash the subpœna issued against their clients by Referee Charles, on the ground that the section in question is a delegation of legislative power, and therefore unconstitutional. Referee Charles sustained their motion. His ruling is subject to review by the federal courts.

POLICE EXPLAIN AN ERROR MADE IN HORAN CASE

The police yesterday cleared up an unfortunate circumstance in connection with the death of John Horan, 26 years old, 6332 South Union avenue, a young man of excellent reputation, who was struck by an elevated train at the Randolph-Wabash station on May 3.

This circumstance, based on an erroneous police conclusion, concerned several blank checks of the Flatiron laundry, 3629 North Halsted street, which the police said they found in Horan's possession. Two days before Horan was killed the police had seized one George Fiedler for carrying similar checks.

Now, it is revealed, none of these blank checks had ever been in Horan's possession. The explanation, Sergt. Neal Begley said, goes back to Fiedler's arrest. Fiedler at that time was placed in a patrol wagon. Evidently he concealed some of the checks beneath the seat cushion of the patrol. Two days later Horan's body was placed in the same vehicle, and on this occasion the checks which Fiedler had secreted dropped to the floor. The police thereupon assumed they had fallen from Horan's pockets.

Horan was a son of Daniel J. Horan, undertaker, and a nephew of Fire Chief Horan, who lost his life in a south side fire years ago.

WOMAN DIES OF BURNS.

Mrs. Julia Strance, 56 years old, was fatally burned yesterday when her dress caught fire in her home at 5219 West 24th place, Cicero.

FLOODS MENACE LOWLAND CROPS OF FOUR STATES

Rivers Near Record in Central Indiana.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 15.—[Special.]—Tremendous downpours of rain over a period of two weeks have sent streams in central and southern Indiana to the highest levels in twenty years, causing fears that the lowlands' corn crop will be almost a total loss.

In Ohio and in southern Illinois similar conditions prevail. It was indicated today the Ohio river would be at flood stage from Parkersburg, W. Va., to the Mississippi in a day or two.

Vincennes, Ind., on the lower Wabash, has closed levee floodgates to protect the city. At Terre Haute the Wabash is a mile and half wide and at Shoals and Decker, downstate, the White river is at flood stage. The lowlands along these rivers, as well as the Ohio, were being evacuated by the inhabitants today.

Here in Indianapolis the little White river has grown into a mile wide stream. All the local golf courses, the parks and the motor speedway are under water.

Six Persons Lose Lives.

Elsewhere five children and one adult so far have lost their lives by drowning in the last two days.

At Petersburg, Ind., the continual rains have caused slides in the strip coal mines and resulted in immense damage. A state-wide survey puts the total loss due to the floods at an estimated two million dollars.

The heavy rains in Ohio lifted the Miami and Scioto rivers to abnormal heights. Residents were forced to flee from the low lying parts of Cincinnati and its Kentucky suburbs, Covington and Newport. Near Pomeroy, O., twenty dwellings were swept away. Jasper and Athens, in the same state, were flooded.

Illinois Crop Menaced.

In the vicinity of Mount Carmel, Ill., farmers asserted that the flood along the Wabash would destroy thousands of acres of corn and wheat if the rise reaches the proportions predicted by the weather bureau in Indianapolis.

Reports from Vandalia, Ill., stated that the Kaskaskia had broken through its levees at two places, flooding a wide area. Prisoners from the state penal farm were working on the levees in the hope of preventing further breaks. The Illinois and the Vermillion rivers were high and roads over a large part of Illinois were impassable.

OPENING DAY'S BUSINESS GOOD AT BLACKSTONE

The Blackstone hotel, where the socially prominent have been guests for 23 years, reopened yesterday after having been closed for three months. Many of its old patrons were among the first to register and were served by old employés long familiar with their wants.

The first to register was A. H. Nevius, a paper dealer of Dayton, O., who was given his old room. Officials at the close of the day's business said it was far beyond their expectations. The restaurant was particularly busy with the famous chef, Alfred Bertsche, again planning the dinners for which the dining room is noted over the nation. Otto C. Staack, maitre d' hotel, and Charley Hoerttrich, head waiter in the main dining room since the hostelry first opened, again greeted old friends.

The formal opening of the hotel will be celebrated the evening of May 21 with A Century of Progress dinner.

DRIVER KILLED AS STOLEN AUTO UPSETS ON ROAD

Two of His Companions Thrown Clear.

William Peterson, 20 years old, 7201 South Lafayette avenue, was killed yesterday when the stolen car which he was driving overturned at Willow Springs road and Archer avenue. Frank Rose, 19 years old, 8000 South Wabash avenue, and his companion, Annabelle Smolk, 19 years old, 6243 South Albany avenue, who were riding with Peterson, were thrown clear of the car and only slightly injured.

Rose told police that Peterson had asked them to take a ride and said that he had borrowed the car from his aunt. The automobile had been stolen earlier from Grant park, where it had been parked by a son of Attorney Walter S. Vose, 638 Judson avenue, Evanston.

This death and five others yesterday raised the Cook county motor toll for 1933 to 336. The victims:

Charles Faupel, 70 years old, 6719 South Carpenter street. Killed at 68th street and Normal boulevard. The driver, William J. Henning, 46 years old, 4443 South Wells street, was held by Englewood police.

Peter Kember, 50 years old, 1324 South 49th avenue, Cicero. Died in Berwyn hospital of injuries received Sunday when he was struck by a hit and run car at 22d street and 50th avenue, Cicero. Joseph Eringis, 32 years old, 3846 South Kedzie avenue, was arrested as the alleged driver. Eringis denied the charge.

Irving van de Carr, 71 years old, Drake street and Stratford road, Des Plaines. Died in the county hospital of injuries he suffered Aug. 10, 1931, when he was pinned to the wall of the garage at his home.

Flora Cline, 6 years old, 9429 Ada street. Fatally injured in front of her home by an automobile driven by John J. Engein, 7940 Ada street, an undertaker.

James Lakanas, 50 years old, address unknown. Fatally injured at River road and Irving Park boulevard by a car driven by Carl Jarosch, 47, of 2049 Mohawk street.

Two taxicab drivers were injured, one seriously, and a dozen street car passengers were jolted in a collision between a southbound Larrabee street surface car and a taxi at Elm street last night. Matthew Novy, 31 years old, 2328 North Halsted street, suffered a skull fracture, and Albert Lasky, 29, 2524 Burling street, driver of the cab, received cuts.

MAN ACCUSED BY TWO ART MODELS AWAITS JUDGE'S WORD

New York, May 15.—[Special.]—Decision was reserved today as to the guilt or innocence of George V. Cooper Jr., 24 years old, of New Rochelle. He hired two artists' models to come to his home, then bound and gagged them, sat down and read a book for two hours. The case is in the White Plains court of County Judge John B. Coyle. Cooper was indicted for kidnaping and felonious assault.

Cooper hired the two models on March 28, held them prisoners in his attic and then carried them down and drove them back to New York in his automobile. He paid them $34 on account as their fees. He was arrested the following day when he paid them the balance. The models are Miss Mary Louise Harper and Mrs. Louise Groothof of New York.

Two psychiatrists testified today regarding Cooper's mental condition. They were Dr. J. F. Vavasour of Grasslands hospital and Dr. Henry T. Kelly of White Plains. They recommended hospital treatment for Cooper.

OIL BLAST BURNS 2, HALTS TRAINS IN HIGHLAND PARK

Two Railroads Tied Up During Rush Hour.

Two men were seriously burned late yesterday in an explosion and fire at the substation of the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois in Highland Park. A third employe, who also was injured, helped the other two through a mass of high tension wires to safety.

Rush hour traffic on two railroads, the Chicago and North Western and the North Shore electric line, was delayed for nearly an hour by dense smoke and flames from the fire. The substation is located between the tracks of the two roads, at the Elm street crossing in the suburb.

Injured in Hospital.

JOSEPH FARNETTI, 28 years old, 515 Laurel avenue, Highland Park.

VERNE W. ROBERTS, 29 years old, a resident of the Waukegan Y. M. C. A.

Oil and grease in the power switches of the substation transformers caused the explosion and fire, in the opinion of utility company officials. The oil is used to insulate the high tension switches, through which a current of electricity of from 2,200 to 23,000 volts passes.

Helps Comrades to Ground.

The victims of the fire were working on the superstructure of the transformers when the blast occurred. Joseph Cameron, 659 Michigan avenue, Highland Park, who escaped with slight burns, jumped to safety but turned back to help the other two through the wires. Both collapsed after reaching the ground.

Highland Park firemen under Chief Edward Hoskins fought the blaze for two hours before bringing it under control. The damage to the station was estimated at $10,000.

ROB COMMISSION FIRM OF $700.

RIBBONED GOOSE ROUTS PROWLERS AND TENDS BABY

Youngsters of Gold Coast Agog Over Him.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

A goose with a perky pink bow balanced on its gracefully arched neck marched sedately up and down in Astor street yesterday afternoon. Gold coast babies clapped gleefully as they rolled by in their perambulators, nursemaids stared, and pedigreed dogs on leash backed away in wonder. Astor street discovered its newest and most unique pet.

For some weeks residents in the neighborhood have been unable to account for a strange hissing that shattered the night stillness to be followed by a hurried patter of feet down the alley. Yesterday the mystery was solved when Gooses, the pet gander of the seven children of Dr. Robert Mustell, 1436 Astor street, made its début on the Mustell lawn.

Drives Off Cats and Dogs.

The sacred geese that saved Rome had nothing on Astor street's one and only goose. Mercy Mustell, 14 years old, a student at St. Michael's Central High school, holding fast to one end of Gooses' leash, related how the gander guards the Mustell home night and day and put to rout not only inquisitive cats and dogs but unwelcome strangers who ventured in the back gate.

"One night when it was very dark we heard Gooses hissing and honking out in the back yard where we keep him," Mercy began. "Gooses was making a terrible racket. He was mad. We went to the door and there was Gooses chasing to the far end of the yard, yelling and ruffling his wings. Two men badly frightened were trying to get out the gate with Gooses snapping at their legs. He wanted to follow them down the alley.

"Then there was the time the gas man came. He had to call to the maid for help, to please get the goose away and let him in.

Brooks No Tampering with Food.

"Maybe you think the goose doesn't hate dogs and the dogs don't hate the goose. When a dog gets in the yard it gets out again in a hurry. Once a cat got into Gooses' pail for food until Gooses came along and bit it.

"But Gooses really likes the children. You see, we raised him ourselves last summer on our Uncle William Crownover's farm near Loma, Ill. We brought him back for a pet when we moved here last December.

"Gooses is nicest of all to Baby-Boy, that's the youngest. He follows Baby-Boy around constantly and won't stand for any one tormenting him. He squawks as if his heart would break. The older boys were down on the floor fighting one day. Gooses watched just so long and then he started honking pathetically and flapping his wings."

Mrs. Mustell revealed that the goose has a decided love for music, and insists on being present when the children are dancing.

"In the evening when Gooses hears the music and the children dancing he pecks at the door until Fannie, the maid, hears him. Then he comes in to watch."

PIERRE S. DU PONT HEADS RUM CONTROL BOARD IN DELAWARE

Wilmington, Del., May 15.—(AP)—Gov. C. Douglass Buck today signed the state liquor control bill and appointed Pierre S. Du Pont as Delaware's sole liquor commissioner.

Du Pont, who was named for a five year term, will have full control of the manufacture, transportation, and sale of liquor, beer, and wine in the event that the eighteenth amendment is repealed.

The bill, which is similar to the Quebec control system, will supplant the beer control bill passed as an emergency measure several weeks ago. Already state tax commissioner, Du Pont is expected to handle his new duties through this office.

N. W. UNIVERSITY DRYS WANT BEER SALES STOPPED

The drys and the wets of Evanston will have an opportunity to voice their views on the 3.2 per cent beer question there at the next meeting of the Evanston council Monday night.

A group of seventy-five drys, headed by Dean James A. James of Northwestern university, marched into the council chambers preparatory to last night's meeting to demand why the sale of beer is not prohibited.

Mayor Bartlett explained that beer is being sold without legal sanction, largely because of disagreement as to the status of Evanston's present liquor laws as embodied in the Northwestern charter. Dean James wasn't satisfied, so the mayor promised he would allow 10 minutes each to the drys and wets to debate the question at the next meeting.

SLAIN HOODLUM IDENTIFIED AS KILLER-RAPIST

Holbrook Murder Solved by Gang Guns.

The body of Rocco Belcastro, young west side hoodlum found shot to death yesterday morning, lay identified last night as that of the man who on April 22 killed Francis Holbrook, division circulation manager for the Daily Times, and then participated in the gang rape of Holbrook's companion, Miss Lillian Nance, 17 years old, 4207 School street.

The identification was made by Miss Nance and by her fiancée, Stephen Hanrahan, who was with her and Holbrook when Holbrook was slain in front of a café at 3104 Madison street. Supervising Police Captain John Stege said he was convinced that the slaying of Belcastro was in revenge for the murder of Holbrook and the attack on Miss Nance.

Suspect Is Arrested.

While this theory was being investigated Sergt. George Maher's squad developed a new angle by arresting Charles [Casey Kane] Kunowski, described as a bootlegging pal of Belcastro's. In this new phase Deputy Chief of Detective William Blaul was told that Belcastro was slain while in the Delmonti café at 458 North Halsted street. Kunowski was shown up to ten witnesses, but not identified.

At the café last night it was learned that a new management, new orchestra, and new attendants had replaced the old order since morning, and this hampered police in determining whether the murder actually occurred there. Kunowski and Belcastro had a falling out recently, police said, after the latter had shot Kunowski, but had patched up their troubles.

Body Found in Automobile.

Belcastro's body was found in an automobile parked in front of 1213 Carroll avenue. He had been shot several times. The body was wrapped in bartenders' aprons and table covers bearing the label of the Ability laundry. The automobile had been stolen from Albert Kochan, 2838 Diversey avenue, two weeks ago.

Belcastro, who was not related to James Belcastro, so-called king of bombers, was a prisoner at the detective bureau until 4:15 o'clock Sunday afternoon, when he was released after the showup. The police knew that he frequented cafés in the neighborhood of Chicago and Western avenues and after his body was found they went to the Villa café on that corner to inquire about his movements.

They learned that he had left the Villa café at 2 o'clock yesterday morning, saying he was going to the Oakley café, 2335 West Chicago avenue. At the Oakley café, owned by William and Frank Mayo, brothers, and Joe Guardina, the police found blood on the sidewalk and numerous stains within. A green hat found in the place was identified as Belcastro's.

Supervising Captain Stege and Capt. Patrick Collins of the Des Plaines street district learned that Dr. M. S. Petrone, 2403 West Chicago avenue, had been called to the Oakley café about 6 o'clock in the morning.

Denies Seeing Dead Man.

"Yes, I went there," Dr. Petrone told the investigators. "A man whom I know, but whose name I do not know, came to my first aid station at 5:30 a. m. I treated him for cuts on his hands and then he asked me to go to the Oakley and take care of his sweetheart, Rose Malone, an entertainer. He said he had cut his hand on her mirror when he hit her. I found she didn't need any treatment."

"Did you examine a man who had been shot and proclaim him to be dead?" asked Capt. Stege.

Dr. Petrone denied that any such incident had taken place.

The Mayo brothers both claimed to have been absent at the time. Guardina said he was tending bar. He said that Belcastro and two other men, whose names he did not know, had stood at the bar from 4 to 5 o'clock drinking beer. There was no shooting in the cafe, Guardina said.

Late in the day the police found Miss Malone who gave her address as 1104 Taylor street. She said the man who had beaten her and who cut his hand is James Orlando, 5716 West North avenue, and the police at once sought him.

Find Clews in Café.

Supervising Captains Stege and John Horan then went to the Oakley for an inspection. They found bloodstains on a wall in a dressing room. They found table covers and bartenders' aprons similar to those in which the body of Belcastro was wrapped and also bearing the Ability laundry marks. Stege also found a piece of rope similar to a piece wound around Belcastro's body.

Guardina, Miss Malone, a cook and a dishwasher all said they left the café together after Dr. Petrone's visit and that Dr. Petrone went with them.

Leaders to Serve on Jury.

Coroner Frank J. Walsh announced that he had invited the following men to serve as jurors at the inquest to be held at noon today: Frank J. Loesch, president of the Chicago crime commission; Henry Barrett Chamberlin, operating director of the crime commission; Charles Berquist, Western Electric company executive; Gabriel Slaughter, official of American Steel Foundries; Prof. E. W. Puttkammer of the University of Chicago, and Fred W. Mehlhop, former official of Armour & Co.

FRENCH FLYER HOPS ATLANTIC ON ROUND TRIP

DAKAR, Senegal, May 15.—(AP)—The big French airplane Arc-en-Ciel [Rainbow], piloted by Jean Mermoz, arrived here at 8:10 p. m., completing the second west to east crossing of the South Atlantic.

It spanned the ocean in 17 hours 10 minutes, following the trail blazed by the late Bert Hinkler, Australian airman, in 1931. The French plane finished the Atlantic leg of a round trip flight to South America begun in January.

Flying from Natal, Brazil, the French plane wirelessed it was in difficulty when approaching the aeropostale dispatch boat off the coast here, but later, at 5:30 p. m., signaled its position and apparently all was well. It was learned the plane probably will fly directly to Paris to establish a record flight.

4 'CUSTOMERS' RAID HANDBOOK AND GET $5,000

100 Patrons Searched on Near North Side.

Four bandits invaded the Broker's club, a handbook at 155 East Grand avenue, yesterday afternoon and escaped with $5,000 from the cash windows besides an unknown amount taken from 100 patrons. Harry Eager, manager, was beaten over the head with a revolver.

The bandits had been coming into the place for the last few days and so were considered customers. For that reason they were not searched for weapons, according to the doorman.

Tune In Own Radio.

Two of the bandits held the crowd at bay while their two companions went to the payoff windows and scooped up the cash. A radio was brought in by a fifth accomplice and tuned in for police calls.

Then the gunmen called for Eager. He had mingled at the rear of the crowd. The bandits hauled him out and, cuffed him with the revolver. Systematically the bandits went through the pockets of the customers, ignoring the women. One of the patrons, Jerry Sullivan of 745 Rush street, said he lost $106.

Robbery Takes Half Hour.

The bandits stayed in the place for a full half hour before leaving with the threat of death to any one who followed.

After the robbery business continued as usual.

HAROLD TILLINGHAST, WORLD WAR AVIATOR, TAKES HIS OWN LIFE

Philadelphia, Pa., May 15.—[Special.]—Harold A. Tillinghast, a world war aviator and eastern manager of the Champion Spark Plug company, ended his life today by firing a bullet into his head. His body was found by his wife, the former Caroline P. Woodhill, on her return home.

Dr. Samuel B. Sturgis, the family physician, said that Mr. Tillinghast had enjoyed the best of health until a few months ago. Then, according to the doctor, he had started on a strict diet which broke down his physique and started the collapse of his nervous system.

Friends of Mr. Tillinghast, including his brother-in-law, William C. Jones, an attorney, declared he had no financial or domestic troubles and that only worry over impaired health apparently could have been responsible for his suicide.

Judge Ponders Plea to Quash Connolly Charge

A motion to quash the conspiracy indictment against Timothy L. Connolly, purchasing agent for the sanitary district during the whoopee era, was taken under advisement until May 19 by Chief Justice John Prystalski in the Criminal court yesterday. Connolly was named in the original conspiracy indictment that resulted in the conviction and sentencing of Timothy J. Crowe, former president of the district, and Frank J. Link, former trustee, to serve one to five years in prison. Connolly has been found not guilty of forgery in connection with manipulations of the whoopee era.

Realty Valued at About 3 Million Dollars.

New York, May 15.—[Special.]—Edward A. Ridley, aged eccentric who was murdered last week, left an estate worth at least $4,000,000, the police announced today, instead of slightly more than $1,000,000.

Ridley had nearly $1,000,000 cash in the Central Hanover Bank and Trust company. Real estate holdings are estimated at $3,000,000.

Search is to be made of safety deposit boxes here and elsewhere for hidden securities, either in the name Ridley or his secretary, Lee Weinstein, who also was murdered.

The police now say Weinstein had a revenue source unknown to Ridley. Weinstein's salary was $35 a week plus commission, and apparently he did not exceed $50 a week, yet the police were told he always had a bank roll. Weinstein let out at least $150,000 in contracts for painting and repair jobs on property owned by Ridley.

Detective Henry P. Oswald has discovered Weinstein had been married eight years, while posing as a bachelor. He lived with his wife at the Hotel Belvidere under the name of Lee, paying $18 a week for their room.

Another angle in which the police are interested is Weinstein's contacts with labor unions.

More than 200 accounts have been found in Ridley's ledgers and every one who had business dealings with him will be questioned, also on the basis of a series of notebooks and diaries.

CONGRESS LIBRARY GETS J. B. THATCHER BOOKS, MANUSCRIPTS

Washington, D. C., May 15.—(AP)—The library of congress today became the owner of the John Boyd Thatcher collection of books and manuscripts, said to be worth $500,000.

An opinion by the District of Columbia Court of Appeals said the library had fully complied with the terms of the will of Mrs. Thatcher leaving the collection to the government.

Mrs. Thatcher lived at Albany, N. Y., and had placed the books in the library before her death. The executors of the estate sought to recover the collection.

In it are various manuscripts by kings and queens and other rulers of England, Germany, Spain and Italy, various popes and a number of books relating to the French revolution.

FOUND GUILTY 2D TIME OF KILLING BY AN OPERATION

Armin L. Kreutzer, 45 years old, a former Milwaukee veterinarian, was found guilty of manslaughter in connection with an abortion death by a jury before Judge Edward Shurtleff in Waukegan shortly before 4 o'clock this morning.

The penalty is automatically one to fourteen years in prison. This is Kreutzer's second conviction. He was found guilty of murder in the same case last February and his punishment was fixed at fourteen years. Judge Ralph Dady, who presided at that trial, set the verdict aside.

Kreutzer was tried for the death of Mrs. Anna Balis of Cudahy, Wis. She was operated on Nov. 9 last, allegedly in his Harbor View Maternity home in Winthrop Harbor. She died Dec. 16. Kreutzer on the stand denied performing an abortion.

CANCER PATIENT UNABLE TO FEEL 800,000 VOLTS

For thirty-five minutes yesterday John J. Mulcahy, 60 years old, of St. John's, N. F., lay in a small lead lined chamber at Mercy hospital, with 800,000 volts and 10 milliamperes of electricity coursing through his body. There was "no sensation whatever," reported Mulcahy, the first patient to receive a treatment from the world's most powerful X-ray machine, installed at the hospital recently for the treatment of cancer.

Mulcahy entered Mercy hospital a week ago and had previously received treatments from a smaller X-ray. For the inauguration of the great 14 foot tube and machine, he was wheeled into the lead and tile walled unit on a rolling bed, and ponderous steel doors closed upon him. Heavy metal and rubber lined blankets covered most of his body, as the rays were measured and directed through a circular aperture in the ceiling, the operator controlling the apparatus being stationed at a switchboard outside. A periscope device permitted him to watch and to converse with the patient.

At its full potentiality, 800,000 volts, the same effect is obtained in treating cancers as from the radiation from $17,500,000 worth of radium collected in a "bomb."

W. J. Froelich Off to Take Legal Post in U. S. Treasury

Assistant United States Attorney William J. Froelich yesterday received a temporary appointment as counsel for Walter J. Cummings of Chicago, executive assistant to the secretary of the treasury in charge of bank reorganization. Attorney Froelich will leave for Washington today. He has been assistant district attorney in Chicago for three years. During that time he was active in the prosecution of Al Capone and Chris Paschen, former building commissioner, for violation of the income tax law.

How I Lost 62 Pounds Ugly Fat

Without Harmful Dieting or Drugs

By MARGARET GEORGE

Above are my photographs taken before and after I drank Germania Herb Tea. I used to be so tired and weak I could hardly stand on my feet. I am now giving free demonstrations in the leading department stores of America. I am 50 years old, work 14 hours a day, am on my feet all the time and never felt so good before in my life. I would love to have you come and meet me.

Simply Drank Delicious Germania Herb Tea—

SIXTY-TWO pounds of fat in three months was the welcome loss in weight I registered without taking any harmful drugs or salts—without violent exercising and without going hungry for a single minute. Drinking three cupfuls a day of delicious Germania Herb Tea, obtainable at food, department and drug stores, I hold entirely responsible for the loss of all my ugly fat and the return to me of a youthlike strength and energy I had not possessed in years. To obtain a trial package free, note coupon below.

Made of herbs grown on the sunny slopes of hills and mountains in Germany, Germania Herb Tea is strictly a vegetable product containing no harmful drugs. It tastes just like ordinary orange pekoe tea. It is made the same way and you can drink it, either hot or served as iced tea, with lemon, cream or sugar.

Delicious, I found it and many women I know who drink it say the same. But getting rid of 62 pounds of fat cannot be accomplished by drinking any ordinary tea. Remember, you must drink Germania Herb Tea—and the remarkable thing about it is you lose weight without going on a freak starvation diet that runs you down and makes you weak and strengthless. I lost weight every day and each day I ate what I wanted, except much fatty meats and starches, felt better, and grew stronger. # "STATE STREET DAY" TOMORROW TO LURE CROWDS

Bargains Hailed as Last Before Price Rise.

A feverish activity prevailed among State street merchants yesterday as they prepared for the celebration of "State Street Day" tomorrow. Hailed as the last great bargain day before the inevitable upward trend of prices, the merchants looked forward to an unparalleled day of activity and a tremendous volume of business.

Retail prices will be maintained at their present low levels tomorrow and until present stocks are exhausted, it was announced. Wholesale prices already have advanced, however, it was said, and State Street day will be one of the last days for Metropolitan Chicago to take care of current needs at low prices.

Fair to Spur Buying.

The Century of Progress exposition opening, less than two weeks distant, is also expected to stimulate buying tomorrow as Chicagoans make preparations for the exposition by replenishing their wardrobes and putting their homes in order for the hundreds of thousands of visitors expected here.

The changing of curtains and drapes, a new rug for the living room or hall, a set of new china, a new electric refrigerator, bedroom and spare room furnishings—all are being considered for purchase by the housewife.

Now, while prices are still at bottom in the great retail establishments is the time to take care of such needs, State street merchants declare. That prices will go up soon is the definite statement of most of the retailers.

Attendance Forecasts Grow.

In the growing belief that the Century of Progress crowds will exceed all expectations, Chicagoans are now beginning to think of a thorough cleaning up of their homes, their offices, their stores, and their factories, according to some of the experts. And just as the purchase of things for the home and office is being contemplated, so also the individual is beginning to realize that his clothes are rather seedy and he must present a good appearance to the world when it comes here to view the exposition this summer.

The crowd in State street tomorrow is expected to furnish a forecast of what can be expected when visitors begin to throng here after the opening of the exposition. Special rates have been offered by both steam and electric roads and the bus systems for those who come to Chicago tomorrow.

State street hopes that it is about to emerge from an era of slim profits, according to a bulletin issued yesterday. But the emergence has not yet taken place and the bargains offered tomorrow, in general, will bring little profit to the seller, it was said.

DIVORCEE SAYS SHE'LL BARE OLD COURT INTRIGUE

Pushes Forgery Charge Against Attorney.

Revelations of a political intrigue which, it is alleged, has been carried on in the courts of Cook county for 23 years are promised today by Mrs. Hannah Le Bold Randall, 50 years old, 4558 Dover street. She is to appear before Municipal Judge Matthew D. Hartigan in the Felony court to oppose a motion to quash a warrant charging forgery which she obtained against Attorney Ina S. Campbell.

Mrs. Randall, the divorced wife of the late Louis E. Randall, wealthy jobber of paper boxes, who died in 1930, obtained the warrant yesterday. Appearing before Judge Hartigan, she said that the woman lawyer had represented her in negotiations with the law firm of Litsinger, Healy & Read at a time when she was seeking to collect a $55,000 judgment she had won against her former husband in May, 1932.

Told Record Shows Satisfaction.

After $7,500 had been paid on the judgment, Mrs. Randall said, her first attorney, Irving Zazove, retired from the case. Attorney Campbell then was retained, Mrs. Randall explained, and ordered an execution of the judgment from the Circuit court clerk. Several weeks passed, Mrs. Randall related, and finally Attorney Campbell informed her that papers showing a satisfaction of the judgment were on file and that she had no right to any money from her husband.

"I went to the court myself," said Mrs. Randall, explaining that this action took place nearly a year ago. "There I found the satisfaction of judgment and had a photostatic copy of it made. The next day when I went back to see the satisfaction papers again I was informed that they had been lost. Record of the satisfaction, however, is on the clerk's books."

Mrs. Randall explained that she then sued her former husband and his second wife, Mrs. Mayme Hardin Randall of Woodstock, Ill., winning the $55,000 judgment that same year. Since then, she said, she has been trying to collect the money.

Names Ex-Husband's Attorneys.

"Who were Mr. Randall's attorneys through all this litigation" asked Judge Hartigan.

"He has always been represented by the firm of Litsinger, Healy & Read," replied Mrs. Randall.

Supporting her assertions, she produced the photostatic copy of the satisfaction and affidavits made by two persons whose signatures appear as witnesses. They are Mrs. Blanche Grier of Batavia, a court reporter, and Guy C. Guerine, of Melrose Park. Both assert, in the affidavit, that they had never seen the satisfaction.

"Mrs. Randall came to my office," Attorney Campbell said, "but after interviewing her I told her that I would have nothing to do with the case. I refused even to represent her."

NIGHT WATCHMAN KILLS SELF.

Richard F. Walsh, 41 years old, 4861 Winthrop avenue, a night watchman employed by the American Detective Service company, 6257 Eberhart avenue, committed suicide in his home last Monday evening by shooting.

JOHN BAIN GETS PRISON SENTENCE FOR SECOND TIME

Two of Kin Also Guilty; State Invokes Old Law.

John Bain, his son, John H. Bain, and his son-in-law, W. Merle Fisher, were sentenced to serve one to three years in the penitentiary and fined $66 each yesterday by Judge James F. Fardy on charges of accepting deposits in the West Englewood Trust and Savings bank while knowing the bank to be insolvent. Sentence was passed after Judge Fardy had overruled a plea in bar entered by Defense Attorney Harry Olson.

The state invoked an almost forgotten rule of common law, said to have been used last in Cook county some 50 years ago, to get an immediate sentence for the Bains and Fisher. This law is that a defendant may be allowed a trial either on the law or the facts of a case. By making a plea in bar, according to the law, the defendant elects trial on points of law and if the plea is overruled the judge has the right to impose sentence without further trial.

Plea in Bar Explained.

The effect of a plea in bar, according to attorneys, is an admission by the defendant of the facts as alleged by the prosecution, but the defendant asserts that these facts are not punishable as a crime under the law. The plea in bar is somewhat analogous to a demurrer in civil cases, although the overruling of a demurrer may not prevent the trial of a civil case on the facts.

The plea in bar in the Bain case was based on the fact that all three defendants were convicted on a charge of conspiracy more than a year ago before Judge John M. O'Connor. The elder Bain was sentenced to serve one to five years in prison while his son and Fisher were fined $1,000 each.

Charges Doubly Jeopardy.

One count in the indictment at that time charged the defendants with conspiracy to accept deposits knowing banks of the Bain chain to be insolvent. A verdict of not guilty was returned on this count and the defense attorney held that the present trial amounted to double jeopardy for his clients.

The three defendants were warned by the court and by Prosecutor Grenville Beardsley of the serious consequences if the plea in bar was overruled. Bain, his son, and Fisher, after hearing the explanation, persisted in the plea.

They were found guilty on the specific charge of accepting $33 deposit from Nathan Wiggins, a newsdealer at 53d street and Ashland avenue, an hour before the West Englewood bank closed on June 9, 1931.

Each Is Fined $66.

Under the law the fine which can be imposed on a defendant can be any amount up to twice the deposit involved in the case. The Wiggins deposit being $33, the maximum fine of $66 for each defendant was imposed by Judge Fardy.

Attorney Olson asked a stay of mittimus for 30 days in which to perfect an appeal. It was discovered that the Bains and Fisher had never perfected bond under the indictment for the present trial. Judge Fardy stayed the mittimus until tomorrow to allow the defendants to do this.

At that time Edward C. Barry, cashier of the West Englewood bank, will go to trial on a similar charge. He was indicted with the Bains and Fisher but gained a severance.

REPLACE 4 JURORS IN MITCHELL TRIAL; REASONS WITHHELD

New York, May 15.—[Special.]—The trial of Charles E. Mitchell, former chairman of the board of the National City bank, for income tax evasion, was adjourned today to 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning after four veniremen tentatively selected last Thursday had been excused and four others chosen and sworn in to complete the jury. Two alternates also were selected.

There was considerable ado about the reason for excusing the four original veniremen, but neither United States Attorney George Medalie, the prosecutor, nor Max D. Steuer, Mitchell's counsel, would tell the reasons. Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard, before whom the case will be heard, also remained silent.

"We just sort of got together," Mr. Medalie said. Mr. Steuer was even less loquacious. He simply smiled and shook his head.

Mitchell, the director of many corporations, a member of numerous clubs, is charged with evading payment of taxes totaling $853,429.68 on a net income of about $4,000,000 for 1929 and 1930. He is specifically accused of having sold 18,000 shares of National City bank stock, which he had bought at $375 a share, to his wife, Elizabeth Bend Mitchell, at $212 a share and of buying it back for that price after it had fallen to a market value of $40.

He is also charged with taking a net loss of $759,000 in 1930, the following year, on a block of stock which he sold to W. D. Thornton, president of the Greene Cananea Copper company, and then repurchased. The prosecution contends that these sales were fictitious and were merely made to establish losses for tax purposes.

Mitchell, attired in a gray suit and wearing a gray and green striped tie, kept his eyes fixed on the jury box, as he did on Thursday. He gazed intently as each veniremen was being questioned and seemed oblivious to all else that transpired in the room.

Files Praecipe in $50,000 Suit Against A. W. Cutten

The praecipe of a suit for $50,000 against Arthur W. Cutten, wealthy grain speculator, was filed in the Circuit court yesterday on behalf of John R. Mauff, a member of the Board of Trade. Mauff said that the suit was "for services rendered."

Another alleged racketeer, Ted Vergilio, 27 years old, 901 South Loomis street, business agent for the "checkroom, wardrobe, washroom attendants and doormen's union, local 94," is scheduled to be questioned by Capt. Gilbert this morning.

Vergilio and the union treasurer, Louis Featto, 29 years old, 5406 Wellington avenue, were seized on Sunday while they were "organizing" attendants at the Frolic café, 18 East 22d street. They were held for questioning by Chief of Detective Schoemaker.

After telling of Vergilio's record of three disorderly and two robbery convictions, the chief interrogated Vergilio as follows:

Q.—Out of the stickup racket and in the union racket now, Vergilio? A.—Naw, chief, it's legit. We're doing good for our members, seeing that they get their salaries.

Building Agent Robbed of $2,000 on North Side

Victor Feithler, 814 East 32d street, an agent for the Esbico Management corporation, property agents, was held up by an armed man and robbed of $2,000 yesterday as he left an apartment building at 2616 Hampden court. The robber struck Feithler on the wrist with his gun to make him release his briefcase. Later police recovered the stolen briefcase, minus the money, from the river at Wells street.

JAMES ROOSEVELT CARRIES VETS' PENSION PROTEST TO PRESIDENT

Boston, Mass., May 15.—[Special.]—James Roosevelt tonight agreed to intercede with his father to reduce the pension cuts suffered by disabled veterans under the economy act. He will present the recommendations of the Massachusetts Department Veterans of Foreign Wars at a conference in the White House this week.

Speaking in Lowell recently, young Roosevelt declared the pension cuts "will not be ruthless and that every disabled veteran will be taken care of by the Roosevelt administration." Today he was given specific cases in which the reductions have been as high as 80 per cent for service connected disabilities.

Young Roosevelt listened to the state leaders of the Veterans of Foreign Wars today and then agreed to support the recommendations of that group for a slash ranging from 250 to 260 million dollars instead of 460 million dollars.

ROBBERS KIDNAP VICTIM IN CROWD NEAR THE LOOP

CRIMINAL COURT.

Harry Corley, attempted burglary; sentenced to from 1 to 5 years in the penitentiary by Judge Michael Feinberg.

While downtown crowds passed by unaware of what was happening, Elliot Eisenberg, 34 years old, 3514 Pine Grove avenue, messenger for a loop clothing store, was kidnaped yesterday by two gunmen in a car in Randolph street, between Michigan and Wabash avenues.

The gunmen drove Eisenberg hurriedly out of the loop and to a prairie near Dempster and Potter roads, in Maine township. There they robbed him of an envelope containing checks and an undetermined amount of money. They overlooked $45. The money belonged to Eisenberg's employers, the Kerman Stores, Inc., 160 North Michigan avenue, and he was on his way with it to a bank when he was kidnaped.

According to Eisenberg's story, he was walking east in Randolph street when a black sedan blocked his path at the alley between Michigan and Wabash avenues. One of the men called to him by name, he said. When Eisenberg walked up to the car the man who had called to him covered him with a gun and forced him into the car.

SENATE OPENS IMPEACHMENT TRIAL OF JUDGE

Louderback Charges Are Based on Receiverships

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 15.—[Special.]—For the eleventh time in its history, the United States senate sat today as a court of impeachment and heard opening arguments and the first witnesses in the trial of Federal Judge Harold Louderback of the Northern district of California.

With Vice President Garner as president of the court and Senator Henry F. Ashurst [Dem., Ariz.], chairman of the judiciary committee, in the rôle of master of procedure, the senate listened to the opening statement of Representative Hatton W. Sumners [Dem., Tex.], chairman of the house judiciary committee and of the managers on the part of the house.

Five Articles of Impeachment.

Judge Louderback is standing trial on five articles of impeachment charging him with irregularities in receivership cases. It is alleged that he displayed favoritism in appointing receivers, that he appointed incompetent persons, and ordered them paid exorbitant fees.

One article claims that he appointed a telegraph operator as receiver for a three million dollar motor company; another that he forced an expert receiver out of office because the receiver would not comply with his orders to select a particular attorney.

One of the alleged beneficiaries of Judge Louderback's conduct is Samuel Shortridge Jr., son of former Senator Samuel Shortridge [Rep., Cal.], who went out of office last March 4. Throughout the case, as alleged intermediary between the judge and favored receivers and attorneys, appears one Sam Leake, described in the articles as a faith healer.

Minority Report Adopted.

Judge Louderback was impeached by the house of representatives through the adoption of a minority report by the house judiciary committee. The majority report censured him, but voted not to impeach.

The actions of Judge Louderback had destroyed public confidence in his court and tended to cause distrust in the federal judiciary, said Chairman Sumners in concluding his statement.

The first witness was Frances C. Brown, San Francisco attorney, who described Judge Louderback's actions in the case of the Russell-Colvin company, a brokerage firm which went into receivership.

According to Brown's story, Judge Louderback dismissed the receiver agreed upon by the litigants because the receiver declined to name an attorney dictated by the judge. Subsequently, the witness stated, the judge named a receiver of his own selection, who in turn named the attorney Judge Louderback had wished to be appointed. The attorney was later allowed $51,250 and the receiver $50,000 in fees.

COURT DIRECTS BISHOP CANNON TO STAND TRIAL

Washington, D. C., May 15.—(AP)—Reminder of the heated 1928 political campaign was given to Bishop James Cannon Jr. today. It was an Appellate court's ruling that he must stand trial on charges of violating the federal corrupt practices act.

The churchman will appeal at once to the United States Supreme court. The District of Columbia Circuit Court of Appeals held that the indictments against the bishop and Miss Ada Burroughs of Richmond, Va., were valid. The bishop's lawyers will challenge the constitutionality of the corrupt practices act. The decision is expected this fall.

Bishop Cannon's organization received from E. C. Jameson, wealthy New Yorker, $65,000 to use against Alfred E. Smith in the 1928 campaign. Miss Burroughs was the churchman's secretary during that campaign and treasurer of the Virginia Anti-Smith Democratic organization.

The charge was made that the bishop violated the federal corrupt practices act by omitting to report to the clerk of the house the receipt and expenditure of the major portion of the money.

NEW GRANT PARK CAR ORDINANCE TO BE DRAFTED

After members of the city council committee on local transportation failed yesterday to agree on an ordinance providing for the construction of a viaduct over the Illinois Central tracks at Roosevelt road to carry street cars into Grant park, Ald. James B. Bowler [25th], chairman, ordered the drafting of a new measure.

The revised ordinance will be considered by the committee tomorrow morning and, if approved, will be submitted to the council on the same day. It will contain several amendments suggested yesterday by committee members as additional safeguards for the city, which is to spend $135,000 out of the traction fund on the construction work.

The 1919 lake front ordinance provided for the construction of a subway for surface cars and a viaduct for pedestrian and vehicular traffic. In an opinion given to the committee, Joseph T. Grossman, assistant corporation counsel, held that if the subway is never constructed the surface lines under the terms of this new ordinance would have the right to continue to use the proposed viaduct or the one that the south park commissioners propose to construct for pedestrians and vehicular traffic.

BOND IS BOOSTED TO BLOCK APPEAL IN FORECLOSURE

Gentzel Halts Action by Minority Bondholders.

Superior Judge Robert E. Gentzel raised a proposed $500 appeal bond to $50,000 yesterday when a group of minority bondholders in a foreclosure action sought to carry an appeal to the Appellate court against the judge's decision approving a reorganization plan for an apartment building at 28 East Delaware place.

"I'll make this bond so large that you can't appeal the case," said Judge Gentzel. "I am not going to allow this minority group to hold up the reorganization plan approved by the court. I believe it is a good plan, fair to all involved."

Last week Judge Gentzel announced a plan for the general protection of minority groups of bondholders in foreclosures.

15 Year Plan Proposed.

At the conclusion of the hearing in the East Delaware place foreclosure case recently Judge Gentzel indicated that he would permit the appeal on a $500 bond. The reorganization plan which he approved provides for the sale of the property to a group of bondholders who backed an arrangement suggested by the Chicago Title and Trust company which is the trustee for the property. The plan calls for the establishment of a liquidation trust and the management of the property for 15 years by the trustee.

The bond issue on the property amounted to $665,000, of which the minority group of bondholders own $250,000. They were represented in court by the law firm of Wolf & Love. The Chicago Title and Trust company as trustee was represented by Attorney Sidney S. Gorham.

Gorham Assails Group.

Attorney Gorham during the foreclosure hearing referred to the minority group as "racketeers who do not act in good faith." In reply he was told that the minority bondholders included Walter S. Carr, 1500 Lake Shore drive, president of the Locomotive Firebox company and brother of Robert F. Carr, school board trustee; John J. Roberts, 179 Lake Shore drive, engineer, and Joseph D. Marquis, investment broker.

When Attorney Louis F. Davis of the firm of Wolf & Love appeared yesterday, according to instruction, with the $500 appeal bond order for the judge's signature, Attorney Gorham objected. Judge Gentzel then made his ruling increasing the bond to $50,000.

Assistant Attorney General James G. Skinner yesterday went to Springfield bearing the completed drafts of three bills drawn by the legislative committee which is examining the receiverships and foreclosures with the intention of finding a cure for evils disclosed after extensive hearings here.

The bills will all be introduced today by State Representative Sinnet, who is chairman of the committee. With them will be introduced another bill which will allow the committee to continue its investigation after the end of the present session of the legislature. This is necessary, it was explained, because under present house rules all special committees die at the end of the session during which they were created. All four bills will have emergency clauses attached.

JUDGES SEEKING RE-ELECTION

GEORGE FRED RUSH

Judge George Fred Rush, Republican, is 65 years old and lives at 5719 Blackstone avenue with his wife and their three sons and one daughter. He was born in Milwaukee but has lived in Chicago since 1870. From the University of Michigan he received the degrees of A. B. in 1889 and A. M. in 1892. He studied law at Ann Arbor and the Chicago Kent Law school and was admitted to the bar in 1893. In the recent bar primaries he was refused indorsement.

For 20 years he practiced law. During this time he was master in chancery for ten years and likewise was lecturer at Northwestern university and the John Marshall Law school. He is author of "Rush on Equity Pleading and Practice" and "Rush on Cases in Equity." In the period years ago when direct primaries were the last thing in politics, he was identified with the movement for direct primary legislation.

Judge Rush was first elected to the Circuit bench in 1919, again in 1921 and a third time in 1927.

Judge Rush was under criticism in 1923 in connection with loans from Jacob Goldman, whom he had appointed to receiverships, to help pay his campaign assessments. After an inquiry, the Bar association judiciary committee reported that this unjudicial and unethical conduct has most seriously impaired his usefulness as a judge. The report stated that Judge Rush had been guilty of unethical conduct in accepting loans from Goldman, since the latter was continually appointed by Judge Rush as receiver for defunct corporations and "even if entirely without influences on his judicial acts it would indicate a lack of appreciation of the properties, and subjects Judge Rush and his motives to well merited suspicion."

No evidence, the report continued, was submitted to show that Judge Rush actually was influenced by the loans.

In 1929, Judge Rush helped to end the dog track evil when he issued an order banning the operation of the tracks. He was a first lieutenant of Troop F of the 1st Illinois cavalry, and is a member of the Hamilton club, the University club and the Hyde Park Presbyterian church.

In the recent primaries of the Chicago Bar association, Judge Rush was among the six judges who were refused indorsement for renomination. The report spoke of him as "lacking in the essential qualifications for judicial office."

NATIONAL FOREST FOR SO. ILLINOIS IN FEDERAL PLAN

Washington, D. C., May 15.—(AP)—Rep. Claude V. Parsons, Democrat of Golconda, Ill., announced today he had succeeded in having incorporated into the proposed national reforestation program provisions for the purchase of 212,000 acres of virgin timberland in southern Illinois for the purpose of converting it into a national forest.

This tract, purchased at the average of about $5 an acre, abounding in white oak, walnut, and other virgin timber, is in that section known as the Ozark foothills. A hundred thousand acres lie in the Illinois section which runs through Union, Alexander, and Jackson counties and touches both the Mississippi and Ohio rivers. A section made up of 112,000 acres lies in the Shawnee district, which runs through Johnson, Pope, Hardin, Saline, and Gallatin counties.

Both sections, Parsons said, were selected last week for federal reforestation by the conservation army.

SKOKIE MARSH SURVEY TO BE STARTED TODAY

A corps of engineers and surveyors will start making a detailed study today of the Skokie marsh, which the county board hopes to turn into a tract of woodlands and lagoons with labor furnished by the federal civilian conservation corps.

Emmett Whealan, president of the county board, has suggested to President Roosevelt that the Skokie project be included in the reforestation program. A reply to the suggestion is expected soon. The engineers making the present survey are furnished by the Emergency Relief commission in coöperation with the Western Society of Engineers.

The first Illinois company of the conservation corps got its assignment to duty yesterday. Lieut. Col. Scott Wood, who has been in charge of the Fort Sheridan camp, where forest workers are being conditioned, received orders to send the company, numbering 212 men, to Camp McCoy, Sparta, Wis.

PHONY AUTO TAG USERS TO FACE STIFFER CHARGES

Judge Thomas A. Green in the Traffic court yesterday ordered police to place a charge of receiving stolen goods against all persons arrested for displaying fictitious license plates on their automobiles. The charge of using fictitious license plates carries a maximum punishment of $25 and costs as compared to the maximum punishment of one year in jail and $1,000 fine possible on the charge of receiving stolen property.

The order was issued after Judge Green had fined Al Kleist, 24 years old, 716 North May street, the maximum of $25 and costs for using fictitious license plates.

Richard G. Lydy, Garage Operator, Asks Divorce

Richard G. Lydy, 3240 Lake Shore drive, head of the R. G. Lydy company, which operates garages in the loop, yesterday filed suit for divorce in the Superior court against Mrs. Helen Louise McGlothlin Lydy. The bill charges desertion. The Lydys were married June 15, 1917, and separated Sept. 18, 1929.

Threatened with Arrest; Sues Policemen for $50,000

Chief of Detectives William Schoemaker and Sergt. John Gepinski were named defendants yesterday in a $50,000 suit filed in the Superior court on behalf of Fenton O'Connor, 28 years old, 4551 Sheridan road. Attorney Harry A. Sewell, who filed only the praecipe of the suit, said O'Connor has been threatened with arrest several times in the last week after having been a suspect in a murder case.

Henry Ford
Dearborn, Mich.

May 15, 1933

Time and again I am told---by my own organization and by others----that I penalize myself by quality.

Friendly critics protest our putting into the Ford V-8 what they call "twenty-year steel." They say such quality is not necessary; the public does not expect it; and that the public does not know the difference anyway.

But I know the difference.

I know that the car a man sees is not the car he drives---he drives the car which the engineer sees. The car which is seen, comprises beauty of design, color and attractive accessories,---all desirable, of course. The best evidence that we think so is that they are all found on the Ford V-8.

But these are not the car. The car proper, which is the basis of all the rest, is the type of engine and its reliability; the structure of chassis and body, ruggedly durable; the long thought and experiment given to safety factors; the steady development of comfort, convenience and economy. These make the car.

A car can be built that will last two or three years. But we have never built one. We want the basic material of our car to be as dependable the day it is discarded as the day it is bought. Ford cars built 15 years ago are still on the road. It costs more to build a durable car---but two items we do not skimp are cost and conscience. A great many things could "get by"---the public would never know the difference. But we would know.

The new Ford V-8 is a car that I endorse without any hesitancy. I know what is in it. I trust our whole thirty years' reputation with it. It is even better than our previous V-8. It is larger, more rugged and mechanically a better job all round.

I readily say this in an advertisement because I know the car will back it up.

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN

Famous names kept cropping up in the plans and preparations for entertaining the court of honor of A Century of Progress. Names renowned in the world of music and art, society and diplomacy, the army and navy, business and sport.

So a survey has been made of the celebrities whom the fifty-one girls from this country and abroad will encounter in their ten days of official, educational, and social activities connected with the inaugural of the Fair.

At the top of the list, naturally, stands President Roosevelt. Mrs. Roosevelt's attendance is not yet fully assured, but her keen interest in people and events seems to make it likely that she will accompany the President.

They'll Meet Governor, Too.

In the group of other notables the girls will see are Gov. Horner, Mayor Kelly, and high officials from Washington.

The evening before the exposition opening, the court will meet President Rufus Dawes, moving spirit of the Fair, at the coronation dinner. At the same function they will meet Chicago's British consul, Lewis Bernays, and the French consul, Rene Weiller.

Still earlier, at the review in the Bal Tabarin that afternoon, they will have been presented to the board of eight judges responsible for their appearance there, and their membership in the queen's court. Judges are Mrs. R. R. McCormick, Mrs. Pauline Palmer, Mrs. Howard Ellis, Mrs. Howard Linn, Mrs. John Alden Carpenter, Mrs. William H. Mitchell, John T. McCutcheon, and Wallace Kirk. Each is distinguished for individual talent as well as for excellent taste.

Military Figures Hosts.

Soon after their ceremonial duties are over and their social round has begun, the young women will meet three outstanding military figures. Rear Admiral Wat T. Cluverius, commandant at the Great Lakes Naval Training station, will review 500 sailors with her majesty the queen one day, and Brig. Gen. F. C. Bolles will welcome them on a brief sightseeing trip to Fort Sheridan. Later, at the war show in Soldiers' field, their host will be Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, commandant of the Sixth corps area.

On a trip to Northwestern campus they will see and hear President Walter Dill Scott. On an expedition to the Board of Trade they will be welcomed by the president, Peter B. Carey. Another official welcome will be extended them by George Rossetter, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, at a luncheon at the Hotel La Salle.

One of their earliest visits will be to the Tribune Tower. The girls will be conducted on a tour of the plant and will enjoy a buffet supper.

Visit to Art Institute.

Another of their scheduled trips is to the Art institute of Chicago, where Robert Harshe, director, will tell them of the treasures in the building, home of the official art collection of A Century of Progress. Dudley Crafts Watson, lecturer, will guide them to the most famous masterpieces.

Mrs. Bessie Bragg Pierson, president of the Illinois Woman's Athletic club, will head the receiving line the evening the girls are guests of her organization at its clubhouse at Pearson street and Tower court. An entire evening will be spent in the modern skyscraper club.

Just to look at and to listen to Ethel Barrymore on the stage is an adventure in itself to most girls. But there's a probability that after seeing "An Amazing Career," her present vehicle, the court will have a further opportunity for a closeup of this noted actress.

And as for radio stars, the court will be surrounded by 'em the night they attend a studio party in the headquarters of W-G-N, atop the Drake hotel.

Accused of Dragging Dog Behind Auto; Faces Court

John Anderella, operator of a gasoline filling station at Mannheim and St. Charles roads, will be arraigned tomorrow in the Willow Springs court on charges growing out of his alleged cruelty to a stray dog. Anderella was arrested Sunday night on a charge that he tied the dog to the rear end of his automobile and dragged the animal along the road.

Piles Go Quick

No Salves—No Cutting

Thousands who have piles have not yet learned that quick and lasting relief can only be accomplished with an internal medicine. Neither salves nor suppositories remove the cause.

Bad circulation of blood in the lower bowel causes piles. The hemorrhoidal veins are flabby, the bowel walls weak—the parts almost dead. To get rid of Piles an internal medicine must be used to stimulate the circulation, drive out the thick impure blood, heal and restore the affected parts.

Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, after years of study, found a real internal Pile remedy. He called his discovery HEM-ROID and prescribed it for 1,000 patients with success in over 900 cases, and then decided every Pile sufferer, no matter how stubborn their case, might try his prescription with a money back guarantee.

HEM-ROID tablets have such a wonderful record of success that Walgreens invite you to try HEM-ROID and guarantee money refunded if it does not end your Pile misery.

NOTES OF THE WORLD'S FAIR

A steady stream of visitors filed through A Century of Progress grounds again yesterday, but today will be the last opportunity to visit the scene before the formal opening on May 27. Officials announced that the gates will be closed after tonight so that workmen may rush the construction, which has been delayed by rains, to completion.

The Minnetonka, 63 year old veteran of Northern Pacific railroad service, the first locomotive purchased for the first northern transcontinental railroad in the United States, arrived in Chicago yesterday for duty at A Century of Progress, where during the coming summer it will take its place in a pageant of transportation known as the "Wings of a Century."

The replica of the nunnery at Uxmal, in Yucatan, chosen by officials of the World's Fair and Tulane university as one of the finest specimens of ancient Mayan architecture, is nearing completion. The design, coloring, and ornaments of the building will illustrate the high state of culture developed by this ancient people, who vanished after the Spanish conquest about 1530.

Ernest L. Gilbert, chief engineer of of the Greenfield Cap and Tie company, visited the World's Fair in 1893, when he was 10 years old, accompanied by William Heikus, a blind manufacturer of brooms, at Metamora, Ill. Young Gilbert, who lived at Peoria, and Mr. Heikus spent ten days at the Fair, having the time of their lives. This year Mr. Gilbert will bring Mr. Heeikus, who is about 70 years old, to the fair.

Maj. Gen. Frank J. Parker, commanding the 6th corps area, United States army, was guest of honor at ceremonies in the Old Heidelberg inn welcoming the arrival of the famous Pantheon de la Guerre, huge world war painting. The great panorama, containing 6,000 life-size portraits, including the leading figures of the allies in the world war, will be on exhibition at the Fair.

The job of moving the largest map in the world to the fair was completed yesterday. Five trucks and six men moved the 88 sections of Sears, Roebuck & Co.'s 63x43 foot relief map of the United States to their Century of Progress exhibit building. The map was constructed according to exact scale, except in its vertical dimensions, so that mountain formations could be shown plainly. Small, movable figures will cover the surface, illustrating almost every form of productive activity in the country.

The Rt. Rev. George Craig Stewart, Episcopal bishop of Chicago, will deliver the invocation at the opening ceremonies of the fair, representing the citizenry of Chicago and the churches, according to an invitation of A Century of Progress officials accepted yesterday. President Roosevelt is expected to open the fair on May 27.

The "Battle of Gettysburg" cyclorama, regarded by many as the supreme thrill of the World's Fair of 1893, will again be on exhibition when A Century of Progress opens, Emmett W. McConnell, proprietor, announced. A large circular building is being erected on the new Midway at 26th street, to house the great canvas by Paul Phillopotteaux, which is 400 feet long and 70 feet high.

Locomotive 999, which made the famous run from Buffalo to Batavia, N. Y., at an average speed of 112 miles an hour in 1893, arrived at the Exposition grounds yesterday under its own steam. The locomotive is part of the New York Central exhibit. Trailing behind it were two flat cars carrying the crack train of 1831, named for De Witt Clinton, New York's famous governor of early railway and canal building days.

WORLD FAIR AIDS TRADE RECOVERY, BRITON ASSERTS

Railway Chiefs Dawes' Luncheon Guests.

E. J. H. Lemon, vice president of the London, Midland and Scottish railway, yesterday made the optimistic observation that the Chicago World's Fair may serve as "the catalytic agent that will resolve the depression."

Mr. Lemon attended a luncheon for railway executives given by Mr. and Mrs. Rufus C. Dawes in the trustees' room, and then toured the grounds of A Century of Progress. The Royal Scot, crack train of the London, Midland and Scottish line, will arrive here for the exposition on May 25.

"This is the most cheerful thing I have seen on this visit to the United States," said Mr. Lemon after his tour. "It is a marvelous record of the faith of industry and business in the future, not only of your own country, but of the world.

Faith Aiding Recovery.

"It was faith that pushed your great railway systems across the continent and it is faith that is bringing your great industries out of the depression and setting business on the road to recovery. That faith is concentrated in this marvelous setting—in these buildings and exhibits. I don't think I am being too optimistic when I say that this exposition will likely be the catalytic agent that will resolve this depression."

Mr. Lemon manifested particular interest in the Travel and Transport building and those of the various industries, and praised the modernistic treatment in design and coloring. He said the buildings undoubtedly would have a definite bearing on the architecture of the future.

"America has gone much further than we have in the use of modern materials for construction," he said.

Track Ready for Royal Scot.

The tracks on which the famous Royal Scot will be on exhibition for five months are ready for the train's arrival after a tour of Canada and the United States. This example of the progress of transportation will be only one of hundreds featured at the fair. Fifty horses and ten mules arrived at the grounds yesterday for the pageant "Wings of a Century," for which a cast of more than 100 persons are rehearsing in the Travel and Transport building.

The spectacle will be staged across Leif Ericson drive from the Travel and Transport building in a Greek style amphitheater, and will illustrate the development of transportation from such beginnings as the ox cart and the Indian travois to the modern air and ocean liners and railway trains. The blue back drop will serve as the sea and lighting effects will present the appearance of ships coming in.

MASSACHUSETTS AIDS IDLE, TAKES NO PART IN FAIR

Boston, Mass., May 15.—[Special.]—The Massachusetts house of representatives today held that any funds it had over governmental expenses should go to the relief of the state's unemployed and, as a consequence, Massachusetts will not be officially represented at A Century of Progress exposition in Chicago.

A bill, calling for the appointment of a commission of five and appropriation of $25,000 for a state exhibit, was introduced by Minority Leader Leo Birmingham of Boston. He urged its adoption.

EX-TEACHER'S 100 YEAR BIRTH FETE IS DELAYED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pontiac, Ill., May 15.—[Special.]—Mrs. Annis N. Bemis, central Illinois' oldest living ex-school teacher and pioneer settler of Livingston county, celebrated today her 100th birthday anniversary.

A reunion of the members of the last class of pupils she taught in the little white schoolhouse near her home at Rome was to have been held today. Impassable highways caused postponement until tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock. At that hour the seven surviving members of that class will greet her at the old schoolhouse. They will sit at the same desks they had as pupils.

As Miss Annis Curtis, Mrs. Bemis was born in Litchfield, Conn., May 15, 1833. She came to Livingston county in the early sixties to teach. That job was obtained for her by her brother, Rodney Curtis, who had preceded her west by several years. Following her marriage to Mr. Bemis their home was established on a farm near the old school.

Mrs. Bemis ran it after the death of her husband. She takes a keen interest in national events, operates her farm according to modern methods and attributes her long life to the fact that she has been a consistent and faithful reader of the Bible.

Those of her former pupils who will occupy their old desks in her former school Tuesday morning will be: Charles Quaife, 80; George Camp, 79; M. Whalen, 79; Ole C. Hamreway, 76; Ole O. Hamreway, 74; O. A. Erickson, 75, and the baby of the class, Charles Erickson, 71.

DRY DRINKS TOO MUCH EVIDENCE; CAPTIVE FREED

The prohibition department came in for criticism yesterday as Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson freed Harry Voller, manager of the now closed Planet Mars Cafe, 188 West Randolph street, of charges of violating the prohibition law.

The club was raided on Dec. 30, 1931 and Voller and three waiters, Ted Fay, Henry Dorfner, and Henry Allen, were arrested. Prohibition Agent George B. Whitlock testified yesterday that he purchased five highballs in the club and noted that several patrons were intoxicated.

"This agent was in no condition to say whether the other customers were intoxicated after drinking as much as he did," Judge Wilkerson said.

The only evidence offered by the government was a bottle containing several ounces of whisky. This, according to testimony, was seized after an exciting chase in which a waiter dropped and broke two pints of whisky. Allen, the waiter who made the sale to the agent, was fined $50.

SPECIAL NOTICE

TO THOSE WHO HAVE TALKED TO US ABOUT A LEONARD ELECTRIC REFRIGERATOR AT THE $98 PRICE

In the face of rising commodity prices, we feel it necessary to advise all prospective purchasers of new Leonard Electric refrigerators that retail prices can remain at their present low level only so long as we can buy from the factory at the prices now in effect.

Daily news reports make it clear that the future price trend depends upon factors entirely beyond our control. It is impossible to predict, with any certainty, even a week ahead.

Already, suppliers of raw materials are refusing to guarantee their prices for future delivery. We have no assurance from the Leonard factory that the present schedule of wholesale prices can be maintained.

We cannot therefore guarantee, for any definite period in advance, the Leonard prices announced on March 21st of this year. We make this statement to protect ourselves against any possible misunderstanding in regard to prices quoted up to this time.

★ ★ ★

UNTIL some increase becomes necessary—as the result of higher materials costs—our present drastically reduced prices will remain in effect.

We are still able to offer you a standard 1933 Leonard Electric at $98, installed—a rock-bottom price for Leonard quality, and an outstanding value in all refrigeration history.

This is not a special model "built down" to the price. It's exactly the same beautiful, roomy, long-lived and dependable 1933 Leonard that was recently introduced with spectacular success at a much higher price.

It is of Leonard quality throughout—backed by 52 years' experience in household refrigeration. The cabinet is of one-piece steel, finished in hard, lustrous, non-fading Leonard lacquer. The interior is of famous Leonard one-piece porcelain—clean as a china dish.

It has an all-porcelain cooling unit, table top and broom-room legs, Chill-om-eter with 8 freezing speeds, Steady Kold Defroster (refrigerates while it defrosts). There's plenty of shelf room, and exceptional ice capacity.

Larger Leonard Electrics are available at correspondingly low prices. They offer many great convenience features, including the LEN-A-DOR (a touch of the toe and the door swings open), telescoping and sliding shelves, dairy basket and automatic electric lights.

Why wait longer to enjoy the advantages of electric refrigeration in your home? See the new Leonards to-day—10 beautiful models (4 all-porcelain)—at the showroom of the nearest dealer. You can buy any Leonard on a convenient, easy payment plan.

JAPANESE CLOSE IN UPON PEIPING FROM TWO SIDES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, May 15.—While one Japanese force attacked Nanshengchuang, 50 miles northeast of Peiping, another was advancing rapidly on the city from the east today. The latter force, a division under Lieut. Gen. Masayemon Sakamoto, passed through Fengjun and approached Yuilen, which is about half way on a straight line from Lulung, on the Lwan river, to Peiping.

Tungchow, 13 miles east of Peiping, is in the line of the advance and today 30 American missionaries there were advised by the United States legation to seek safety elsewhere. The missionaries are connected with the American Board of Missions. Wealthy Chinese are fleeing from Peiping to Tientsin.

Chinese troops, which have lost 3,000 men in three days' fighting around Nantienmen, north of Peiping, are retreating.

Prepare to Seize Government.

Large numbers of so-called Manchukuo civil officials, consisting chiefly of Japanese employed by the Changchu [Hsinking] government, have arrived in Tientsin, apparently in preparation to taking over the administration following the defeat of the Chinese garrison. The Manchukuoans brought along large supplies of uniforms and thousands of Manchukuo flags.

The Japanese aircraft tender Notoro, which has been off Tangku for several days with 30 to 40 planes, has entered the mouth of the Pei river leading to Tientsin.

Gen. Yu Hsueh-chung, Chinese commander at Tientsin, is trying to prevent entrance into the Tientsin zone by the Chinese troops retreating from Luanchow, which the Japanese are reported to have captured today. Gen. Yu has reiterated his determination to defend Tientsin, but his position is precarious due to the presence within the Japanese concession of a Japanese garrison of more than 3,000 men, thus sandwiching Gen. Yu's troops in the event that another Japanese force advances on Tientsin from the sea.

Break Russian Trade Talks.

Chinese opinion today flared up over the soviet Russian offer to sell the Chinese Eastern Railway of Manchuria to Japan. All negotiations for a trade treaty between Lo Wen-kan, Chinese foreign minister, and Dimitri Bogomolov, soviet ambassador, have been postponed indefinitely. A foreign office spokesman said they will not be resumed until the Chinese Eastern railway issue is settled.

Chinese papers claim that China is likely to retaliate against Russia with a boycott on soviet oil which has made serious inroads on the Chinese market in the last two years. Soviet oil, which sells at a considerably lower price than British and American oil, is marketed through a Chinese company known as the Kwanghwa Petroleum company. The company, it is estimated, controls 20 per cent of the Chinese market.

The Shanghai University association and the Chinese Bankers' association today passed resolutions denouncing the Russian offer to sell the railway to Japan as illegal and immoral.

Japanese Cabinet Man Quits.

TOKIO, May 15.—(AP)—Hachiro Arita, vice minister for foreign affairs, resigned today, ostensibly because of illness. There have been rumors of disagreements between him and Viscount Yasyua Uchida, foreign minister. Uchida indicated that Mamoru Shigemitsu, former minister to China, would be appointed to the post.

CUBAN TROOPS FIGHT INSURGENT BANDS IN TWO PROVINCES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, May 15.—Guerrilla warfare between President Machado's troops and bands of revolutionaries is raging tonight in the southern portion of Santa Clara and western section of Camaguey provinces. Sixteen rebels and two soldiers are known to have been killed in two battles.

Military authorities in Camaguey province reported a clash with 100 insurgents on the outskirts of Moron. One corporal and one private were killed. Three soldiers were wounded. Dispatches said fifteen rebels were slain and twenty wounded.

President Machado tonight ordered the immediate mobilization of warships to guard the coast and prevent the landing of expeditionary forces which are expected to arrive from Mexico. The cruisers Cuba and Patria and the patrol vessel Enrique Villuendas are being loaded with munitions and troops in Havana harbor. They will sail for Neuvitas, Camaguey, where it is believed the next expedition is scheduled to make an attempt to land.

TROTZKY OFFERS TO AID RUSSIA IN ITS TROUBLES

ISTANBUL, Turkey, May 15.—(AP)—In view of "interior difficulties and external dangers now facing the U. S. S. R.," Leon Trotzky, former bolshevist leader now in exile here, today asserted his willingness to serve Russia in any manner consistent with his own principles.

His statement was evoked by a Paris report that negotiations were under way for his return to Moscow. The report was denied by Russian officials. Trotzky expressed the opinion that the report may have resulted from a letter he wrote March 15 to the communist party's political bureau at Moscow.

"In this letter," he said, "I repeated that we are fighting the Stalinist bureaucracy policies, but we remain entirely at the disposition of the U. S. S. R. and ready to do anything in its interests provided we conserve the right to defend our opinions within the party statutes and the soviet constitution.

"Interior difficulties and external dangers now facing the U. S. S. R. make me deem it necessary to repeat the above declaration. The internal difficulties are due to the erroneous leadership of the Stalinist bureaucracy and are not due to the economic methods. The foreign dangers are Japanese militarism, which obviously has lost its head, and Fascist Germany."

13 NATIONS PLAN ARMS EMBARGO ON CHACO FOES

League Maps Pressure on Paraguay, Bolivia.

GENEVA, May 15.—(AP) Six countries are ready to place an embargo on arms shipments to Paraguay and Bolivia, principals in the Gran Chaco war, without reservation. Seven other nations are ready for similar action providing certain other states join.

This was learned tonight after a secret session of the league of nations council, at which an attempt was made to bring about peaceful settlement of the conflict.

The names of the nations involved in the agreements were not disclosed.

Backers of the idea of appointing a commission to define the exact questions for arbitration, with acceptance beforehand of such a commission by the two principals, advocate giving large powers to the body for supervision of an armistice. They urge an examination of the entire dispute at the scene of action.

Bolivia Balks at Arbitration.

The secret meeting followed a public and special session at which the Bolivian representative blamed Paraguay for the war and the Paraguayan representative blamed Bolivia. Each asked that the league invoke its penalties against the other.

League officials recognized the conflict, the first officially declared war with which the Geneva organization has been faced, as a supreme test of the league's usefulness.

Paraguay definitely accepted arbitration, but Bolivia raised conditions, saying it was necessary to know beforehand the exact nature of the Paraguayan claims to the Chaco.

After the council's secret session the question was turned over to a committee headed by Sean Lester of the Irish Free State. The council will remain adjourned until Wednesday.

Claim 100 Bolivians Slain.

ASUNCION, Paraguay, May 15.—(AP)—The ministry of war announced today that Paraguayan troops defeated a Bolivian detachment, killing 100 men, in the Zenteno section of the Gran Chaco. The enemy force was fleeing toward Chanar, the communique said, after considerable war material and a large number of prisoners had been captured.

Claim Paraguayans Driven Back.

LA PAZ, Bolivia, May 15.—(AP)—Paraguayans were forced to abandon fortifications in the Gondra sector of the Gran Chaco battlefront today, Bolivian reports asserted. Numerous dead were left behind by the Paraguayans, according to the reports.

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, May 15.—Although friends in touch with the political situation in New York are urging him to return there immediately, former Mayor Jimmy Walker denied today that he had booked passage homeward on the Ile de France. Walker still insists he intends to return to Cannes, where he has a villa, before going to America.

"I do not say, however, that I may not have reasons within a few days to change my mind," he said.

It was learned today that the former mayor has been keeping in close touch with events in New York by trans-Atlantic telephone communications with Tammany chiefs. He also has been conferring here with friends from New York, which was his real reason for coming to Paris after his honeymoon at Vichy.

SUICIDE OF WIFE OF ARTIST LAID TO DERANGEMENT

Suicide while temporarily deranged because of ill health was the verdict of a coroner's jury yesterday at the inquest into the death of Mrs. Frieda Anisfeld, 48 years old, wife of Boris Anisfeld, artist and teacher at the Chicago Art Institute. Mrs. Anisfeld plunged to her death early yesterday from a window of their studio apartment on the sixteenth floor of the Devonshire hotel, 19 East Ohio street.

Miss Marochka Anisfeld, 23 year old daughter of the couple, testified that her mother had been suffering from melancholia and had acted depressed. She had spent much time, she said, gazing out of the window from which she plunged. Anisfeld was not requested to testify. Detectives Cornelius Moynahan and T. W. O'Neill, who were summoned to the apartment after the tragedy, said that both Anisfeld and his daughter had been locked in their rooms by Mrs. Anisfeld before she plunged to her death.

Anisfeld and his wife were married in Russia 28 years ago and were refugees from the Red revolution. Anisfeld, an artist of note, has designed and painted ballet and opera scenery here and abroad. He first painted scenery for the Chicago Opera company in 1921.

NEW ZEALAND TO PUT 10,000 IDLE ON "OWN FARMS"

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

AUCKLAND, N. Z., May 15.—First steps in a campaign to place about 10,000 idle heads of families upon farms of their own have been taken by the government with the appointment of a board to administer the new scheme.

The undertaking, known as the "small farm plan," has already received legislative approval. It aims, as a first objective, to provide 5,000 men with families with the chance of becoming self-supporting farmers.

In this land hungry country, where expansion of farming has been checked by land prices that soared as high as $500 an acre, the plan promises liberation to a class of worker which never has had a fair deal. The history of landholding has been the aggregation of estates into the hands of a few rich families in place of the policy of two generations ago. This policy sought to split up the holdings and to encourage farm laborers with ambitions to become landowners themselves.

Twelve thousand idle men already have filed applications with the new board for the opportunity of taking up land.

The small farms' movement is based on the appeal of Joseph G. Coates, minister of employment and virtual head of the government. The appeal, placarded in every railroad station, is addressed to farmers. It tells them plainly that many of them own more land than they are able to work. It asks them to coöperate with the government to solve the unemployment problem by renting land under the new plan. Failure to do so will result in the government confiscating the land in the location it is needed.

Ten year leases will be granted idle men who impress the small farms board with their ability of becoming farmers. Government aid will enable them to purchase stock, farm implements, and build homes.

Not Case of Pioneering.

At the same time the small holdings, placed in rich country, will not need much work to bring them into shape. It will not be a case of pioneering in wild country with bad communications and high costs, which has marked all previous state land settlement schemes.

At the end of four years the new settlers may purchase their farms. The payment of rent to the farmers, who hand over the land for settlement, is guaranteed by the unemployment board. This board is the central state authority which administers the $20,000,000 fund raised annually by taxation to assist the idle.

Even before the board began to function, the plan was under way. In the past few months 750 families have been settled on small farms. Though they have neither money nor much progress to report, it shows that they are well established and satisfied with their conditions.

In addition to the idle other persons believed suitable for farming will be given an opportunity to take up sections under the plan to relieve unemployment.

The fact that the new farmers can be established at very little more than the cost of maintaining them on works of doubtful value under the idle relief scheme is an important factor in the new plan.

Baby Trout and Salmon to Be Planted in Lake Today

Floyd F. Young, director of the Lincoln park zoo, this morning will supervise the planting of a million and a half baby salmon and lake trout 12 miles out in Lake Michigan. The fish will be taken in a city tug which will leave Belmont harbor at 10 o'clock. They were hatched in the Lincoln park hatcheries from eggs laid in November. Mr. Young said that the planting of the large number of fish is expected to assure propagation. The United States Bureau of Fisheries is coöperating.

COUNCIL PASSES CONSOLIDATED WARRANT PLAN

Toman Forecasts Action to Cut Cab Fares.

The city council yesterday passed an ordinance suggested by City Controller Szymczak providing that in the future the city shall issue consolidated tax warrants, instead of selling warrants against separate funds.

The tax levies against which the consolidated warrants will be issued are those of firemen's pension, municipal tuberculosis sanitarium, public library, city corporate, and bond and interest funds. The other two city tax funds, those for police and municipal employes' pensions, have had little need of tax warrant sales to meet their obligations.

The ordinance goes into effect immediately, and any future sales of 1932 or subsequent tax warrants will be made under its provisions. The consolidated warrants will be more convenient for buyers to use in payment of taxes, since they will pay a larger proportion of the tax bill with the necessity of presenting only one warrant in place of five.

Slight Handicap to Pay Rolls.

They will also improve the city's facilities for meeting its bond and interest requirements, but at somewhat of an expense to pay rolls. Heretofore, it was possible to sell corporate, library, sanitarium, or pension fund warrants and use the entire proceeds for pay roll or pension purposes. Now, out of every warrant which is sold, approximately one-seventh must be set aside for bond and interest payments.

The council yesterday approved Mayor Kelly's appointment of Dr. David A. Jones to be city physician. Dr. Jones held the post under the Dever administration. It has been vacant for some time.

Ald. John Coughlin [1st], who was authorized in a resolution last week to set the date for "Straw Hat day," announced that he had fixed Saturday as that date.

Indicates Cut in Cab Rates.

A resolution by Ald. Edwin F. Meyer [45th], calling upon police to cease the arrests of independent taxicab drivers pending passage by the council of a new taxicab ordinance, brought the statement from Ald. John Toman [22d], chairman of the joint subcommittee on taxicabs, that his committee will meet Friday and probably will recommend that the ordinance set lower rates for cabs. The decrease, he indicated, probably will not amount to more than a reduction of the initial flag pull charge from 25 to 20 cents. Ald. Meyer's resolution was referred to the joint subcommittee.

The council passed another resolution by Ald. Meyer, recommending to the legislature that it pass house bill 712, giving the board of education power to dismiss teachers living outside Chicago.

Act to Keep Phone Attorneys.

The public utilities committee presented a resolution, which was deferred and published, ordering the corporation counsel to continue the employment of Attorneys Benjamin F. Goldstein and George I. Haight as special counsel in the telephone rate case, in which Federal Judge Wilkerson recently ruled against the city.

Under the arrangement made with Attorney Goldstein and Haight, they will be paid only in case the city wins a final victory in the case. In that case, the council was told, it is likely that the court will order that the attorneys' fees be taken from $19,000,000 in potential refunds which the telephone company has set aside pending decision of the case.

Asks School Bond Issue.

The council passed a resolution by Ald. Oscar F. Nelson [46th] requesting the school board to draft legislation permitting it to sell bonds to retire its outstanding 1929 tax warrants, which tax collections to date have fallen approximately $9,000,000 short of redeeming.

PAVE WAY TO ASK DEATH IN TRIAL OF WIFE SLAYER

Four jurors qualified for the death penalty were accepted yesterday in the Criminal court of Judge Philip L. Sullivan to try A. Robert Raymun, 40 years old, former student at the University of Minnesota who turned speakeasy owner, for the murder of his wife, Leola. The woman was shot to death by Raymun on Feb. 2, 1932, in the room the couple occupied at the City Hall Square hotel.

The state charged that Raymun deliberately shot and killed his wife as she lay sleeping. Defense Attorneys James M. Burke and George Crane held that the shooting was accidental. They said that Raymun had taken the pistol from beneath a pillow to frighten his wife into returning jewelry he had given her in more prosperous days.

RIVER PAGEANT WILL DEDICATE THE WATERWAY

Indians to Take Part with Roosevelt.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

A water pageant depicting the days of the early French explorers and missionaries is to be part of the ceremonial in dedication of the Illinois waterway and the lakes-to-gulf water route on May 27. President Roosevelt is to dedicate the waterway and open A Century of Progress on the same day.

Plans for the waterway celebration were announced yesterday by the organization committee. The Chicago river at the Michigan avenue bridge is to be the scene. The waterway dedication is to take place in the morning before the opening of the World's Fair.

Indians Will Take Part.

From the deck of the training ship Wilmette, docked east of the bridge, President Roosevelt is to deliver his address formally opening the waterway. Guns on the training ship will give a 21 gun salute for the President while Indians from Wisconsin and Michigan paddle along the stream in canoes.

With the Indians will be a group in the roles of Joliet, Marquette, La Salle and Tonti, and their entourages. A man taking the part of Louis Joliet will make an address to the President, recalling the earliest prophecies of a water link joining the great lakes with the Illinois and Mississippi rivers.

Four submarine chasers will lead a parade of river craft. J. C. Alderman, of the Great Lakes Dredge and Dock company, in charge of the water parade, says more boats than have ever assembled on the river before will participate.

The Committees in Charge.

Congressman Frank Reid of Aurora has been named chairman of the organization committee by Speaker Henry T. Rainey. Among others on the committee are William E. Hull of Peoria, former congressman; Lachlan Macleay of the Mississippi Valley association; E. N. Nockels, secretary of the Chicago Federation of Labor; Ald. W. A. Rowan [10th], and Congressman P. H. Moynihan.

The chairman of the pageant committee is Mrs. C. N. Goodwin, assisted by Rear Admiral Wat T. Cluverius, commandant of Great Lakes naval training station; Harold L. Ickes, secretary of the interior; Dr. Otto L. Schmidt, president of the Chicago Historical society; Mrs. Wayne Chatfield-Taylor, and Wallace Rice, pageant writer.

Col. Dan I. Sultan, United States district engineer, and Capt. Edward A. Evers, commander of the naval reserve, are in charge of all river arrangements.

JURY WILL PASS TODAY ON MEANS' BABY CASE FATE

Criminal? Or Sleuth Duped by Kidnapers?

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 15.—[Special]—Is Gaston B. Means a "base criminal who took advantage of mother love" when he made Mrs. Evlyn Walsh McLean a futile and, some say, fantastic promise a year ago to return to her the kidnaped Lindbergh baby in exchange for $100,000 which she gave him to give to the kidnapers? Or is he a "super sleuth" who was duped even as Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was duped when he authorized the payment of a $50,000 ransom over a cemetery wall?

Jury of 7 Women, 5 Men.

A jury of seven women and five men, sitting here in the District Supreme court, will have to decide tomorrow when it renders a verdict in the case of Means and his co-defendant, the chess champion, Norman T. Whitaker, charged with conspiracy to defraud Mrs. Walsh McLean of $35,000 in connection with the case.

Jekyll or a Hyde?

This afternoon the jury heard United States Attorney Leo A. Rover paint Means as "the modern Baron Munchausen" and such a "dyed-in-the-wool liar that if he ever told the truth he'd lie to get out of it." And it heard Attorney J. William Tomlinson, counsel for Means, picture his client as a faithful detective who followed down every clew, only to be as surprised as Mrs. McLean when these clews proved false.

Reviews Long "Pursuit."

Rover reviewed the pursuit, now hopeful, now helpless, which Means on the stand swore he had made of the Lindbergh baby from a few days after it was stolen from its nursery March 1, 1932, to a few days before it was found dead in a ditch May 12, 1932. He retraced Means' pageant of promises from Washington to Aiken, S. C.; down to El Paso, Tex., back to Aiken, and home to Washington.

He made much of the Means alibi that he handed over Mrs. McLean's $100,000 to a mysterious man who had waved a red light on a bridge.

HELD AS DRY LAW VIOLATOR.

Paul Alexander Martin, 3803 Elmwood avenue, colored, was held to the grand jury in bond of $1,000 yesterday by United States Commissioner Walker on charges of prohibition violation.

U. I. TRUSTEES OPEN RECORDS TO LEGISLATORS

The seven members of the board of trustees of the University of Illinois unanimously adopted a resolution yesterday inviting the finance committee of the Illinois house of representatives to examine records of the board's management of university finances and its methods of operation. The action was taken at a meeting in the Palmer house.

A bill introduced in the legislature last Friday provides that the board be required to turn fees and operating funds over to the state. Concerning this bill the trustees' resolution said:

"The bill if enacted will seriously affect the operations of the university. Therefore, we request that the investigating committee make full and complete inquiry into the methods adopted by the board for carrying on its business operations and for safeguarding of funds in its custody to the end that the action on this bill may be in accordance with the best interests of the state."

The committee investigating the bill will hear evidence concerning the construction of a $200,000 residence for the president of the university, and allegations that university funds were not properly secured against loss through bank failures.

THE PROFESSOR MAKES A WORLD.

If William James, the great American philosopher, were alive he probably would ask his young friend Prof. Rexford G. Tugwell what he hoped to find in his machine plan of society as the moral equivalent of work. James was pretty sure that the human breed would have to find some moral equivalent for war and might find it in work. Now Mr. Tugwell says we must accept the certainty of a workless world. The professor may be right, but the future of this society is not without its terror. Work has been the greatest blessing forced upon the breed. Where it is regarded as a curse deterioration of society is inexorable.

Prof. Tugwell, as assistant secretary of agriculture, the most sovietized branch of the American government, gets a break which has come to few philosophers. Very few of them, from Plato to Lenin, ever found the golden opportunity of combining commissar and sage. Lenin did, and conditions in Russia argue strongly for keeping the philosopher in the cloister. There he possibly may light the way without setting fire to the house.

It may be forgotten, but it is true, that the aboriginal American also had a machine. His labor saving device was his wife. His leisure was given him by her work. The Iroquois warrior had about everything that Mr. Tugwell's machine age will force upon the white successor of the Iroquois. The dignified redskin hoed no corn, hewed no wood, and drew no water. The women did the work and men took their ease. The men could hunt without loss of face, but hunting, oratory, and war were the only activities permitted in their noble estate.

Of these activities the one affording the greatest relief from boredom was war. Consequently it became an art and a pastime. The Iroquois was the most accomplished artist and he spread his terror from the rapids of the St. Lawrence to the falls of the Ohio, having nothing to do which amused him more than taking scalps and watching his women pile the fagots around the victim at the stake.

Industrialism, engaging human hands, has made it unnecessary for men to fight, either of economic or esthetic necessity. It is true that modern life has provided leisure with some attractions which the aboriginal American lacked. Man has the movies, many highly organized sports, and greater pleasure in locomotion and change of scene. But, extensive as these attractions are, Mr. Tugwell's school of philosophy must use considerable midnight electricity before a moral equivalent of work will be found. It may well be that absorption of the economic consequences of the machine will be easier than absorption of the moral consequences? It is to be hoped that Mr. Tugwell and his associates in the professorial soviet will really put their minds to this problem before they hustle the country into a planned society which makes the highest ambition of the largest number of citizens to twiddle their fingers. The professors are bright and they may have the answer. It is to be hoped that they have it already in the book.

THE WAYS OF REACTION.

Of tyranny it may be said, as the Breton peasant remarked upon the chameleon, the more it changes the more it is the same thing. In the new Fascist régime they are burning books which express ideas held to be inimical to Fascist ideals and subversive of German national welfare as it is conceived by Herr Hitler and his collaborators. The suppression of thought by force is an old experiment, and, though happily it has never been successful, it is tried again and again. Like prohibition in the United States and elsewhere, it doesn't work and in fact intensifies the very forces it attempts to destroy. Helen Keller, who wrote one of the books consigned to the flames, sensibly remarks that you cannot burn ideas, but that will not quench the flames of reforming zeal. Savonarola had a bonfire in Florence, but the works he burned are still available, although time has done more to cover them with oblivion than the impassioned priest.

The bolshevik tyranny is doing a more thorough job. It is educating a generation in communist ideas, a generation that is given no access to the facts of the outside world and no opportunity to examine freely or discuss its doctrines or institutions. This is an important phenomenon of the present day and will have important consequences in the future. In the meantime it entrenches the soviet régime in power and this is undoubtedly the major consideration in the suppression of book and press in Germany.

But suppression of thought in Germany is a very different matter from suppression in Russia. Germany is next door to the freest and most advanced countries of Europe and bootlegging will be relatively easy. Even more important is the fact that while bolshevism started with a clean slate so far as the Russian masses were concerned and could write upon it what it liked, the German people are literate and have been a part of European culture for centuries. Suddenly to deprive them of the right to think and to have access to the general thought of mankind is an effort fortunately foredoomed to failure. The attempt costs the Hitler régime loss of credit in the opinion of other civilized peoples, and within Germany, it would seem, will create a reaction likely to discount any advantages the régime may reasonably expect from it in the immediate internal situation. But as it is a matter of partisan emotion rather than of reason, such consideration will have little weight at this stage. It is of less moment in Germany than the taking over or suppression of the opposition press by Fascist agents. If this results in the temporary repression of dissent and momentarily strengthens the Fascist régime in power, the reaction outside of Germany certainly deserves serious consideration even by the most militant government in view of the importance to it and to Germany of a favorable sentiment in Germany's international relations. The approval of Mussolini is likely to be offset by the revival of distrust of Germany among other neighbors and in America.

Hitler's recent utterances indicate that he has become aware of this, but even if he were more disposed to moderation than his past course of action and utterances indicate he must take account of the forces of popular passion he has exploited so masterfully for his own and his associates' success. In any case he has in soviet Russia and in Fascist Italy examples of successful tyranny which undoubtedly are encouraging.

The war and its aftermath have put a premium on strong government everywhere and only the oldest and best established popular governments have stood out against political reaction from parliamentarism. Even there free institutions and principles are showing impairment which may be the beginning of their end.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE GOVERNORS' CONFERENCE.

The governors of 23 states have been summoned to Chicago for a conference whose object is to injure Chicago. The governors are expected to devise ways and means of bringing about the ratification of the St. Lawrence treaty in its present form with its ruinous limitation on the amount of water which may be used in the Illinois waterway. Reducing the diversion will not make the great lakes any more useful than they are today nor will it make the St. Lawrence waterway, when built, any more useful; but the usefulness of the Illinois waterway and the Mississippi waterway will be gravely impaired. Not even a meeting of 23 governors can make sense or equity out of that.

There is no slightest doubt that Chicago benefits from the diversion for the lakes-to-gulf waterway. No one in his senses would deny it. But to conclude from that fact, as some of the governors seem inclined to do, that the benefit which Chicago may derive will injure their states is patent nonsense. How does it injure a Wisconsin dairyman if there are more consumers of his milk in Chicago than at present? How does it injure a Grand Rapids furniture worker if the mahogany he uses comes up from New Orleans at less cost and the furniture he makes is shipped to Memphis at less cost?

There is a fixed opinion, inculcated by years of intensive propaganda, that the gulf waterway is a commercial menace to the lake states and cities. There is no evidence worth mentioning which supports this view. There is also a fixed opinion, similarly inculcated, that the St. Lawrence seaway will be a great boon to the commerce of the states tributary to the great lakes. There was some truth in this contention as long as the northwest was a great exporter of wheat and other grains, but our northwest is no longer to be reckoned with in the world markets for grain. Canada is a grain exporter still, but our northwest has gone into a more lucrative diversified agriculture. Cheaper transportation from Europe by way of the St. Lawrence will not help but may actually work an injury to our northwestern farmers, particularly to dairy farmers. With the present administration preparing to reduce tariffs, is it to Minnesota's interest, or Wisconsin's, to enable foreign cheese and butter to be landed in the great consuming centers along the lakes at less cost than at present?

OUR PTOLEMIES AND OUR PYRAMIDS.

Quite unintentionally, no doubt, Secretary Ickes has done Mr. Hoover an imperishable favor in removing his name from that monster monument of corruption, Boulder dam.

It has been the practice of the beneficiaries of such nefarious projects to woo presidential acquiescence by the flattery that their existence will be perpetuated in the masonry of these pyramids.

Thus, if Secretary Ickes' action becomes a precedent, one of the principal causes of our national bankruptcy will have been scotched.

Of all the evils we suffer under, public building is the most pernicious. With hardly an exception, our public buildings have been badly located, extravagantly designed, and inefficiently built. Self-advertising demonstration of the cause of the depression!

WELCOME RETURN TO CIVIL CONTROL.

[Des Moines Register.]

No one ought to regret that conditions in the Iowa counties recently under martial law are such that the state officials feel able to restore civil control this week. It has not been a happy incident for the state from any point of view.

But accepting the imperativeness of some adequate authority, the rule of the military has been conducted with reasonable good sense. If the arrests seemed to some people ruthless and wholesale at first, those arrested appear at least to have been treated decently and in most cases to have been released as rapidly as the investigation would permit. There may be some regrettable exceptions. Martial law, after all, is martial law, and too much need not be expected of it. It is a none too desirable last resort in any event.

As for the prosecution of those implicated in the rioting, that, too, is being planned wisely. The prisoners are to be given prompt hearings before district judges from other parts of the state. They are to be released on bond. And the trials will be delayed until June, making for a maximum of calm and dispassionate consideration. Those who are beyond question implicated in the rioting and contempt of court cannot complain as to that. That all of them must have the fullest opportunity for defense should go without saying.

Meanwhile it is appropriate that a few troops remain as a reserve force to insure perfect order. If in a brief while even those can be withdrawn, as is very likely, so much the better. It is up to the civil authorities to meet their responsibilities so well from now on that the iron hand of the military need not be called upon.

IT'S EPIDEMIC!

Chicago, May 15.—Mr. I. Needa Drink, one of our most highly esteemed citizens, was bitten by a rattlesnake while walking along the Boul. Mich. yesterday near Grant park. Under the new government regulations permitting physicians to prescribe unlimited quantities of whisky, wine and other forms of liquor for thirty days the first physician called gave Mr. I. Needa Drink prescriptions permitting him to buy four quarts of whisky as an antidote for his snake bite. Immediately thirty people who had crowded around the injured man claimed to have been bitten by the same snake and police reserves had to be called to disperse the crowd.

New York, N. Y., May 15.—Over nineteen thousand people were bitten by rattlesnakes on Fifth avenue, Broadway and Wall street, today. Physicians today were kept busy morning, noon and night writing prescriptions. All the police reserves in New York were busy all day trying to keep back an immense crowd of people struggling to break into the snake cage in the Bronx zoo. Dr. Feedem Pills of Madison avenue was lynched by an excited mob this afternoon for coming out with a signed statement in an evening newspaper that whisky was of no effect in case of snake bites.

Louisville, Ky., May 15.—Sam Slicker was arrested today on complaint of five physicians who charged he was causing them writer's cramp in their efforts to write enough whisky prescriptions to fill the demand on the part of people who claimed to have been bitten by a pet rattlesnake owned by Slicker. It seems that the snake was a harmless garter snake to the tail of which Slicker had tied a child's rattle. People desiring to be bit by the snake had to pay thirty-five cents a bite, four for a dollar, and Slicker was doing a rushing business. When the police arrived an immense crowd of people was outside the house and Mr. Slicker was hoarse from telling them to form line to the right and wait their turn.

St. Louis, Mo., May 15.—A frenzied multitude besieged the Mastodon Conglomerated circus at the fair grounds today. The ticket sellers, barkers, tent men and special police attached to the circus were all trampled ruthlessly under foot as the maddened crowd made a rush for the animal tent, everybody trying to squeeze into the wagon containing a South American boa constrictor. Tonight it was reported that the physicians had written over seventy-two thousand six hundred and ninty-three prescriptions for whisky to be used as an antidote for people who claimed to have been bitten by the great serpent.

I have grown tired of traveling over highways
That hurry blindly on from town to town;
Today I shall seek out sequestered byways
That loiter leisurely up hill and down.

The paved roads are but city streets, extending
The taint and hardness of the city's strife,
The byways have beginning not, nor ending,—
Mysterious, vast and vague are they as Life.

They slip away, the byways, through the shadows
Of forests steeped in green, primeval gloom;
Or lazily meander through broad meadows,
All redolent with dewy blade and bloom.

From town to town the racing highways go, where
The tumult and the struggle never cease:
I love the little lanes that lead to nowhere,
But on and on in quietude and peace.

There are too many traveling the highways,—
Hitch-hikers, tourists hastening to their doom—

Well, we were in Havana just as the national capitol, erected by order of President Machado and which is an imitation of our capitol at Washington and of forty-eight of the state capitols, was completed. We looked at it for a long time and then going back to the hotel we loaded up the old forty-five and waited behind a curtain of the hotel window until midnight hoping Mr. Machado would pass.

Her mouth is irony and weeping, love and compassion.
She is a dream men weave within the soft-toned hours of night.

You feel that some one was born at her entrance,
Lived magnificently while she stayed,

GOOD AND BAD AIR.

No one has a satisfactory answer to the question, what makes bad air bad, or to its companion, why is fresh air so invigorating. An old time theory was that the body threw off poisonous gases. This was called crowd poison. The belief had to be abandoned. Another was that carbonic acid was the harmful element in bad air. The Black Hole of Calcutta experience was offered in proof of that argument. It, too, had to be given up.

Today, so far from abusing carbonic acid, physicians now keep it on tap to use in the treatment of some disorders.

Another theory was that carbon monoxide was the harmful element. That gas is very harmful, it is true, but it is not present except where it is produced in some unusual way, as around a poor stove or an automobile exhaust.

The idea that has most adherents now is that the comfort and discomfort, the good and the harm, is the result of what is called air condition—that is, its temperature, humidity, movement, and degree of cleanness. While this theory explains things better than any other, it falls down in some places and it is generally thought that there is a something else that plays a part.

We know that a food may be perfect from the standpoint of calory content, of digestibility, and assimilability, but it may be deficient because of some lack of the mysterious substances that we call vitamins. There are those who think that the ion is the mysterious agent needed to complete the theory that the benefits of air or its baneful effects are due to air conditioning.

Yaglou, Benjamen, and Brandt report on an extended series of examinations of air for its ion content. Some of their conclusions are:

In Boston the ion content of the outside air varies according to the season. It is higher in the summer than in the winter, on clear days, at noon, and at midnight. It is low on gray days, days of fog, cloud, and rain, and at sunset and sunrise.

The ion content of air in unoccupied rooms was about that of outside air. This applies to heated rooms on fairly warm days. In cold weather it was higher in heated rooms than it was in the outside air.

When people began to assemble in a room the ion content of the air commenced to drop. It went to near zero in a short time, it remained low as long as the people stayed in the room, and it began to rise as soon as they vacated. This was attributed to absorption of the ions by the clothing, though breathing and absorption by the skin helped the process. Woolen clothes absorbed most ions and rayon least. Air fresh from the lungs contained no ions.

Letting fresh air come into an occupied room caused the ion content of the air to rise, provided it was admitted in large quantities. The amount required for this purpose was at least five times the standard requirement of most laws and practices.

There was no particular difference, as far as ions were concerned, between natural and mechanical ventilation.

The investigators express no opinion as to the advantage of any heating system over any other. They do not even discuss whether ions make for health or for ill health.

WHERE FAT SETTLES.

I. M. writes: 1. Why does fat accumulate in practically one place—over the abdomen—while the rest of the body stays about normal?

2. I am constipated and have much gas. Could the accumulation of this excessive fatness be the cause of the other conditions, or vice versa? I am 65 and weigh 165.

REPLY.

1. When fat accumulates in one area or in a few areas only the obesity is generally due to some trouble with the pituitary gland.

2. The gas is due to the constipation. If you can better that habit the other symptom would be less troublesome. Probably there is no particular relation between the obesity and the other troubles.

There is no express time limit in our statutes or ordinances, but noises amounting to legal nuisances can be enjoined, or if the facts amount to disorderly conduct can be stopped by the police. In determining whether a noise amounts to a nuisance the previous character of the neighborhood must be considered. Try reporting the facts to the noise commission, city hall.

40 YEARS AGO TODAY

CHICAGO.—Tomorrow will be the first of the special days of the Exposition. Yellow-haired Norsemen will sings the songs of the fatherland and the Norwegians of Chicago will gather to hear from eloquent lips the story of the independence of the sturdy kingdom of the northland.

Tyrol, the land of warbles and lullabies, is represented at the World's Fair by a panoramic view of its snow-topped mountains and some of its chief industries, as well as a native house reproduced in pine and plaster and shown as a feature of the railway section of the Transportation department.

Theodore Thomas swung his baton and 114 musicians obeyed it yesterday when Choral hall was informally dedicated, or rather tested. The seating capacity for visitors is only partially equipped so far, but it is expected to have all in readiness for their comfort by the time of the formal opening. There will be seats for 4,000 in the parquet and the two galleries, besides ten boxes, each capable of accommodating a score of persons.

The committee on ceremonies met and set aside Oct. 9 as "Chicago day," in commemoration of the great fire of 1871, and arrangements will be made for appropriate observance of that date.

All the people of Cairo were out in their best clothes yesterday, the dancing girls temporarily officiating as flower girls and hiding their supposedly charming features behind bits of wood and heavy veils.

MAY 16, 1917.

BERLIN.—The speech of Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg in the reichstag made no peace offers and held out no olive branch to the entente, except a proffer by suggestion to Russia. He spoke vigorously and confidently, and his address throws a strong light on the intent of Germany. He bluntly refused to enter into a discussion of peace as demanded in interpellations by the Conservatives and Socialists. "If Russia wants to prevent further bloodshed and renounce all violent plans of conquest for herself, if she wishes to restore durable relations of a peaceful life side by side with us, then surely we, as we share this wish, will not disturb the permanent relationship in the future and will not render its development impossible by demands," he said.

LONDON. — The Daily Chronicle's Amsterdam correspondent says: "The chancellor's speech in the reichstag was a decided triumph for the war party in Germany. The whole speech showed that official Germany is relying on the work of the U-boats and the stand on the west front, facilitated by the inaction on the east front, to wear out the entente."

THE WAR.—Rome reports resumption of the offensive against Austrians in a drive on Trieste. Infantry, under cover of intense artillery fire, progresses in the Piava and Goritz sectors. London reports repulse of vicious German counter attacks at Bullecourt. Efforts to advance in other sectors fail. Berlin reports repulse of British south and east of Bullecourt. Paris reports the failure of German attacks on a wide front on the Chemin-des-Dames, but admits the Teutons gained a foothold at one point. Berlin reports capture of Ste. Berthe farm, east of Fort De Malmaison.

ST. FRANCISVILLE, Ill.—Mrs. Katrina Couch, wife of the Rev. James Couch, former pastor of a Christian church near here, was shot in Germany on May 11 as a spy, according to word received tonight.

CRITICISMS.

Chicago, May 9.—I have been a reader of THE TRIBUNE for years. For many years it was a very fine newspaper. In the last few years it has been getting worse and worse.

What I mean by that statement is that it has lost that spirit of impartial fairness which made it a great newspaper. In other words, formerly if a thing was bad you condemned it, if it was good you praised it. You no longer do that.

The whole attitude of the paper seems to be against the United States government no matter who is in office. Mr. Hoover was sometimes right and often wrong, but he was not all wrong.

The United States was asking for a leader to save the nation from destruction prior to March 4. President Roosevelt from the day he took office has been very much a leader. When he makes mistakes he deserves criticism, but for the good things he does he should be praised. The job of being President is, after all, a thankless task.

Mr. Roosevelt, faced with a crisis, is by Herculean effort attempting to stem the tide of depression. His actions in regard to the banks, prohibition, forestry, Tennessee river project, and his promptness in taking the initiative toward early convening of the economic conference are all good.

The only thing I see which is absolutely all wet is the farm act. The inflation amendment to that act is good as he intends to use it. A mad hatter, Senator Thomas, was about to wreck the country. Mr. Roosevelt promptly took the power into his own hands so that he would be in a position to make the inevitable compromise which must be the result of the economic conference.

The outcome of the economic conference is the most important event which is going to take place in our lifetimes. It is even more important for our future happiness or distress than the world war.

Mr. Arthur Sears Henning deserves condemnation for the way he colors the news to suit his own dyspeptic views. There is no bolshevism in Mr. Roosevelt nor in any of his acts. It has always been the function of the President to suggest legislation and when it is passed to administer the law. The President is the executive. If he did not control this panic stricken congress we would have chaos.

You have some good editorial writers and some should be fired. The man who wrote the editorial on the "President's Program" must hate Mr. Roosevelt. An editorial writer should have opinions based on the facts and should have courage, but when he allows prejudice and hatred to enter his column his usefulness is ended. JOHN B. OKIE.

WAGE CUTS AND INFLATION.

Chicago, May 5.—The man who took his salary cut and pension cut on the assumption this would hold us on the gold standard and keep his dollar high will get another cut through advancing prices if inflation comes. This is not to say inflation is not necessary—I believe there is no other word which so expresses the need—but it is to say the public was gloriously fooled and tricked in the first instance. Unless inflation brings widespread reëmployment it can have no real benefits on the whole. LAURA CARAHER.

SOCIALISM IN THE CHURCHES.

Kenilworth, Ill., May 7.—A lengthy letter by Mr. Owen Geer of the Methodist Episcopal church concerning Judge Bradley's lynching and the Progressive Miners' union appeared in Sunday's TRIBUNE. It is well to realize that this letter represents the socialist-communist viewpoint rather than the Christian. Mr. Geer is secretary of the so-called "Christian Social Action Movement," a movement within the church to promote socialism-communism through the churches. The "Leaders' Handbook," which he sells, gives detailed directions for propagandizing by means of forums and midweek meetings at which the idea is to be emphasized that our system of society has collapsed and that socialism must be substituted; political action; organizing the unemployed; "deliberately foment and increase the discontent of the people"; registering for strike activity; placing a "rack of literature" in the church, and recommending and re-referring to it in sermons, etc. The list recommended for reading by church people includes the books of leading revolutionary socialists.

MRS. A. W. DILLING.

MR. TAYLOR'S DISPATCHES.

Macomb, Ill., May 6.—THE TRIBUNE is to be congratulated on the publication of Edmond Taylor's article, "Hitler's Rise," in the issue of May 6. As a former citizen of German Austria, and one whose home was in Vienna until 1927, I venture to assert that Mr. Taylor's analysis of the Hitler movement reveals a remarkable insight into the present psychology and past history of the German people. Because Mr. Taylor tells the unvarnished truth and does not attempt to set himself up as a moral arbiter, because he records and explains and does not criticize or accuse or extol, he has made a real and scientific contribution to good will. Similar articles, if published in the daily press, would do more toward a sympathetic understanding between nations and a peace loving attitude than the sentimental lyrics of well meaning but ignorant pacifists and the blatant propaganda dumped on the American people by the pseudo-pacifist organizations which are peddling their dangerous wares under the guise of peace workers and international idealists.

PAUL R. NEUREITER.

HIS UTILITY BILLS.

Wilmette, Ill., May 12.—I wish to correct Attorney Harry J. Dunbaugh of the Public Service company as to his statement made that the average residence light bill in the suburbs is $3.34. I have a family of four and am very economical in the use of both gas and light. My bill for gas runs $10 and over, and my light bill $5 and over, and I burn very little light.

Wilmette and all suburbs should be given the same rates for gas and light as Chicago. Telephone rates should be the same and absolutely no 10 cent toll charge extra for suburbs. M. RAE.

Good Morning!

If dear to your heart are the books of your childhood, mosey over to the Majestic and see the film they've made from Anna Sewall's beloved novel, "Black Beauty"!

I'm rather hazy as to details of the story, and so I suspect are you. A long, long time ago we read the book, wasn't it? But the picture presents that memorable thoroughbred, Black Beauty; his mother, the Duchess; his daddy, Rob Roy; Ginger and little Merrylegs the Shetland in a moving tale that is a natural in so far as its appeal to animal lovers of all ages is concerned.

The film doesn't dwell much on any of the horses save the black fellow with the soft, sooty eyes and the white star on his forehead. But it introduces him to you as a wabbly colt and acquaints you with his triumphs and vicissitudes to the day when, after an eventful life that's not been all beer and skittles—or I suppose we should say oats and pats—he's turned out in the long grass to spend the rest of his days in well deserved ease.

This must be some sort of a momentous year in Alexander Kirkland's life. He's just bursting into print and pictures everywhere! You'll like him a lot as Black Beauty's kindly young master.

Esther Ralston is charming as a pretty widow who loves horses, and one man she has a divil of a time getting a proposal out of. Hale Hamilton is excellent as a kindly planter. Gavin Gordon plays and looks a cad with utter naturalness. Other rôles are ably performed, scenery is picturesque and there are several thrillingly suspenseful sequences—as well as some that break your heart. How CAN people be unkind to animals. . !

The dialogue, costumes, etc., have been intelligently modernized.

Now listen to me, you folks who raise such a howl because there are "no pictures for children"! "Black Beauty" is a movie to which you CAN take or send the youngsters; one that you'll enjoy yourselves.

Let's see if you really care enough about clean photoplays to patronize this one. You didn't do so well by "Hello Everybody"—and several others I can mention if I have to. You must encourage the producers, you know. They're not in business for their health.

Music Returns to Gay Manner of Other Days

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Within the last season, and particularly within the last six weeks, there has been a rather remarkable change in the course of musical entertainment. It has been the more striking because it has been both widespread and unannounced. Like Topsy, it just grew.

Take a stroll through almost any Chicago shopping district these evenings. You will find musical entertainment in many places where for years back the cobweb of silence has muffled the doors. One does not even need to think of the various night clubs, with which Chicago has been well supplied. Hotels and restaurants will indicate what is happening. Loop hotels, even those that for a dozen years have offered no melodic lure, are putting in orchestras. Residence hotels outside the loop are presenting concerts and recitals, how many only those whose weekly duty it is to draw up a concert calendar will appreciate.

Restaurants, cafés, evening resorts abound with entertainment. You may, if you are as lucky as our party, visit a café where the alderman of the ward is moved to sing for the entertainment of the visitors. Or you may happen into the Bavarian Hofbrau on North avenue and scenically and tonally be transported into southern Germany, hear German music from the orchestra, listen to German songs, look at German dances.

Some of these places deserve and will receive from time to time more detailed comment than can be given them today. The point is that gayety, which for a number of years was in danger of being classified among the lost arts, is once more returning to the earth. Music has decided to leave off being a lofty and learned art and to become friendly, intimate, perhaps at times unconventional but generally effective.

There is a good example of how music drops its conventional leading strings and at the same time creates its effect at the Chicago theater this week. Those who have been there will remember that Josef Cherniavsky conducts an overture of Spanish melodies. It is like no other Spanish overture on earth. A bit of "Carmen" ties into a Spanish folk tune, and that into songs that have been born in the films or on the radio. All that was asked was to get together a collection of good tunes.

Mr. Cherniavsky knows how to strike fire out of them, and the Chicago theater orchestra fairly outdoes itself. He is an expert of the pulse throb, the accent, the retard, the plaintive melody, the smashing climax. Perhaps his tempos may not be those of highly specialized operatic maestri, but he ends the number to a great clatter of applause, which after all is not a bad test of his effect on the audience.

"That fellow certainly has music at his finger tips," said a patron in the row behind us.

"Do you like him?" asked my companion.

This was an inadvertent and undeserved slander on the highly efficient players of the Chicago theater orchestra. But the patron's meaning was obvious. He was having a good time during the performance. So were the rest of the audience.

New Method of Brushing Will Improve Hair

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

What kind of hairbrush does your dressing table boast? A purely ornamental one. Well, that's O. K. for the looks of the dressing table if you have a hardy one tucked in one of the drawers.

And such grand practical brushes we have on the market today! Brushes that could make a head over from a lifeless looking thing into a dashing picture are everywhere to be found. And what power for hair improvement lies in that so oft neglected article!

Instead of letting up on the brushin-, regardless of what may happen to your wave, the common practice of hot air drying should inspire more frequent use of this hair implement. It is a pity that there is more interest in lotions, tonics, oils, and so on for remedying hair conditions than in the best of all massage measures for the scalp—the well known hair brush. brush.

But—and this is the real point of introducing the hair brush today—there is an advanced way of using it, a better way of brushing the hair than we were taught years ago. Hair brushing methods, like a number of other things, have improved. You don't need to flop the head forward and down on the chest, attacking the back of the head, the sides, and front in three sections and using up a terrific amount of elbow grease.

The new principle is not the more viciously you attack the scalp and hair, the better for it. Instead, you should take strand by strand, each strand held up and away from the scalp. This pull is stimulating in itself and the brush is better able to get down into the scalp at every spot thereon when you divide the hair into strands.

Have the bristles of sufficient length and the brush of sufficient narrowness to enable you to get down and in at the roots. If you're applying a preparation to correct either dry or oily hair be sure to brush the hair this way so that the lotion will get into the scalp, where it does the good wanted.

World Famed Puppet Show Gets Welcome

Revue Ranges from Circus to Operetta.

"THE PICCOLI."

Vittorio Podrecca's marionette revue from Rome, given at the Erlanger theater May 15, 1933, under the management of S. Hurok by a company of puppeteers and singers. Music by Resphigi, Sidney Jones, and other composers.

The singers: Emilo Carbello, Lia Podrecca, Thea Carurati, Mario Serangeli, Giuseppe Costa, Dario Zani, Augusto Galli, Irma Zappata, Carlo Pesaina, Rosina Zotti.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

Chicago got its first view of Vittorio Podrecca's celebrated puppet show, whose native city is Rome, at the Erlanger theater last night. "The Piccoli" is the title of this entertainment, and it means "The Little People"—the dolls, of course, that dance and mime and cavort on strings manipulated by unseen operators of amazing skill in this ancient form of folk entertainment.

Podrecca's marionettes are rated the best in the world, and I believe that this is no exaggeration of fact, although my research in the field has not been extensive. In this country we have Tony Sarg, who provides clever programs for children, and also a few dilettante puppet organizations among the little theater groups. Podrecca, however, aims at the adult audience, especially when it is composed of playgoers who warm up into educated ecstasy over importations from Europe; and his dolls are a merry, highly animated troupe, giving a revue that ranges all over the lighter forms of popular entertainment, from the circus to operetta. They even include bull fighting, a savage sport not generally favored among the esthetes who have an affection for dolls; their "corrida de toros," in fact, is the most diverting number on the bill.

The dolls are of substantial size, ranging from two to three feet in height, and of surprising flexibility. When a puppet dancer can execute the "entrechat" [the fluttering, fanlike foot action of the clasic ballet], one must admit that the person who twiddles the strings has the touch of a maestro.

The use of a special marionette stage, with decorative backdrops, keeps the groupings in scale, and therefore if your gaze at the performance becomes sufficiently enchanted the whole business comes to life under an illusion of the flesh-and-blood theater. This is the charm of puppets for their addicts; they have a persuasive effect upon the imagination, evoking a childlike glee among people whose attitude toward the life size theater is likely to be somewhat skeptical and at times derisive.

To tell the story of "The Piccoli" without glittering generalities, I will present a box score of the program, act by act, as follows:

Part 1: A Chinese ladder act [acrobatic]; a music hall number imitating Mistinguett, the feathery favorite of Paris; an acrobatic specialty on the slack rope; a group of circus clowns; a seventeenth century Venetian episode with a view of the city from the harbor; a ballet number, and an elaborate, extremely amusing bull fight, with all the stuff that Ernest Hemingway gloats over. Orchestral music and singing accompany these specialties.

Part 2: A tabloid version of "The Geisha," an English musical comedy first staged in 1896, with several of its well remembered numbers; followed by various cabaret specialties, including Josephine Baker, the Afro-American entertainer of Parisian fame, in songs and dances, and an elaborate black face finale. [These American numbers are sung in English, with a strong Roman accent.]

Signor Podrecca appears as prologist, introducing his show in a speech that you may be able to understand if you are a master of all the tongues of Europe. For the matinée performances [tomorrow, Thursday, Friday, Saturday, and Sunday] a fairy tale called "The Sleeping Beauty" will be given in place of "The Geisha." Its score is by Respighi, eminent Italian composer.

Ethel Barrymore's engagement in "An Amazing Career" at the Harris theater will end with next Saturday night's performance. . . . The Studebaker theater has been leased for a year to a dramatic producer who intends to reopen it for the exposition period. A revival of "The Shanghai Gesture," with Florence Reed as star, may be one of his early offerings.

John Simpsons at Lake Forest Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. John McLaren Simpson at the Horton-Elting nuptials in Lake Forest last Saturday. They must have got quite a sentimental thrill out of attending the first wedding they had been to in the Church of the Holy Spirit since their own took place there on March 18. They returned from their wedding trip recently and are at home in the little house the Frank Hibbards built on the edge of the Shoreacres golf course as a week-end refuge from the city, but which the Simpsons have rented for the summer. In the autumn Mr. Simpson and his bride, the former Constance Hasler, will find a home of their own in which to install all the beautiful wedding presents sent to them.

Cotton Made King of Stores for a Week

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Much ado about cotton!

Fashionable persons will shop this week completely surrounded by cottons . . . good old tub materials that will remind you of your childhood, with seersucker stealing the show, rather to the amazed surprise of the old guard. This crinkled stuff is copied in delightful puckered organdies, and then the stripes, checks, plaids and dots, and even floral designs from other old fashioned best sellers, such as dimity, lawn, and soft muslins, have been casually transplanted to the seersuckers.

Lots of new cottons . . . you can have filmy, fragile organzel in gay stripes cheekily stolen from the colorful dizzy stripes of stick candy. Buy yards and yards of this stuff for your most picturesque dance dress. This summer will see he rsvival of billowing, floor touching, utterly romantic evening clothes.

And you haven't seen anything at all until you have fingered the printed muslins, covered with cool patterns of flowers and leaves, the material so soft and smooth that you can almost pull it through the circle of a finger ring.

Dotted swisses are "in" again for street, daytime, afternoon and some of the newest dramatically devastating evening gowns you have ever dreamed about . . . glamorous ruffled dresses with enough of a Spanish manner to make them irrestistible. Dark blue, silver gray, black, cinnamon brown, and deep green swisses, spattered with all sizes of white dots, are ideal for street and office frocks for sizzling days to come.

Embroidered organdies, swisses and eyelet batistes are other materials that recall summer days when you really could have a dozen dresses without being accused of being a spendthrift . . . then you are going to see rather limp looking cotton fabrics, made with wales and ribs, with squared puffs and open meshed patterns used for suits, dresses and even summer evening gowns. Lovely bonbon shades, white, deep ivory and beige as well as a dull blue and leaf green are some of the best selections.

Cotton nets will make some eye-filling dance frocks . . . frocks that can be packed tight in suitcases for a week-end and emerge as ethereally flattering as they were when they were stowed in the case. There are some cotton lacy materials in sky blue, pale rosy pink, soft yellows and a delicious shade of silvery green that will make some extraordinarily effective evening gowns for any summer night.

This is the week to buy—piques, linens, lawns, dimities, dotted swisses, printed muslins, daringly new striped organdies, plaided ginghams, plain and fancy tub materials—everything you can imagine in the way of 1933 cottons to keep you cool, crisp and smart throughout a busy summer season.

Smartest Ermine Scarf in Paris Ties Into Place with Black Satin

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS. — [Special.] — The present Paris mania for tying things on shows no signs of letting go. Neck bows and sashes take up a lot of a girl's time that used to be spent applying mascara. And now Madeleine Vionnet has complicated the situation by bringing out a fur scarf which requires a lot of draping and tying. It is just too adorable and the smartest women in Paris have fallen for it.

It can be made to look like a bertha, when it's worn over dresses, or like a cape or a scarf. She makes this scarf out of different kinds of fur, but it is most exciting when she makes it of ermine, like the one in our sketch, and ties it on with black satin.

Three views of this scarf in place on the feminine figure are shown by Miss Dulin in the sketch. The scarf consists, as you have without doubt cleverly discovered, of a wide straight band of ermine, which is joined in a point at the top only. This joining leaves a vacant V that Vionnet has filled in with black satin, and this black satin V has long sash ends. You throw the ermine across your chest, letting it lie in folds under your chin, pull the satin V down to the waistline in back, and tie it in a big bow at the front of the waistline, as shown in the two upper sketches. Or you let the satin V fall over the left arm, as shown at the bottom, and tie the surplus sash around that arm in a bow.

Parents Make Plans to Attend Graduation Exercises in East

BY JUDITH CASS.

As June draws near mothers and fathers who have daughters or sons being graduated from eastern schools are thinkings of going east to see ther children receive their diplomas, and mothers have their minds on "something simple in white" for the daughters to wear on the momentous occasion. Mrs. Donald M. Ryerson and the Kent Clows will be among those going to Middleburg, Va., for the graduation exercises at Foxcroft on June 5, for Joan Ryerson and Elise Clow are in the list of 22 daughters of well known families of this country, north, south, east, and west, that will finish at that exclusive school next month.

There will be two Chicago girls in the graduating class at another Virginia finishing school, the Madeira school, in Grenway, Fairfax county. Marion Frances Carpenter, daughter of the John C. Carpenters of Kenilworth, and Frances Lasker, daugher of Mr. and Mrs. Albert D. Lasker, will be graduated at this school on June 8, and both the Carpenters and the Laskers plan to be there.

There will be a fairly large contingent of Chicagoans in Bryn Mawr for the graduation exercises at the Shipley school on June 14, for the parents of all four Chicago girls in the graduating class plan to be there.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Crossett will be there to hear their youngest, Carolyn, read an essay, and then they will go on to the Crossett summer home at Wianno. Miss Crossett's sister, Ruth, now Mrs. Edward S. French, and her husband may not get to the school, for at about that time they will climb into Mr. French's car and be off for New York and Europe for a holiday of two months. They plan to motor through France ,Switzerland, and Belgium. When they sail home the last part of August they will bring the junior John L. Mothersheads [Elizabeth Crossett] with them, to stay in Wianno a while before returning to Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. George Bates Harrington, whose daughter, Mary, is a classmate of Miss Crossett's, will also be at Shipley. They will bring her back to Chicago with them to be here until July, when they are thinking of a little summer trip somewhere. Miss Harrington will have another year of education before making her debut.

The Francis R. Dickinson's daughter, Dorothy, is surprisingly young to be graduating this year, and though her parents modestly say it is because she started school younger than the average girl, we understand that it is because she is very smart and clever. Of course, the Dickinsons are going to be there for commencement, and after Dorothy has seen A Century of Progress they will go up to their Michigan home. Miss Dorothy will not be a debutante for two years.

The Ernest S. Ballards have quite a problem in graduations, for their daughter Susan finishes at the North Shore Country Day school on June 9 and her older sister, Miss Elizabeth, receives her diploma from Shipley the 14th, and the Ballards don't want to miss either one. Every summer the Ballards rent their house in Winnetka and go to an island near Portland off the coast of Maine, and this year, they hope, will be no exception. Susan is still too young to "come out," so her sister has decided to wait for her. Both will make their debuts next year and meanwhile each will have a year in an eastern college.

Miss Grace Dewes, who lost a half year from Bryn Mawr when she made her debut four years ago, finished her college course last February and is returning June 13 to receive her diploma.

Mrs. Frank S. Porter has planned to be at Phillips Andover academy June 16 for the graduation of her son Lefens. After they return to Chicago they will go up to Lake Geneva for the summer as is their custom.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip R. Clarke of Hinsdale are going to the Asheville school for the graduation on June 13 of their son, Philip Jr. They will be at home this summer and expect a houseful of boys, schoolmates of Philip, who are coming here for A Century of Progress.

College Alumnae to Meet Today

Many a Yale and Princeton house party and Dartmouth-Harvard football game will be recalled this noon over smart luncheon tables, for the Chicago alumnæ of Vassar, Wellesley, and Bryn Mawr are holding their annual spring luncheons and reunions.

At 12:30 o'clock graduates of Vassar will gather in the ballroom of the Woman's Athletic club to discuss their various projects . . . the Children's Scholarship league, the Vassar House restaurant, and the new hospitality house in Diana court.

Several of the private schools on the north side have declared a holiday because of the luncheon, since daughters planning college careers and their equally interested mothers have been invited as special guests. Miss Mildred McAfee is here from Poughkeepsie to tell how the college is run. After the luncheon Miss Harriett Borland and her sister, Beatrice, both of them Vassar graduates, are to give their fascinating lecture titled "Banging Through India and Persia."

For weeks the Wellesley alumnæ have heard so much about the little Toy tavern on the Enchanted island at the World's Fair that they agreed unanimously to make this their meeting place today. The luncheon is scheduled for 1 o'clock and the program will include college news and local club activities.

Bryn Mawr alumnæ are motoring out to Lake Forest for their reunion . . . more fittingly termed a spring spree . . . at the home of Mrs. Julian Armstrong, who in her college days was Catherine Stout. Officers will be elected and final plans made for Bryn Mawr's participation in A Century of Progress.

Arrange Party for Judge Bartelme

Invitations were received yesterday by some of Judge Mary Bartelme's friends to a party that promises to be delightful. Miss Florence Dibell Bartlett is giving it for Judge Bartelme, who is retiring from the Juvenile court soon, on Sunday afternoon, May 28, at the Chicago's Woman's club, at 3:30 o'clock. Miss Jane Addams will talk on "Our Juvenile Court," after which the hostess will talk about "Enchanting Majorca" and show moving pictures taken when she and Judge Bartelme vacationed there last summer.

At the tea that will follow the program Mrs. Potter Palmer, Mrs. Francis R. Dickinson, Mrs. Chauncey B. Borland, Mrs. Raymond E. Durham, Mrs. Fred I. Raymond, Mrs. James M. Hopkins, Mme. Giovanni Cardelli, and the hostess' niece, Mrs. Frederic Clay Bartlett Jr., will pour.

Miss Bartlett, just recently returned from her ranch, El Mirador [The Lookout] in New Mexico, is planning to spend the early summer in Chicago on account of the World's Fair,

Some Unknown Woman

By Elisabeth Sanxay Holding

SYNOPSIS.

Dinah Allen and Jane Roselyn are roommates in a Manhattan boarding house. Dinah, from the south, envies and imitates Jane's air of mystery and sophistication. Jack Fiske, a young boarder from Vermont, is head over heels in love with Dinah who considers him just a hick. Dinah and Jane stroll to the corner drug store for sodas. A good looking young man in a silk hat, not quite sober, invites the girls for a ride in his car. To Dinah's surprise Jane accepts for both of them. He takes them to his home. Dinah soon finds herself left alone, with Jane's purse instead of her own. In Jane's purse Dinah finds an automatic pistol. All the lights are turned out. Dinah rushes for the door and is grabbed by strong arms. She shoots. Jane reappears. She rushes Dinah away from the scene of their host lying in a pool of blood. Next morning the papers carry the story of the murder of Philip Divine, Broadway playboy, and said there were two bullet wounds. Jane and Dinah saw a tall, dark man with a mustache as they left Philip Divine's house. Jane recognizes Jack Fiske's sterling qualities and tries to bring Dinah and him together. Jane admits to Dinah that she knew Philip Divine before and that she also shot him. Jane goes to the theater with Jack after Dinah refuses him. Dinah has a caller. He introduces himself as Pierre Baron. He is the tall dark man with the mustache. He fell in love with Dinah at first glance and tells her he will cause her no trouble.

INSTALLMENT XIV.

A FORMIDABLE ADVERSARY.

Dinah had a nimble brain, an energy which her soft and charming little face belied. She saw herself ensnared now, she and Jane, and she was ready to fight, with her own weapons. She made a valiant effort, steadied her nerves, collected all her forces.

"It's awfully nice of you to say so," she replied, with her dimpled smile. "I did recognize you in the subway—and of course it is a worry to think any one's following you. But that's all right now, Mr.—Baron. It was nice of you to come and tell me. Only, you see, you're mistaken. We certainly hadn't come out of any house. We were just walking. I felt horribly sick—from the heat, I guess—and we thought——"

"Miss Allen," he said, and smiled himself, that smile without mirth, "we'll have it any way you like. The whole thing's simply a coincidence. A lucky one for me, if it's given me a chance . . . "

But suppose he had seen them coming out of the house? Suppose he—knew? With a return of that cold dread, she glanced at him again, and this time she saw in his eyes a look she had seen before. A look such as she had seen in young Fiske's eyes, that half bitter, half tender look of a man infatuated against his will. Her heart leaped.

"All right!" she thought. "If he is that way—I'll see—I'll try——"

Sometimes, when she could not fall asleep directly her head touched the pillow, Dinah's conscience had reproached her for sundry wilful little sins in her past, for coquetry, for caprices, that had amused her — and hurt some man horribly. She sometimes made fervent resolves not to do that sort of thing ever again, not to encourage a man and then rebuff him.

But she was ready now to be as captivating as she could, with this man. He might be — indeed, she believed now that he was—infatuated with her naïve beauty, but he was no helpless victim, even at that, like young Fiske. If she could keep him quiet she would, no matter what wiles she had to use.

"It was nice of you to come, Mr. Baron," she said, earnestly.

"Will you let me come again?" he asked.

She averted her head, so that he saw her in profile, her straight little nose, the long lashes that drooped, the exquisite, soft young contours of cheek and chin, her slender neck.

"Well——" she said, hesitatingly.

"Won't you let me take you out somewhere?" he asked.

She knew well enough what she was doing now; she knew, by the change in his voice, that he felt encouraged.

"I don't know," she said. "It doesn't seem——"

"Look here!" he began, and he was eager now. "Tomorrow? Will you have dinner with me tomorrow?"

"I'd—have to think about it first," she said, gravely, and now she looked at him, steadfastly.

"May I call you up at your office?"

After a moment she agreed to that. And she meant to go out with him. She meant to use every art she had to keep this man quiet. He knew what no one else knew, and if in any way she could make him hold his tongue, there was a chance that she and Jane would escape any connection with the tragedy.

"You don't mind——" he began, when the old lady who sat at Fiske's table came into the room, and sat down in a rocking chair, with a mulish expression on her face. She had done this before.

"It's a public room," she was wont to say. "I guess I have as much right to sit in it as any one else."

Baron rose.

"Then—I'll call you tomorrow morning?" he said.

Dinah looked up at him with a smile. But as he turned away her smile vanished. Tall, curiously distinguished, curiously subtle and unreadable, he was a formidable adversary for her. Even though he admired her, even though he were infatuated with her, still he was formidable, still he had an inexplicable advantage. He was outside her range of experience, and, let him be ever so charmed with her young beauty, she was aware in her heart of her own ineptitude here.

She had thought she wanted to meet a man like this, a man patently from the other world, of luxury and of glamor for her. Yet now she wished with all her heart that he were some one like Jack Fiske, some one she could comprehend, and could manage.

When she had heard the door close behind him, she went upstairs with her book. But she could not read. She sat down on the edge of the bed, her head in her hands.

"I shan't tell Jane," she thought. "It would only worry her more. She knows Pierre Baron and she's afraid of him."

And so was Dinah afraid of him. She saw herself and her friend separated only by the filmiest veil from a nightmare of scandal, misery and danger. Pierre Baron held in his hand the string that could draw aside that veil and leave them exposed and defenseless.

She could recall, with extraordinary vividness, that dark, fine face of his; a handsome face. But a face she could not imagine as merciful, as compassionate.

"I'll try," she said to herself. "I'll try—the best I know—to make him keep quiet."

When Jane came back from the theater that night, she found Dinah in bed, her face to the wall, her eyes closed, and a green scarf tied over the electric light. A familiar and unmistakable signal that green scarf was, it meant to whichever girl came in and saw it, that the other had gone to sleep and was not to be disturbed.

So Jane moved about quietly in the dim greenish light that filled the room. Yet Dinah heard every sound, heard Jane's slippered footsteps, heard her brushing her soft dark hair; later on, after the light was out, heard her breathing grow more regular.

Then in the dark she sat up and clasped her hands in dread and dismay, it seemed to her somehow as if Jane had deserted her, gone away into a calm and infinitely remote world, leaving Dinah alone, with this intolerable problem of Pierre Baron to face. And she was afraid of Pierre Baron. Jane was afraid of him, too. He was a menace to them. He knew.

And those thoughts that live in the night, like certain repellant insects that live hidden under stones, came out now. How could she keep Pierre Baron quiet? Who was she to so enchant any man? A pretty, little, small town girl, whom boys had always liked. Pierre Baron was not a boy; he had said that one sight of her face had captivated him, but why should she believe him?

Now, in the dark, she did not believe him. She felt certain that he was playing some game of his own, and that he could see through all her inexpert moves, and check them as he pleased.

"Maybe I ought to tell Jane," she thought. "She knows more about him—more about everything . . . Perhaps he came just to find out something. . . "

And she lay awake, trying to recall that conversation, to see if she had, in some irrevocable way, betrayed herself and Jane.

"I should have pretended not to recognize him. I should have pretended he hadn't seen us, but some one else. O, I'd better tell Jane. If I see him again I may say something to him—something that will do us terrible harm . . . I don't know. . . "

GASOLINE ALLEY—TAKE IT OR LEAVE IT

MR. MAYBEE, THAT 30 PERCENT CASH DIVIDEND ON YOUR CONTINENTAL CORNCOB IS OVERDUE.
THE CHECKS ARE ALL MADE OUT, MR. WALLET. BUT THE TREASURER HASN'T SIGNED THEM AND HE'S SICK. I'M SURE HE'LL BE BACK IN A DAY OR TWO.
I'M HERE TO TAKE YOU UP ON YOUR PROPOSITION OF GIVING ME MY MONEY BACK IF NOT SATISFIED. AND I'M NOT!
BUT, MR. WALLET, YOU WOULDN'T THINK OF GETTING OUT OF THE COMPANY JUST ON THE EVE OF THE BIGGEST DEVELOPMENT CONTINENTAL CORNCOB HAS YET MADE!
I CERTAINLY WOULD AND I'LL GIVE YOU JUST TWO DAYS TO HAVE THE MONEY FOR ME!
VERY WELL, MR. WALLET, BUT: YOU'RE GOING TO REGRET YOUR HASTY ACTION.
HE'S JUST ONE OF THE POOR SAPS THAT EXPECT TO GET THEIR MONEY BACK, DUKE. I'LL TALK HIM OUT OF IT WHEN HE COMES IN AGAIN.

Noodles Form Tasty, Quickly Prepared Dish

BY MARY MEADE.

Noodles are the egg-full, prosperous members of the macaroni family out looking for a new deal. And since we are egg enthusiasts and believe firmly in new deals, we officially christen this as "Eat Your Noodles Week"—and shall proceed to demonstrate how to have the most fun doing it.

First of all, with such perfectly luscious, inexpensive noodles selling at every grocery store—why bother to make them—at least often? But if you have a yen to see how it's done, try this recipe:

1¼ cups bread flour [approximately].

First, beat the egg till fluffy and lemon colored. Then add the water and salt. Stir in the flour slowly till a heavy dough is formed—as thick as pastry.

Roll this out on a floured board in a thin sheet and let stand in a warm place to partially dry for ½ hour. Now roll up the sheet and cut with a sharp knife across the roll, forming fine strips. These may be used at once or dried entirely for future use.

FRIED NOODLES.

As soon as the above noodles are made and cut, let them dry again for several minutes, then drop them into hot fat [385 degrees F.] and fry until golden brown. Drain on crumpled, unglazed paper and serve with chop suey or chow mein.

But after all, when a pan of bubbling water and ten minutes or so of cooking give you delicious noodles for but a penny or so more—why bother? Time is costly these days. So here are some assorted thoughts for ringing in purchased creamy strips of bland goodness—the noodles.

Always an extra dash of flavor is added when we cook noodles in chicken or some other kind of meat broth. Let the liquor be boiling, drop in the noodles and continue cooking vigorously till they're tender. Then drain and serve up hot with much grated Parmesan cheese.

Creamed noodles with a dash of onion salt or onion juice for flavoring—and maybe a sprinkling of minced parsley for good measure—is a speedy luncheon trick. Also, cooked on the stove or in the oven, creamed noodles with pimiento cheese melting lusciously through them, form first class hunger quenchers.

Then, did you ever hear of serving up noodles with sugar and cinnamon? Don't gasp—just try it? You will want milk instead of water or broth for the cooking medium. Use about 3 cups of milk for 8 ounces of noodles, broken in two inch lengths. Heat the milk and cook the noodles in it till they are tender and have absorbed most of the liquid. Now add a good tablespoon of butter and serve with a generous sprinkling of mixed cinnamon and sugar. [You may buy the combination in a shaker, now, you know.]

There are also noodle puddings, noodle rings with fillings, noodles served with prunes and noodles served with chicken, frankfurters, sauerkraut and many other good foods. But these will have to reach you by mail, if you're noodle minded.

Silvers Rises to Stardom in a Single Year

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., May 15.—[Special]—"From stooge to star in a year" is the saga of Sid Silvers. Silvers was one of those Broadway camp followers whose gags and wise cracks helped other writers gain a credit for wit while Sid was satisfied with hotcake money. But he's just been signed to a contract with Fox films which stars him in the dual capacity of actor and film writer on June 8.

Starting as a lowly song plugger, Sid spent five years with Phil Baker, accordion playing comedian, as stooge, being the man in the stage box who interrupted Baker's act and after an exchange of repartee would be persuaded to sing a song.

But Silvers never actually got on the stage himself until "Take a Chance," the Buddy De Sylva-Lawrence Schwab current Broadway musical production, was produced last October. When De Sylva decided to rewrite the show after it originally flopped at "Humpty Dumpty," he and Schwab went to Atlantic City, and since Silvers was out of a job they decided to take him along "just for the laughs."

Silvers, however, kept interrupting the story conferences so often and with such clever material, De Sylva now says, that the ex-stooge was programmed as one of the authors of "Take a Chance." Then a part was written into it for him. When the show hit Broadway Silvers still was stooging for Jack Haley, the comedy star, but the day after the opening he had to be promoted to a part in big type because he made such a hit. De Sylva, who now is an associate producer and a big shot in the Fox studio here, says: "Sid didn't even know how to make a stage entrance and exit, but we taught him. He panicked the audience and that is what counted."

When De Sylva recently returned to Fox to produce the studio's musical pictures and sketched the draft of the coming film "My Weakness," a part for Silvers just naturally worked its way into the story, and the broke play boy of Atlantic City is being hurried out here to help the producer and Director Dave Butler work on the script as well as play the comedy lead. The film will be Lillian Harvey's second in this country.

Silvers was in Hollywood before, during the previous boom in musicals in the early months of the talkies. As usual he was a stooge. He played a bit in one film and eked out a precarious living writing gags for comedy writers. At one time he was Frank Fay's stooge in "Show of Shows."

Ian MacLaren, actor, has filed as a bankrupt with a record of $20,311 in debts and $200 in assets.

but in August she will be off for her beloved El Mirador.

Miss Nancy Kling Sets Wedding Date

Friends of the lovely blonde Nancy Elizabeth Kling, daughter of the Leroy A. Klings of Evanston, and her fiancé, John Hossack Oliver, son of Mrs. Mark Oliver, may expect a gay round of parties soon, for Miss Kling has set their wedding date for Saturday, June 17, at 4 o'clock, in the First Congregational church in Evanston. Miss Cora Kling will be her sister's maid of honor, and the bridesmaids will be Miss Janet Bard, a debutante of last season, who roomed with Miss Kling at Vassar; Miss Betty Archer, Miss Eileen Sparrow, Mrs. Elmer Eldridge, Miss Mary Elizabeth Townsend, and Mrs. Kling's sister, Miss Mary Clark of Monrovia, Cal.

Henry Warren will serve Mr. Oliver as best man, and ushering will be Sidney Waud, Morrison Waud, Lindsay Beaton, Frank Morr, all of Chicago; Robert Heck, Robert Howe, Lester Williams and Frederick Clayton Jr., all of Oak Park or River Forest, and William Newman of Detroit. After a wedding trip to Europe Mr. Oliver and his bride will be at home in Chicago.

This morning at 10:30 o'clock Miss Barbara Graf is entertaining a group of young friends who are daughters of members of the Friendly Aid society at an informal breakfast to discuss plans for the summer fashion show which will precede the society's annual luncheon and card party which is to be held at 2 o'clock next Tuesday afternoon in the grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel.

Society Attends Puppet Opening.

The officers of the Lower North Community council will wear happy smiles today, and well they should. For a society audience last night at the opening of the "Teatro dei Piccoli" in the Erlanger theater poured a generous contribution into their coffers for the support of the Lower North Community center.

Rudolph Ganz was fascinated by the agile little puppets, especially the mechanical concert master, and his enthusiasm was only typical of that of the whole gathering. There was Mrs. James M. Hopkins, stunning in a white shirred velvet cape over a black chiffon gown, with Mr. Hopkins; the Edwin W. Ryersons with Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey B. Borland, and Mrs. Joseph B. Long wearing a lei of red carnations around the low decolletage of her black gown.

Mr. and Mrs. James R. Offield were in the audience. And so were Mr. and Mrs. John Black, the Oryille Taylors, Rufus Dawes, Mrs. Americus F. Callahan, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bering, the Walter P. Paepckes, the Philip Mahers, Arthur Bissell, Mr. and Mrs. Robert McCormick Adams, Mr. and Mrs. C. Barney Goodspeed, Mrs. Edward Harris Brewer with Mrs. William Waller Jr., and Mrs. Phelps B. Hoyt.

Musical Today At Arts Club.

Apple blossoms will decorate the tea table in the lounge of the Arts club this afternoon if the member who has promised to bring them in from her country place doesn't forget. [This will remind her, perhaps!]

The occasion is the musical to be given by the professional musician members of the club with tea afterward. None of the members has been asked to preside at the tea table, for such a large crowd is expected that it is thought best to have the waiters serve in the more formal style that the club adopts occasionally.

The feminine members will far overshadow the masculine ones on the program, at least in numbers, for five of the soloists will be women and only one is a man. Louise Harrison Slade, Cara Verson, Ruth Hanak, Amy Neill, Helen Abbott Byfield and Heniot Levy are to give the program which was arranged by John Palmer. The music will start at 4 o'clock.

Mrs. Edward A. Leight is not letting a broken foot upset plans for the tea party she had planned for Thursday as a welcome home to Mme. Giuseppe Castruccio, the Italian consul general's wife who has just returned from a winter in Italy. Mrs. Leight hurt her foot Sunday. The tea is to be at the Leight residence, 2416 Lake View avenue, from 4:30 until 6:30 o'clock, and about one hundred friends of Mme. Castruccio have been invited.

Many to Spend Summer In Town.

Usually at this time of the year society "personals" are about people leaving the city for a summer in the country, but this year numerous people who ordinarily lead suburban lives are planning to lead urban ones because of A Century of Progress. Among these are Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Hodges [she was Sarah Brewster], who have rented their attractive Lake Forest house for the summer and are to be in town in the Lake View residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Brewster, during the duration of the fair.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert H. Wetten and their daughters, Miss Mildred and Miss Eleanor, will be moving out to Winnetka for the summer the middle of June. Miss Eleanor will be at home early in June from Wellesley, where she is finishing her sophomore year. The Wettens have taken the Hallett Thornes' lovely house on Indian Hill road and the Thornes in turn are coming to the city to spend a month before they go north to Les Cheneaux islands for the summer.

Mrs. Howard Van Doren Shaw with her daughter, Miss Theodora Shaw, who sailed last February on a cruise through the Orient are expected home May 25.

Mrs. George A. McKinlock is on her way home by motor from Florida, where she has spent the winter. After a stop at Virginia Hot Springs, she will be here by the end of the week. The McKinlocks are to be at home in Lake Bluff all summer.

By the end of this week Mr. and Mrs. Warren Wright, who are at the Drake hotel, will be moved out to their lovely place at Golf, Ill., which they are opening for the summer. Later on, perhaps in August, the Wrights will take a trip east.

Mrs. Morris Leidy Johnston, who has just returned from a trip to Washington to see her father, Albert Douglas, and her son-in-law, Willard N. Boyden, left yesterday for Virginia Hot Springs, where they will join Mr. Johnston and Mrs. Boyden, the former Angela Johnston, who have been at that resort since last Thursday. On their return in two weeks Mr. and Mrs. Johnston will go directly to their Lake Forest home which they have opened for the summer.

Miss McCormick Goes to Europe.

Miss Elizabeth McCormick left Chicago yesterday to sail the end of the week on her annual European trip. England will be her first stop, then Paris, and finally Italy. Upon her return (which is sure to be too late for the fair) there will be one trunkload after another of the precious old costumes, the famous beadwork known as "sable," and the other rare pieces that make her trips real treasure hunts.

Woman's Club Infant Welfare Group Sponsors Tour of Penthouse as Benefit

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

On the roof at 2130 Lincoln Park West finishing touches will be applied to St. Francis of Assisi this morning. La Argentina will be uncovered after a fresh coat of paint and a stinging bronze cobra will be provided a tropical background with several ten foot palms . . . direct from Palm Beach.

In short, the pink Mexican convent garden of Mrs. Howard L. Willett will be restored in all its summer glory to receive the members of the Chicago Woman's club infant welfare committee and their guests at tea this afternoon. The blessings of the weather man are all that Mrs. Willett is asking.

St. Francis and Argentina are two of the several Eric Mose murals in the rooftop garden built just a year ago, four years after the penthouse below had been completed. The cobra is part of the garden fountain that splashes on a terrace near the miniature of the dome built by the Franciscan monks in the 16th century and the wrought iron balcony and stair inspired by the famous balcony in Lerida, Spain. In its entirety the garden is patterned after the convent garden of Churubusco in Mexico. To make the copy Mrs. Willett visited the original accompanied by artists and architects.

A donation of one dollar . . . or more . . . is asked by the infant welfare committee to see this bit of old Mexico today, also the Florentine penthouse on the eighteenth floor that provides an unexcelled panorama of the city. The money will go to the Ashland avenue infant welfare station which the Woman's club committee supports annually to the extent of $6,000.

The reception hall of the penthouse has been skillfully built as a stage. Raised three or four steps above the drawing room level, it is splendid for anything dramatic or musical. Six portholes close to the ceiling provide the necessary floodlight or moonlight when the gatherings are informal.

Chairs, guests will observe this afternoon, are one of Mrs. Willett's hobbies. "They must be unusual and at the same time comfortable. These are my only two requirements," she will explain.

In the drawing room is a famous Florentine cathedral chair of the 15th century with Gothic arches and Crusaders finely carved into its back. Surprisingly enough, it is comfortable. There is also a Dante chair elaborately carved and there is soon to be a copy of Napoleon's throne chair at Fontainebleau. Mrs. Willett's dining room chairs are living room chairs.

Most interesting of all the interesting pieces in this penthouse home, perhaps, is the replica of the famous Davonzati bed that still has a place in the Davonzati palace in Florence. Almost modern in feeling, it is a huge square creation, mounted on a platform. Built into it is a chest painted with the entrance of Lorenzo the Magnificent into Florence. In the Willett chamber the bed is flanked by two of the semicircular barber chairs monks used in their monasteries.

There is a polar bear skin on the floor of this room, one of the two rooms in the penthouse that uses a floor covering, for, like pictures, Mrs. Willett explains, rugs and carpets can so easily give a cluttered feeling. The Willett furnishings include only three pictures, two portraits and a Venetian scene.

Engaged

MISS DOROTHY CAMPBELL.

Announcement has been made by Mr. and Mrs. Neil N. Campbell of Lake Forest, of the engagement of their daughter, Dorothy, to Charles Fisk MacIntosh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. MacIntosh of Detroit. Miss Campbell will be graduated from the Bouve Boston School of Physical Education the end of this month and Mr. MacIntosh is a junior at Harvard. No date for the wedding has been set.

Songbooks for Little Boys and Little Girls

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Did you ever happen to see an entertainment or a chorus number in which a very little girl with crimped hair, ballet skirts and a shrill little voice strained to loudness until it almost cracked, sang a jazzy "hot cha" number, or a torch song or a sentimental ballad? And did you ever notice the response it brought of "Oh" and "Ah" and "How cute!"

What a contrast to this inappropriateness is the natural singing at home or in school of the simple songs suited to a child's years and experience, and that have real meaning for him or her! Times are changing and we see less and less of the exhibiting of children in entertainments aping the antics and emotions of grownups.

Many mothers have asked at one time or another for a list of song books for little children. To those with which I was already familiar I have been trying for some time to add others equally good, but much less expensive, hoping to find some as low as forty or fifty cents. With one exception I have not been able to do so.

Therefore, I will give you today the names of those I have finally selected. If you wish the fuller information as to publishers' names, prices, and so forth it will be sent you on receipt of a stamped self-addressed envelope.

"Our Old Nursery Rhymes," illustrated by H. Willebeek Le Maire.

"Christmas Carols—Made Easy to Play or Sing," by Mary Baker Mason.

"Singing Time," by Coleman and Thorn.

"The Hums of Pooh."

"The King's Breakfast."

"Teddy Bear and Other Songs."

"Round the World in Song," by Dorothy Gordon.

"Sing it Yourself," by Dorothy Gordon.

Women Urge Horner to Act for Wage Law

State Legislative Council Issues Report.

The Illinois Woman's Joint Legislative Council forum yesterday adopted resolutions calling upon Gov. Horner to foster legislation to raise the standard of woman labor. Mrs. John T. Mason of Aurora, president of the forum, presided over the meeting at the Chicago Woman's club.

The action was taken following a report given by Miss Winifred Frost, chairman of a fact finding committee, on a survey of 355 women garment workers, milliners, waitresses, candy wrappers, hotel domestics, and trade employés in Chicago. The survey showed that more than half the factory workers were earning less than 15 cents an hour and more than one-fourth less than 10 cents.

One of the resolutions requested the governor to take steps immediately to sponsor a bill setting up wage bureaus to determine fairness in wages and hours in industry. Gov. Horner was asked in a second resolution to call a conference of neighboring states for agreement upon uniform minimum wage and maximum hour standards.

Earlier in the conference Miss Mary Anderson, director of the women's bureau of the United States department of labor, declared that "heroic" measures must be undertaken by federal and state governments to restore the purchasing power of the working woman.

"Working standards for women have gone down almost to the vanishing point after three years of tobogganing," asserted Miss Anderson. "Work hours have been lengthened on the other hand in spite of curtailed production, hour laws violated, overtime without pay imposed, and wages cut to an unbelievably low point."

Miss Anderson declared that the average weekly earnings of $10.12 for women in Illinois industries for March, 1933, show the danger point reached in women's wages, representing a 24 per cent drop in women's earnings from the year before. The wages have reached such a low ebb, she stated, that the lowered purchasing power hinders the comeback of industry.

Mandatory wage laws for women and minors, Miss Anderson pointed out, have been passed in Utah, New York, New Hampshire, and New Jersey within the last two months. Similar legislation had been adopted previously in nine other states.

Doris Says Casual Meeting May Lead Older Girl to Romance of Lifetime

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"A boy began a conversation with me in the restaurant in which I eat my lunch daily. I was hesitant about continuing the acquaintance. Each day now the young man lunches in the same place and speaks. I advised him that I do not indulge in the habit of conversing with strange men. He apologized and said he did not indulge, either, in promiscuous acquaintance making, but he was attracted to me. I find now that I like him, too—but how can you keep a thing of this sort from bearing the stamp of a cheap 'pick-up' affair? JOAN."

It's a commonly recurring problem in this department. The chance meeting may be in a restaurant, a car, a library, anywhere, in fact. Girls with the formalities of etiquette bred in their bones are often hesitant about going on with the friendships so acquired. They are afraid, too, that the young man may misjudge them. And some men might take the "pickup" acquaintance as a cue to general informality of behavior.

Certainly we would argue with very young girls not to jeopardize their standing with this type of acquaintance. They have not the wisdom to handle a situation of the sort. It's better for them to let the friendship go by. They have lots of other sources of beau meeting.

But an older girl might pass up a perfectly nice romance were she to withdraw at once. Accidental meetings often lead to a lifetime romance. So, we can't be too arbitrary on the subject, except as said, in the case of extreme youth. We do not think that an older girl with the stamp of convention in her bearing is taking much risk. The good sense that dictates caution in the first place would certainly dictate ending the affair, once she saw herself placed in a disrespectful light.

There is so much loneliness suffered by young men and women in a city and so comparatively little opportunity to make acquaintances if one is not well known that this is the basis of the chance acquaintance making rather than any intention of light hearted behavior.

But, under the circumstances of such meeting, we believe the girl must ever be on the alert to uphold the standard of womanhood that commands respect.

MINUTE MYSTERY CAN YOU SOLVE IT?

BY H. A. RIDLEY

A QUESTION OF IDENTITY.

"Professor," said Patrie, "tell us something about the Yelpir murder case you were working on."

"Well, gentlemen," he replied in his retiring manner, "as you know, Yelpir's affairs were common knowledge, and the fact that several women had reasons to wish him dead complicated matters a bit.

"His body was found in his study, which opened on to a corridor. At the other end of the corridor and directly opposite it a staircase led to the servants' quarters above.

"Diana Lane, a house guest of Mrs. Yelpir at the time of the murder, was questioned, and she appeared nervous. She insisted, however, that she had been in her room at the time Yelpir was slain.

"Nora, a servant, testified that, as she was descending the stairs leading from the servants' quarters, at midnight, she saw Diana Lane, wearing her famous emerald pendant and dressed in an enticing black negligee, walk down the lighted corridor to Yelpir's room. She said she followed a minute later and heard Diana and Yelpir violently quarreling. She returned to the servants' quarters and as she opened the door of her room, she heard a shot.

"In the face of such evidence, Miss Lane admitted having gone to the study at the time, but protested her innocence, declaring she had remained only a minute.

"While Miss Lane was acquitted, you know, her reputation was not above reproach. Even so, I knew without further investigation that Nora's testimony was maliciously false."

HOW DID THE PROFESSOR KNOW?

[See solution on page 27.]

Perhaps you have a story or problem you would like to submit to Prof. Fordney. If so, send it to him in care of this paper. He will be delighted to receive it.

Unusually Pretty Quilt Originated in Long Island

Swallow

BY NANCY CABOT.

"Swallow" is a born and bred casterner—from Long Island, New York, dating back to 1820, to be exact. This high-hatted blue blood rarely has traveled west of the Mississippi river.

For a pattern of this quilt design send 5 cents in stamps or coin to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, One South Dearborn.

A FRIEND IN NEED

If you are in need, perhaps I can help you. If you have household articles or clothing you can no longer use, please tell me. I can place such things with needy families. Address Sally Joy Brown, The Tribune Chicago.

"Dear Miss Brown: We are interested in a family which was once in fairly good circumstances. However, the father has been out of work for 3 years. Consequently, their home and its furnishings have been sold. The mother developed tuberculosis and the children various ailments. At the time we took the case, the family was crowded into two unhealthy rooms. We have been able to secure a 4 room apartment for them but their only furniture consists of 2 beds and 2 broken chairs. We secured mattresses for the beds, but they are still in need of additional beds, rugs, chairs, in fact, almost anything needed in a home. As we are so necessarily limited in our expenditures, we are asking whether you can assist us in securing furniture and linen for the family. With the exception of dishes, we could quite literally use almost anything you receive, and will be glad to call for anything offered. "D. K. E."

ALL-BRAN RELIEVED HIS CONSTIPATION

We quote from his voluntary letter: "I had considerable trouble with my stomach. Digestion was out of the question. I got medicine which gave me only temporary relief.

"Then I thought of taking ALL-BRAN. I started eating a cereal dishful two or three times a day.

"It has been over a year now since I ate that first dish of bran, but from that day to this I have had the pleasure of enjoying the proper functioning of the digestive organs.

"Thanks to ALL-BRAN, I still eat it regularly and like it better all the time." —Lester Bartholomew, Cadillac, Mich.

Constipation is usually due to lack of "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to promote elimination. ALL-BRAN supplies both, as well as iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of leafy vegetables. Certainly this food is more natural than taking harmful patent medicines. Two tablespoonfuls daily will overcome most types of constipation. With each meal in chronic cases. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Offers All Kinds of Color and Blossoms.

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

There is at the Chicago Galleries, 220 North Michigan avenue, a magnificent exhibit of flower paintings which opened to the public yesterday. The rooms are hung two and three deep with all kinds and colors of blossoms. A whiff of fragrance and one could think himself in the heart of summer and an old fashioned garden rich with stock, roses, dahlias, peonies, and lilies.

One of the most effective paintings is "The Lady and the Lilies," by Florence White Williams, good in composition and arresting in color. Jessie Arms Botke and Gerald Frank on opposite walls hang large and decorative canvases, the largest in the show and as fine in quality as quantity. Mr. Frank apparently has envisaged an entire florist window and gives us an accurate interpretation of its crowded beauties. Mrs. Botke, from California, is represented by an exquisite tapestry-like canvas, peacock and cockatoo and tiny, radiant flowers.

Charles W. Dahlgreen has a lovely painting in "Bouquet" and so has Ingeborg Christensen in "Say It with Roses." Leonore S. Jerrems administers a wholesome tonic in "Squash Blossoms" and Susan Ricker Knox and Harriet Krawiec are definitely unsentimental in their varied and strong canvases.

Among the other painters who are well represented and who help make the show the brilliant one it is are Edgar Forsner, Josephine Reichmann, Pauline Palmer, Anna Lynch, Carl Hoerman, Dixie Selden, Lucie Hartrath, Frank V. Dudley, Rudolph F. Ingerle, Macena Barton, and Marshall D. Smith.

The exhibition will continue through May and then be transferred to the Horticultural building at A Century of Progress.

The Zonta club will hold its luncheon meeting at 12:30 today at the Woman's University club. Miss Minnie Albert will speak on "Chicago's Dictator."

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., May 15.—[Special.]—Mrs. Roosevelt gave a garden tea this afternoon, entertaining about two thousand guests from 4:30 to 6:30. Mrs. Roosevelt received her guests on the west side of the south grounds of the White House. She had as her only assistant little Miss Mortimer, granddaughter of Mrs. Stanley Mortimer of New York, who is visiting Mrs. Roosevelt. Under marquees on the lawn were laid two large tables from which sandwiches and cakes and tea and coffee and punch were served.

Mrs. Roosevelt wore a gown of blue crêpe with trimmings of Eleanor blue, with beige stockings, block shoes, and no hat or gloves. There were almost as many of the prominent men and women of the last administration present as those of the new. Mrs. Woodin, wife of the secretary of the treasury, and Mrs. Cummings, wife of the attorney general, were among the early guests. Among others were Mrs. Robert P. Lamont, wife of the former secretary of commerce; former Senator and Mrs. George H. Moses, Representative and Mrs. Fred A. Britten, Mr. and Mrs. Harlev Peyton Wilson, Col. and Mrs. Charles P. George, son-in-law and daughter of former Vice President Curtis; Mrs. William N. Doak, wife of the former secretary of labor; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Morgenthau Jr., the former alien property custodian, and Mrs. Howard Sutherland. Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Noyes, formerly of Chicago, were among the guests.

OCCUPATION TAX IS "ACE IN HOLE" FOR IDLE RELIEF

May Be Imposed if Sales Levy Fails, Horner Says

While re-passage of a sales tax in the legislature is the aim of the Horner administration, Gov. Horner said last night that a bill calling for an occupational tax is being drafted at Springfield by Dewitt Billman, secretary of the Legislative Reference bureau.

Mr. Billman, it is said, is drawing a bill to assess a 1 per cent gross business tax on occupations to keep as a sort of "ace in the hole" should insurmountable difficulties face the new sales tax bill in the assembly.

Horner Stands by Sales Tax.

Gov. Horner made it clear last night that he was not advocating the occupational tax.

"We are going ahead with the sales tax," he said, "and we will not decide on anything else unless it should fail. Mr. Billman suggested that he draft such a bill and I told him to go ahead and show it to me when it was completed."

A bill similar to the new Billman measure is already pending in the senate, having been introduced early in the session by James O. Monroe, [Dem., Collinsville].

Most business firms, professions and occupations would be included in the new tax. It would require payment to the state of one per cent of the gross income, without any exemptions.

The Supreme court decision declaring the sales tax unconstitutional held that it was discriminatory legislation and the Billman measure is being drafted in the attempt to meet these objections by including numerous occupations other than that of selling at retail. Whether farmers would be included—they were left out of the sales tax bill—had not been decided, it was reported from Springfield.

Would Be Used for Relief.

Funds from the occupational tax would go into the general revenue fund of the state treasury, from which the legislature would make specific appropriations for relief needs.

Gov. Horner will not return to Springfield until late today, after he has attended the St. Lawrence waterway conference here. It is possible that the occupational tax bill will be in shape for his perusal by that time.

COLUMBIA STUDENTS FIGHT ON CAMPUS OVER SOVIET PARADE

New York, May 15.—[Special.]—Student fought with student again on the Columbia university campus today as Diego Rivera, Mexican artist, harangued them on communism in another demonstration in the agitation for the reinstatement of Donald Henderson, dropped from his post as economics instructor.

The students called it a "strike" and said that 500 of their members had remained away from classes. But at least half of these were the conservative or so-called athletic group who oppose the Henderson reappointment and who stayed away from school to jeer at the left wing speakers and engage in sporadic battles for possession of the strikers' banners.

One of these was an effigy of Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia, which was carried to the sun dial on the campus during Señor Diego's speech, in which Dr. Butler was criticized.

Its appearance was the signal for the beginning of a brisk hurly-burly. Conservative students tried to wrest it from the hands of the strikers, who fought to protect it. The cap and gown came off in the hands of the "athletes" and was burned on the college library steps.

The denuded effigy, however, remained in the hands of the strikers and was held by them while Rivera, speaking in French, declared that Dr. Butler was on the side of capitalism and would not be able to withstand the mass of the students.

Rivera, whose inclusion of the likeness of Lenin in a mural he painted for Rockefeller center resulted in his not being permitted to finish the work, urged the students "to unite because you are the workers of tomorrow."

URGES PRESSURE TO MAKE NEEDY RAISE GARDENS

Maywood Idle Reluctant to Help Themselves.

Dr. Walter C. Lovejoy, chairman of the Maywood community garden program for needy families, yesterday urged that an immediate appeal be issued by county relief officials for volunteers to cultivate the 20,000 garden plots being prepared for their use. The lack of any pressure upon the idle from the relief officials is delaying the subsistence garden program, he said.

"We need a stimulus from the county board of public welfare to get the garden program under way," Dr. Lovejoy said. "There is a decided unwillingness on the part of families on the relief rolls to undertake the raising of their own fresh vegetables. I am led to believe by the contacts I have had. We expected to have 150 applicants for garden plots by this time in Maywood, but we have had only sixty.

Would Require Work of Idle.

"I believe the county relief officials should state that unless some effort is made by needy families to help themselves by raising part of their own food they will be cut off of the relief rolls. Unless some strong action is taken soon I believe the garden program will collapse."

Warner G Baird, chairman of the garden service of the county bureau of public welfare, said the garden program has been delayed by unseasonable weather. During the past forty-five days there have been only eight days upon which the plowing of garden plots, to prepare them for planting, has been possible, he said. No appeal has been issued here, because the garden plots were not ready for cultivation, he explained.

Moss to Ask Volunteers.

Joseph L. Moss, director of the bureau of public welfare, said plans have been completed for a concentrated drive to enlist the required number of volunteer gardeners from among the needy families, but that the drive has been delayed pending the preparation of the garden plots. He expects to start his drive the first of the month.

More than half the number of garden plots that the county has available, 2,982, have been allotted to volunteers, he said. The drive to distribute seeds to needy families who plan Reno, April 1, Mrs. Rogers has been gardens in their own plots has far exceeded the quota, he said, with 8,000 requests to date, against a quota of 5,000. He said that the county's drive for garden volunteers wil lassist the community garden committees, but the drive will not be started until the weather permits planting of the gardens.

WELFARE FUND ACCEPTS SALES TAX DONATIONS

Sales tax collections that merchants cannot refund to taxpayers because of a lack of records will be accepted by the Emergency Welfare fund, R. Douglas Stuart, president of the fund, announced yesterday. The Illinois emergency relief commission has designated the welfare fund as the official recipient of all unrefunded collections.

Acceptance of the tax collections was approved at a meeting of the executive committee of the fund yesterday at its headquarters, 111 West Washington street. Mr. Stuart explained that the contributions of nonrefundable taxes are expected to add a substantial amount to the $4,750,000 that was raised in the fund's drive last fall. The goal set for the drive was $7,500,000. The fund was created to handle cases of need that do not come within the scope of the relief commission.

Certificates are being prepared for issuance to all stores that turn unrefunded tax collections over to the welfare fund. The certificates are expected to become of value to the average retail dealer as a means of demonstrating to his customers that he has given his tax collections to charity.

$200 RECEIVED IN DAY TO FEED HUNGRY PUPILS

More than $200, the largest day's total received by the Hungry School Children's fund for many months, reached the fund yesterday. The large total was made possible in most part by two $50 checks sent by Samuel Howard and C. Newton, contributors to the fund on several occasions when the total dropped too low.

Other large gifts were $25 from Mrs. Levy Mayer in memory of her brother, Abraham Mayer, and an additional $10 in memory of Mrs. Moses Born. An anonymous donor sent $20 as his May contribution, and Mrs. Nettie W. Adams also sent $20.

$20,000 DIVERTED TO POOR RELIEF, AUDIT STARTED

Kankakee, Ill., May 15.—[Special.]—The books of Ganeer township, which were kept until ten days ago by Ed Cleary, Ganeer supervisor on the Kankakee county board, are being audited. Cleary has resigned.

State's Attorney Varnun A. Parish said the order for the examination was given by the township board of auditors. He added that it might be some time before the exact facts were ascertained. No accusation of dishonesty has been made, but Mr. Parish pointed out that somewhere between $20,000 and $30,000 had been diverted from road construction and other township activities and disbursed for poor relief.

BODY FOUND IN RIVER.

Mishawaka, Ind., May 15.—[Special.]—What may develop into a murder mystery was the finding of the bloodstained body of Caesar Vanrenterghm, age 53, in the St. Joseph river here today. The body was discovered by David Johnson, a clam and pearl fisherman. Vanrenterghm had been missing since last Monday.

JOCKEY ADMITS PULLING HORSE; OWNER BARRED

Fan Knocks Out Dye at Sportsman's.

BY FRENCH LANE.

M. Simmons, owner of the horse, Semester, and Jockey Lester Dye were ruled off the track by the stewards at Sportsman's Park yesterday after the jockey had confessed that he had "pulled" Semester in the Washington Park purse, the day's feature.

Dye appeared before the stewards late in the afternoon to be notified of his suspension, and as he was leaving he was struck in the face by one of the irate backers of Semester and knocked cold. He was carried to the stables by Owner Simmons and revived after 30 minutes.

Whisking, a royally bred son of Whiskaway-Leto, was the winner in the Washington Park. Semester, rather heavily backed, was second. The almost prohibitive favorite, Shoot, finished third.

Shortly after the race the stewards suspended Dye for "an unsatisfactory ride" on Semester. It appeared that Dye was trying to do everything but win with Semester.

What's the Reason?

The Sportsman's park officials, headed by Presiding Steward Sam Nuckols of Kentucky, were investigating the Semester "pulling" case last night. They admitted they had been unable to dig up evidence to show why Jockey Dye had pulled the horse or why Owner Simmons had ordered the jockey not to win.

There was no betting plunge on Semester at the track for he was the third choice in the wagering. Shoot was the favorite at a little better than even money and the best he could do was to finish third behind Semester. Whisking had been the second choice. Yet some of the officials admitted they were not entirely satisfied with the ride M. Du Puy gave the winner.

Hand book operators in Chicago last night declared there was no unusual betting in the poolrooms on the race. There were a few commissions on Whisking and a great many more on the horse Shoot, they said. They also reported handling a few wagers on Semester but said they were not large wagers.

Complete Report Today.

Presiding Steward Nuckols said an additional report on the case likely would be forthcoming today.

In the early part of the six and one half furlong dash of the Washington Park, Whisking didn't seem to have a chance to win. Essie, Sunny Side Up and Semester were fighting it out for the lead in the early stages. Then the leaders went wide at the top of the stretch and, when Shoot hugged the rail to save many lengths and sail into the lead, the favorite players began to cheer.

It was one of the few times all afternoon the players of the "figure" horses had a chance to do any shouting.

Suddenly a flash of blue and black showed up out in the middle of the track. It was Whisking, carrying the jacket of Mrs. R. Miller of Chicago, making his run toward the winning post. He was going with the speed some of his famous ancestors used to show and there was no stopping him. He beat the weakly ridden Semester by a neck. Essie, Sunny Side Up and Wayward Lad were badly beaten.

Fronk Fools the Youngsters.

Bill Fronk, dean of all the jockeys at the half mile course, gave his young rivals a riding lesson when he won the first race on Keyhole, a 2 year old from Hal Price Headley's stable in Kentucky.

Fronk let such youngsters as Eddie Arcaro, L. Cunningham, and two or three other boys outride him in the early stages. Then he put on one of those old Kentucky finishes and sailed into the lead so quickly the other boys didn't seem to know which way he was going. Fronk was looking back and laughing at the kid riders as he passed the finish line an easy winner.

HEAD PLAY TO RUN

New York, May 15.—(Special.)—Head Play, second by a nose in the Kentucky Derby and winner of the Preakness, arrived at Jamaica today and is a sure starter in the Wood Memorial, to be run Saturday, it was announced by Racing Secretary Joseph Clennan. Mrs. Silas B. Mason, owner of the colt, was present when he was unloaded following the trip in a special car from Baltimore.

Mrs. Mason plans to have Trainer T. P. Hayes give Head Play a public trial between the races tomorrow.

The fact that the son of My Play and Red Head is considered the best 3 year old of the season by his admirers, does not affect the indication that the Wood looms as one of the most important 3 year old stakes of the year. Ladysman, Pomponius, Mr. Khayyam, Golden Way, and Dynastic are considered sure starters along with Head Play, while Broker's Tip, winner over Head Play in the Derby, still is listed as a probable starter.

Fight Decisions

THINGS you may not know About the SOX

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., May 14.—[Special.]—Paul Gregory's first contact with big league baseball men proved that he knew how to get along . . . and he has . . . while he was teaching a Pace, Miss., high school class and coaching the football squad an agent of the St. Louis Cardinals invited him to sign a contract and see baseball's greatest chain store system . . . the lad turned it down, figuring that if he signed with a minor league club on the basis of a slice of the purchase price if he went up, he would be better fixed . . . the idea panned out . . . the White Sox bought him from the Atlanta, Ga., club and he got his bit. . . .

The first big league game Ted Lyons saw was one in which he played . . . reported to the Sox at St. Louis July 2, 1923 . . . the Sox didn't do very well that afternoon, so with defeat imminent and a few innings to go, the manager decided to take a look at the kid fresh from Baylor university campus . . . Ted handled himself O. K. and has been around ever since . . . one of few big league stars who never wore a minor league uniform.

Manager Fonseca figures luck was with him when he made his first fight for a major league job . . . the Cincinnati Reds took him to camp in the spring of 1921 . . . he didn't get much attention from anybody but the entire Red infield was holding out and Pat Moran, then manager, finally got to the point where an infield had to be put together . . . he put Fonseca on second base . . . for three years after that the present Sox pilot played first, second, and the outfield for the Rhinelanders.

Manager Fonseca is not one of those fellows who thinks a ball player to be at his best for work in the afternoon should be routed out of bed by 8:30 in the morning . . . he lets the boys use their own judgment about that . . . at least two of them appreciate the privilege . . . Al Simmons and Frank Grube try to get up in time to have their breakfast at noon . . . a Simmons breakfast wouldn't make a meal for a canary bird.

Jim Dykes and Mule Haas can play other things than baseball . . . they are pretty clever on the basketball floor . . . for a couple of winters they teamed up with Jimmy Foxx and a couple of other Athletic players and played semipro basketball engagements around the east . . . it was easy money and they liked the work, but in '31 Connie Mack told them they had better quit it before one of them suffered serious injury.

Favorites in Big 10 Track Given Scare

BY WILFRID SMITH

The Big Ten track meet Friday and Saturday at Dyche stadium shapes up better every day. Where a few weeks ago it seemed as if there would be only one outstanding competitor in most of the 16 events, subsequent meets have demonstrated that only a few of the athletes can count their championships won.

The ineligibility of Don Bennett of Ohio State, who won both sprints last year, has made these races a toss up. Hellmich of Illinois, who was second to Bennett in both events a year ago, might logically be expected to step into first place. But look what happened Saturday.

Willis Ward, Michigan's Negro all around star, who is the most important reason why the Wolverines believe they will make a successful defense of their title and in so doing win their eighth championship in the 16 years of competition since their return to the conference, defeated Hellmich in a dual meet at Champaign. Ward won the 100 yards in 9 8-10 seconds.

Don't Overlook Fuqua.

The week before that in the triangular meet at Lafayette among Indiana, Purdue, and Illinois, Ivan Fuqua, Indiana's champion quarter miler, defeated Hellmich in the same time that Ward set up Saturday.

Ward has done even better. In the dual meet between Michigan and Ohio State, Ward won the "century" in 9 7-10 seconds. In this race, Stapf, a newcomer from Ohio State, whom many believe is a serious contender, was second and Jack Keller, Ohio's

HERE'S SURPRISE! ONLY ONE BATTLE FOR CUBS TODAY

But That's with Giants, Who Are Plenty Tough.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Chicago Cubs, mighty uncomfortable in their seventh place environment, were back in Chicago yesterday reflecting on the many grievous items in their two week road trip just ended.

Though the Cubs to date have lost fifteen games while winning eleven, they insist they will not be discouraged until they have taken the worst of things from the eastern clubs, the first of which, the New York Giants, play baseball in this town this afternoon.

The Giants, who, with the third place Cincinnati Reds, currently are being rated the surprises of the National league, arrive here a half game back of the leading Pittsburgh Pirates, the Pirates having broken a tie with a win yesterday while the Giants traveled.

They Looked Easy at First.

When the Cubs first met the Giants in this championship season, in New York on May 2, they looked like the softest marks in the world. The Cubs, supporting Lon Warneke, won 11 to 0, and the Cub attack was marked by fifteen hits, which included two homers by Gabby Hartnett and one by Riggs Stephenson. But two days later, following an off day, things were something else again. The Cubs booted away two contests, both of which they should have won, 2 to 1 and 5 to 4.

Then they went to Boston, and after losing the first game, 2 to 1, took three straight for their only victory series of the season. Nevertheless, the Cubs haven't been the same since they kicked away that pair to the Giants—you know, kind of glassy eyed and dizzy all the time.

Old Fashioned—One Game.

The Giants and the Cubs will give an old fashioned type of entertainment this afternoon in that only one game will be played. This has been arranged as a novelty. Thursday, though, there will be a doubleheader, tomorrow's scheduled game having been set over to make same possible.

Not only will Thursday's card be a double entertainment but pennant raising ceremonies will be staged during the intermission between the two games. This ritualistic endeavor will include a parade behind a band and a fife and drum corps, followed by the Cubs bearing the 1932 pennant to the flagpole. The fiesta will afford the fans another opportunity to try to catch two ball players in step in one of those characteristic shuffles around the field to the flagpole.

In buoying themselves for the impending invasion by the eastern teams, it was suggested yesterday that the athletes look up Cub records of May, 1928. That was the May that the Cubs won the first thirteen games against eastern teams making their first western trip of the year. Consideration of this swell record, it is figured, should impress the boys with the thought that what has been done can be done again.

| Date. | Teams. | Winning Pitcher. |
| May 5—Cubs | 5; Phillies 1 | Root |
| May 6—Cubs | 5; Phillies 4 | Malone |
| May 7—Cubs | 7; Phillies 4 | Bush |
| May 8—Cubs | 4; Dodgers 3 | Jones |
| May 9—Cubs | 2; Dodgers 1 | Root |
| May 11—Cubs | 3; Dodgers 0 | Nehf |
| May 12—Cubs | 4; Giants 2 | Malone |
| May 13—Cubs | 6; Giants 5 | Blake |
| May 14—Cubs | 8; Giants 4 | Root |
| May 15—Cubs | 10; Giants 7 | Jones |
| May 17—Cubs | 2; Braves 0 | Malone |
| May 18—Cubs | 3; Braves 1 | Nehf |
| May 19—Cubs | 3; Braves 2 | Root |

On Sunday, May 20, Bob Smith, who later joined the Cubs and went to Cincinnati this year in the Babe Herman deal, stopped the winning streak in the last game of the easterners' invasion, Boston winning, 4 to 3.

Jones is an invalid, Nehf is a Phoenix insurance agent, and Blake is in the minors. But Root, Malone and Bush, who started the big streak, still are around. And today Malone will have the opportunity to start a duplication of the successes of May, 1928.

Golf School Entries Break All Records

Men, women and children of Chicago want to improve their golf games. Evidence of this is convincing in the response that greeted THE TRIBUNE'S announcement that beginning next Monday instructors at 27 courses of the Chicago Daily Fee association would give a series of six lessons free to anyone who mails in an entry blank.

Hundreds of envelopes containing entry blanks are received each day in the sports department of THE TRIBUNE. The response has been so great that all records for TRIBUNE promotions—Golden Gloves, Silver Skates, ski meets and swimming races—have been broken.

Any one desiring to learn form and fundamentals of the game and at the same time attempt to win attractive prizes is invited to enter. There are four divisions, men, women, boys and girls. Simply fill out the entry blank appearing on this page and mail to the golf editor as directed.

Judging from the list of entries thus far, the majority of the prospective pupils favor the four courses in or near Chicago—Mid-City, Big Oaks, Harlem, and Evergreen. Students who have not entered yet are requested for their own benefit as well as that of these courses to plan to take their lessons elsewhere, if possible.

Savoldi Dives Out of Ring; Lewis Victor

New York, May 15.—[Special.]—Ed Strangler Lewis registered a surprise victory over Joe Savoldi in a wrestling exhibition at Madison Square Garden tonight. A crowd of 5,000 saw Lewis receive credit for the triumph while his opponent lay helpless on the floor outside the ring.

Savoldi had Lewis close to the mat on several occasions and seemed about to pin the veteran. Savoldi, finding it impossible to subdue his adversary with arm holds, lunged at Lewis three times in a row and each time felled him. He tried a fourth lunge but Lewis evaded him and Savoldi sailed through the ropes to land heavily on the floor. He was rendered unconscious by the impact and Referee Arthur Donovan counted him out.

REVOLTA TIES CHAMBERLAIN FOR 2D AT 152

27 Win Places in National Open.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

[SCORES ON PAGE 19.]

George Dawson, star Glen Oak amateur and oldest of three brothers who have played a lot of golf since they were knee high to a tee, yesterday combined two rounds as perfect as they could be under the conditions to shoot a 149 and win the medal in the 36 hole Chicago district qualifying round for the national open golf tournament at the Medinah Country club.

A field of nearly 200 amateurs and professionals trailed the tall, curly haired Dawson over the No. 1 and No. 2 courses, both of which were extremely difficult after the rains of the last two weeks. Many an ambitious seeker after one of the 27 places allotted to the Chicago district for the open proper, which will be decided at the North Shore Golf club on June 8, 9, and 10, fell by the wayside long before they reached the turn of the second round of play.

Revolta, Chamberlain Tie.

Horton Smith of Oak Park, who will represent the Chicago district on the American Ryder cup team in June, was next in line with 154. Horton's young brother, Ren, who is his assistant at Oak Park, also made certain of a place in the big show at North Shore by shooting a 155, as did Frank Walsh of Bryn Mawr, runner-up for the 1932 professional championship, and Joe Paletti of Olympic.

Great Finish by Hampton.

Don Armstrong of Aurora was the second of the amateurs on the list, coming home with a 156. Harry Hampton of Beverly put on the greatest finish of the day, shooting a 74 in the afternoon after a disastrous morning round of 83.

Other Chicagoans who came in under the qualifying limit of 160 included Harry De May, former Chicago district caddy champion; Abe Espinosa of Cog Hill, George Smith of Onwentsia, Frank Justin of Edgewood Valley, Tom Carney of Northmoor, and Charley Nordberg of Deerpath.

Among the out of town entrants who came to Medinah to win a place in the open were Bill Gordon of Waterloo, Ia.; Ralph Guldahl of St. Louis; Kully Schlict of Madison, Wis.; Gus Mader of Milwaukee; Eddie Williams of Miami, Fla.; John Bird of Menominee, Mich.; F. G. Leonard of Milwaukee, and Frank Moore of Duquoin, Ill.

Chicago Entry Strong.

With such seasoned competitors as Dawson, Horton Smith, Frank Walsh, Harry Hampton, Abe Espinosa, and George Smith winning a berth in the open, the Chicago district is assured of a real entry, for it already has three professional stars in Tommy Armour of Medinah, Harry Cooper of Glen Oak, and Bob MacDonald, all of whom were exempt from qualifying yesterday by reason of finishing among the first 33 at Fresh Meadow last year.

The No. 1 and No. 2 courses proved too much for a number of players who seemed assured of a place when they turned up at the first tee yesterday. Among them were Jock Hutchison of Glen View; Eddie Loos of Lake Shore; Alec Ayton of Springfield, Ill.; Jack Westland of Sunset Ridge, Frank Brady of Idlewild, and Bob Stupple of [illegible].

Competition for the 27 places awarded to Chicago was such that 13 players who had tied with 160 were forced to gather at the first tee of the No. 1 course in the gloaming to play off for the last three places.

Wilford Wehrle, Milwaukee, district amateur champion; Sonny Rouse, of Chicago and Carl Gustafson of Calumet won the three places in the playoff. The trio went to the third green with Sam Bernardi, Briergate pro, who eliminated himself by taking 3 putts. Among these who dropped out before the third hole in the playoff was reached were John Lehman of Olympia fields Win Day, of Elmhurst and John Van Nortwick of Chicago Golf, Walter Murray of Michigan City, Ind., Neil Christian of Lincoln Park and Hank Bowbeer, of Riverside.

Dawson Has Best Score.

Dawson shot the best score of the day in the morning round when he traveled over the No. 2 layout, which was put into use after the Chicago district golf association and officials of Medinah decided not to use the championship No. 3 course, in 73. He three putted the third and fourth greens, but came back with a ten footer for a birdie three at the fifth. He matched par, 36, for the first nine by dropping in another long one, this time from 15 feet out, for another birdie at the ninth.

He was over par at the 11th when he took three to get down from the edge of the green and missed an eagle by inches at the 13th. He hooked his drive at the 576 yard 16th and was over par when his third shot was short. He took a five at the 18th

BETTERS FORGET GAY PRINCE, AND ARE THEY SORRY!

Aurora Crowd Watches Him Win Again.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Aurora race track betters experienced a lapse of memory yesterday and allowed Gay Prince to go to the post at odds of 4¼ to 1 in the feature event of the program. They forgot that last Thursday he had run a remarkably good race at a mile and seventy yards, leading all the way and winning by six lengths. Yesterday the distance was the same and Gay Prince duplicated his previous performance, though this time the margin was only two lengths. Sir Dean came home second and Riff Raff third.

Riff Raff was largely responsible for the fans' forgetfulness, for he also had scored an impressive victory on Thursday, running the same distance as Gay Prince in more than a second faster time. So yesterday he went to the post as the favorite at 6 to 5.

Gay Prince Steps Out.

Gay Prince went right out on top at the rise of the barrier and showed the way around the clubhouse turn with Riff Raff and More Power close behind. Down the backstretch they galloped with Gay Prince gradually increasing his margin until he was six lengths ahead at the far turn. Here Sir Dean moved up to third position, Riff Raff still running second.

For a few jumps in the stretch it seemed that Sir Dean might overtake the leader after passing Riff Raff, but Gay Prince continued gamely under punishment, though he was a tired horse when he crossed the finish line.

In the mutuels Gay Prince paid $10.96 to win, $4.62 to place and $2.48 to show. Sir Dean's price was $7.04 to place and $2.94 to show, while Riff Raff was good for only $2.20 to show.

Track conditions were perhaps the worst encountered thus far in the meeting, the running strip having taken on the consistency of slightly moist plaster of paris. As a result of this uncertain footing a spectacular accident occurred in the third race.

Jockey Himes Is Injured.

Emmaline H. had just flashed by the winning post, while Donday and Twenty-Five Sixty were fighting it out for second place. Inches short of the finish line Twenty-Five Sixty went down, throwing Jockey Earl Himes over his head. Five other horses galloped by the prostrate boy without stepping on him, but he suffered a broken arm in the fall. Twenty-Five Sixty sank to his knees in mud as he struggled to regain his footing and he was led away apparently little the worse for the spill.

When the betting began on the second race, a dash of five and one-half furlongs, Ciceronese was quoted at odds of 8 to 1 but a post time plunge brought her down to even money. She got away slowly and raced far out of it during the early stages, being in last place at the turn out of the backstretch. Then she began improving her position rapidly and went to the front at the eighth pole. Subjected to a hard drive all the rest of the way home, she won by half a length from Falsehood, with Sid Lea third.

Vanquish Is Beaten.

The players of stoutly backed favorites were disappointed in the first race when Vanquish, the 1 to 2 choice, finished second to Bob Custer, a 7 to 1 shot, but they got even in the fourth event when Customer came home four lengths in the lead at odds of 3 to 5. The shortest price the mutuels paid, $2.10, was collected by those who held show tickets on Spanflow, which finished third in the first race.

CONCISUS, away well, early rated off early pace, moved up on stretch turn when leaders went a trifle wide and came on to win, but was doing his best. RAFFLE'S CHANCE, lost ground, circled the field entering the stretch, and finished fastest of all. EPONA, briefly in lead, tired.

SHOOT worked her way up on back stretch, saved much ground on second turn when leaders went wide, and held on well, but was not good enough.

PHILADELPHIA'S HEROES RETURN AS SOX TODAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., May 15.—Al Simmons, Jimmy Dykes and Mule Haas are here as baseball enemies of the Philadelphia Athletics and Connie Mack! It doesn't seem right, but here they are with the rest of the Chicago White Sox, all keyed up to do mean things to the team for which they fought so valiantly for many years.

When the famous former A's take the field tomorrow in uniforms of gray instead of the white of the home team, it will be a strange, and to many, a sad sight. Unlike the cases of many favorites, the trio did not depart because they had started to slip in the affections of the fans. All three of the former Philadelphia stars will carry the good wishes of hundreds of Athletic fans, even though they wear strange raiment.

Friends—Until Game Time.

To Connie Mack and the current A's it will be a friendly home coming—up till game time. But when the contest starts all realize that their departed brethren offer a real menace such as the Athletics have not found in Chicago regalia these many summers.

The game tomorrow will be the first of a three game series and the second meeting of the teams this year. Bad weather prevented two games, while the A's were in Chicago recently. The one game played resulted in a Sox victory, 2 to 1.

The Sox haven't come east on a first trip with prestige such as that which they now enjoy since the spring of 1927, when Ted Lyons and Al Thomas made the Sox a temporary pennant threat because each won 12 of his first 14 games. The Sox that year faded badly after going into New York a half game out of first place, and ultimately finished fifth.

No Fadeout This Year.

On their showing to date the Comiskey team is being doped for no such fadeout this season. The Philadelphia bequest and other elements have caused the Chicago outfit to be highly respected as a first division prospect, and the frequent prediction that the A's are the team that the Sox will push out of the top flight will not detract from the zest of the series opening tomorrow.

A'S BEAT INDIANS, 1-0

Philadelphia, Pa., May 15.—(AP)—Merritt [Sugar] Cain was stingy with hits with men on the bases today and the Philadelphia Athletics defeated the Cleveland Indians, 1 to 0. The Athletics collected only four hits off Willis Hudlin, as compared to the Indians' eight off Cain, but the Macks bunched two, one a single by Cain, with a base on balls in the fifth inning to score the only run. ## Levinsky, Griffith Accept Terms for Battle on June 2

King Levinsky and Tuffy Griffith, west side heavyweights, accepted terms yesterday to meet in a 10 round bout at Comiskey park or Mills stadium June 2. Sammy Wolff, promoter, was granted the date and the match was approved by the Illinois athletic commission. Contracts probably will be signed today.

It will be the second meeting between Levinsky and Griffith. Late in the 1931 season Griffith defeated King at the stadium. He received $25,000 from Levinsky for the bout. This time Levinsky will get the major portion of the receipts. Jack Roper and Tony Cancela are to box on the card.

Seven matches will comprise the program tonight at the Johnny Coulon club, 1154 East 63d street. Lou Vine, Chicago lightweight, and Eddie Smith of Muncie, Ind., will clash in the five round windup. Other contests are:

Mique Malloy has announced that he will present a card at the Coliseum on May 26. It will be his first card since last January. . . . Pep Kerwin is arranging a program of four round bouts for his opening outdoor show at Western stadium May 30. He intends to run weekly shows at that arena.

The state athletic commission plans to go to New York on June 6 on Sammy Wolff's special train to see the Max Schmeling-Max Baer contest June 8. While in the east the commission will negotiate with the managers of Schmeling and Baer and also the men who direct Jack Sharkey and Primo Carnera relative to a heavyweight championship bout in Chicago this fall. Sharkey will defend his title against Carnera at New York on June 29. The commission hopes to persuade the winners of the two eastern matches to meet here.

The request of John Krone, wrestling promoter, that Joe Savoldi be given a five months' extension of time to meet Jim Londos here in a rematch was refused by the Illinois athletic commission yesterday. The commission last week ordered that both wrestlers agree to meet again within 30 days. Londos posted $1,000 with the commission a day later. Savoldi yesterday was granted an additonal 30 days to train for the match.

"BRADLEY LUCK?"

"BRADLEY LUCK" has come to be a byword in connection with the Kentucky Derby. That is because the master of Idle Hour farm has been four times victorious, with Behave Yourself in 1921, Bubbling Over in 1926, Burgoo King in 1932, and Brokers Tip in 1933.

Yet if one examines racing records he finds that not one of the Bradley Derby winners subsequently raced on to the heights which early season form promised. Behave Yourself was a good colt in the Derby, never as good afterward. Bubbling Over, Burgoo King and now Brokers Tip were forced into retirement through racing injuries or other mishaps. Of these four Bubbling Over undoubtedly would have proved the best had he been able to round out his racing career.

There are those who will say that hurrying a colt for the mile and one-quarter Derby route as early as May takes so much out of it that it is never the same thereafter. To that contention one only retorts, what about Reigh Count, Gallant Fox and Twenty Grand? Their Derby triumphs were only preliminary to 3 year old championships clearly established later in the season.

Greatest of the Bradley 3 year olds was Blue Larkspur, which ran unplaced in the Kentucky Derby to Clyde Van Dusen in 1929, reversed the result in the Arlington Classic, and earned a total of $272,070, which gave him sixth rank among American money winning horses of all time. Yet Blue Larkspur was not among those who created the phrase "Bradley wins Derbies."

Searching a little deeper, perhaps Trainer Dick Thompson is the answer to "Bradley luck." Bradley colts are ready for their May test, always running as well or better than expected of them in that event.

Head Play's Price.

To most people former Jockey Willie Crump appears a chump for selling Head Play just before the Kentucky Derby for $30,000. Head Play's second in the Derby was worth $6,000 and his Preakness victory $26,850, so the colt is "won out" for his new owner.

By the law of averages Crump is not a chump. There have been many $30,000 colts before the Derby which were worth, comparatively, about 30 cents after the race. There is a turf saying, "Only a wealthy sportsman can afford to own a good stake horse." Hazards of training and injury make such possession a tremendous gamble. Hindsight in horse sales is just as valuable as hindsight in boss races.

I've changed my mind again, my dear,
I wish you would come back.
I still serve Sunday tea at five,
Still cover an ace with a jack.
The furniture's still dusty,
I still sing off the key,
But I cling to your brand of cigarets
And the frocks you liked on me.
I've thrown away my lipstick,
I appreciate the moon—
I won't write verse on your papers
If you'll only come back soon.

Eleanor.

when his second shot sailed into the woods.

Makes Good Finish.

George rallied with an almost perfect second nine over the No. 1 course in the afternoon round, after having taken 39 strokes to get around the third nine. At the third, he drove into a trap and was short with his second. He shipped dead to the pin at the fifth, but three putted the next green, and drove into the water at the ninth. He followed the card on the second nine until the 17th, where he was short of the green in two shots.

His card:

76 Is Revolta's Number.

Revolta was the first of the leaders to finish the thirty-six holes, which proved disastrous to the hopes of more than one ambitious seeker for a place among the chosen twenty-seven. The Michigan youngster had a 76 on the No. 2 course in the morning and the same total over No. 1 in the afternoon. In the morning he was not off the fairway once and didn't have a three putt green on the entire round. He sank a 10 foot putt for a birdie 3 at the 485 yard fourth. He was over par on five holes—at the seventh, where he had two poor lies; at the eighth, where he missed a short putt; at the eleventh, where he misjudged his second shot; at the sixteenth, where poor lies gave him a 7; and at the eighteenth, where he took 3 to reach the green.

In the afternoon he was out in thirty-seven, going over par only at the third, where his drive found the rough. He got a birdie on the 507 yard tenth, but went over par at the thirteenth, fourteenth, and fifteenth.

Chamberlain Comes Back.

Chamberlain came back strong with an afternoon 75 after a morning round of 77. He was in trouble at the 2nd and 5th, in the morning, but evened that up with a birdie at the 7th. He followed par on the last nine until the final four holes, on all of which he went over par. In the afternoon, he collected three birdies, chipping par at the 10th, 18th, and 18th.

The cards for Revolta and Chamberlain follow:

PURPLE BATTLE ILLINI TODAY IN RETURN GAME

Big Ten Standing

| | W. | L. | Pct. | | W. | L. | Pct. |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Illinois | 5 | 1 | .833 | Purdue | 2 | 2 | .500 |
| Minnesota | 4 | 1 | .800 | Wisconsin | 2 | 3 | .400 |

| Michigan | 3 | 1 | .750 | Ohio State | 0 | 5 | .000 |
| Northw'n | 3 | 1 | .750 | Chicago | 0 | 6 | .000 |

Northwestern's baseball team will meet Illinois at Roycemore field in Evanston today in the second of the two game series between the two teams this year. The Wildcats won the first game at Urbana, 12 to 9. Today's game will start at 4 o'clock.

The outcome of today's game will go a long way towards settling the title aspirations of both nines. Each has been defeated once, and a setback today probably would eliminate either team from further championship considerations.

Elmer Johnson and Lefty Harris, Northwestern's two starting pitchers, both worked in the double header against Iowa last Saturday, and it is a tossup which will be elected today. Johnson was the winning pitcher in the first encounter with Illinois.

19 Amateurs, 99 Pros Earn Places in Open

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

With a minimum of upsets, the field which will compete for the national open golf championship at North Shore Golf club June 8, 9 and 10 was completed yesterday in the annual nation-wide sectional trials, played on 20 courses.

Thirty-three players—31 professionals and two amateurs— automatically had qualified by virtue of finishing among the first 30 and ties at the 1932 open but the remaining 118 places were filled through the usual 36 hole qualifying round.

Ninety-Nine Pros Qualify.

All told, 99 professionals and 19 amateurs survived the sectional trials and earned a chance to dethrone Gene Sarazen, American and British open champion.

The exempt list included most of the country's leading stars but such figures as Johnny Farrell and Cyril Walker, both former open champions; Horton Smith, member of the 1933 American Ryder Cup team; Al Espinosa, runner-up to Bobby Jones for the 1929 open; Maurice McCarthy, former intercollegiate titleholder, and Gus Moreland, Walker Cup player from Dallas, were forced to fight for berths in yesterday's sectional trials.

139 Is Best Score of Day.

Other leaders among the qualifiers were Al Watrous, Joe Turnesa, Johnny Golden, Roland Hancock, Willie Klein, Tony Manero, George Dawson, Johnny Revolta, Abe Espinosa, Lester Bolstad and Willie Hunter, the latter holder of the British amateur title in 1921.

The best 36 hole scores of the day—139—were turned in at Dallas by Francis Schneider, Dallas pro, and at Kansas City by Leonard Dodson, Springfield, Mo., pro. Eighteen hole rounds of 68, best of the day, were posted by Schneider and Tom Talbot who qualified in the Kansas City sector.

CHEER UP, FISHER! THERE STILL ARE BIG ONES LEFT

BY BOB BECKER.

Although the lakes of northern Illinois are fished heavily by thousands of fishermen, a crappie measuring 17 inches in length was taken from Long lake this spring. Thus, the hard working anglers who every summer visit Long, Petite, Pistakee, Fox, Grass, Marie, and other fishing holes in northern Illinois need not give up hope of connecting with a "big one" on one of their trips. In these waters there still are a few fish which have attained a ripe old age in spite of the angleworms, minnows, crawfish, night crawlers, and artifical lures which are tossed around week after week.

Jay Graham, the well known trap shooting expert of Long lake, showed the fish to us. It weighed as much as a good sized black bass. Although it had been on ice long enough to shrink a little, it still was more crappie than most of us ever see in one piece.

White Crappies Are Larger.

Of the two species of crappies in this country, the white and the black, the white crappie grows to be the larger. However, the black or calico bass is the more handsome fish. Another point to be remembered by crappie fishermen is that the calico or black mottled species is the more abundant in the lakes of northern Illinois. In fact, when a survey of these lakes was made some years ago the investigators were unable to find any rale or white crappies in a few of our northern Illinois lakes.

Of all the members of the sunfish family the crappies undoubtedly stand at the head of the list as a pan fish if taken where the water is not too muddy or warm. Both species will strike an artificial fly readily. During the last month when there were many windy, cold days, the crappies in the Fox lake chain hit artificial flies as fast as you could toss them into the water. However, not all fishermen know the sport in taking these species on a light fly rod and the average string of crappies is brought into the boat with small minnows.

Has Many Aliases.

A fish of very wide range naturally has many names. This is true of the crappies which are spoken of as strawberry bass, calico bass [both species], white crappie, black crappie and down south as a speckled perch. Generally speaking we should call the lighter species white crappie and the darker, deeper bodied one so common in northern Illinois, the black crappie.

TORRENCE DEAD; ACTOR-MUSICIAN FOR MANY YEARS

Famous First as Singer, Then in Films.

New York, May 15.—[Special.]—Ernest Torrence, screen actor, died today from complications following an operation on the gall bladder. He was stricken while on the way to the city aboard the Empress of Britain and was admitted to the hospital April 12. He was 54.

Mrs. Torrence, the former Ilse Reamer, accompanied Mr. Torrence to the hospital. Wife, son, two brothers, and other kinsmen were with the actor at the end.

Born in Edinburgh, the son of Henry and Jessie Bryce Torrance—the parents spelled the name with an "a"—Ernest Torrence came to this country twenty-two years ago, later becoming naturalized.

He had begun his professional life as a concert pianist, but in 1900 he began to sing in musical comedy and in 1901 was leading baritone of the Savoy Opera company.

Mr. Torrence claimed to have been the first talkie actor to make a talking picture, on the ground that twenty years ago Thomas A. Edison had made a sound and picture recording of "Faust," with Mr. Torrence in the title rôle.

His most recent picture, "I Cover the Waterfront," will have its première Wednesday night.

STOCKS WOBBLE; ROOSEVELT HAS TRADE GUESSING

Sales Tax Plan Casts Doubt on Inflation.

BY FRED HARVEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 15.—[Special.]—Stock traders appeared to find a large item in overnight news from Washington not much to their liking and set forth on an early stock selling campaign today from which the list only partially recovered.

At the close of a less active session there was a curious mixture of price changes, with gains somewhat outnumbering recessions. Turnover was little more than 3,170,000 shares.

The initial setback was traceable to reports that President Roosevelt was considering a sales tax to defray the costs of the administration's public works and industrial control program. The idea, it was thought, does not sound much like inflation, upon which this market boom seems to have been largely based.

Rally Follows Early Decline.

The opening selloff, however, lost its steam after an hour or so and a smart pickup got under way as traders kept one eye on the news tickers' tidings of further business betterment.

Not all groups participated in the comeback as much as they have on other rallies. Rather, the recovery centered in the so-called "wet" shares, motors, packing issues and those individual equities which bulls elect occasionally for a good play. On the other hand, industrials, railroads, utilities and other pace setting groups displayed a heavy tone to the end.

Nearly every stock having to do with the manufacture of beverages, alcoholic or otherwise, found buyers. Top advances of from 2 to 6 points were registered by Canada Dry, Commercial Alcohol, National Distillers, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, Crown Cork, Liquid Carbonic, Owens Glass, and Anchor Cap.

Packing Shares Rise.

Pronounced strength came into the stocks of meat packing companies, the industry having been given a fillip by the advance in live stock prices, particularly hogs. New tops were reached by all classes of Armour and Wilson shares, together with Cudahy.

Farm relief is helping stocks of companies whose interests are tied up with agriculture. Minneapolis Moline, for instance, gained more than 30 per cent. Wavering grain and other commodity prices, however, furnished a drawback to J. I. Case and International Harvester. Sears-Roebuck closed slightly higher against a small recession in Montgomery Ward.

Mack Truck came in for some of the buying to close more than one point higher on a sizable turnover. Among other motors, traders found Chrysler and Reo to their liking and gave them moderate appreciations on the day. General Motors posted a fractional net recession as a mark of an early buffeting.

Textile Issues Strong.

With the industry maintaining a conspicuous place in the news of business upturn, shares of textile companies were well taken. Celanese, Collins & Aikman, and Industrial Rayon closed a point or so higher.

United States Steel, with Radio, negotiated a difficult recovery from the morning setback to close unchanged, but American Can, Du Pont, General Electric, and other industrial leaders closed a shade lower than Saturday's finals.

U. S. BANKING ACT IS CLARIFIED TO AID STATE BANKS

Washington, D. C., May 15.—(AP)—The senate bill to correct the language of the emergency banking act to permit state as well as national banks to come under its benefits was passed today by the house. Another senate bill removing limitations on national banks to permit new banks to take over assets of closed institutions for the purpose of releasing funds to depositors, also was passed by the house. It now goes to the White House, having been approved by the senate.

RAILWAY GROUP LEADERS

Wheeler Asks Dual Control of Transport

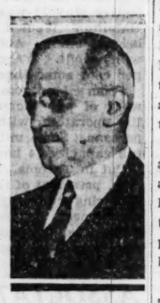
Asserting that 1933 will likely see the beginning of a new era in the regulation of transportation, Harry A. Wheeler, president of the Railway Business association, last night suggested the placing of control of all forms of transportation in the country in the hands of two boards. Mr. Wheeler made his suggestion in a talk at the annual dinner of the Western Railway club at the Hotel Sherman.



H. A. WHEELER.

Urges Considering Functions.

The Western Railway club is composed of technical railroad men. O. E. Ward, general superintendent of motive power of the Burlington, is the retiring president. J. E. Bjorkholm, assistant superintendent of motive power of the Milwaukee road, is the incoming president who was installed at the dinner.

Mr. Wheeler asserted that organization of transportation regulation should be in terms of function rather than agency; saying:

"Instead of creating one body to regulate railroads, another to regulate shipping and a third to regulate aviation or highways, recognize the difference between the regulation of rates on one hand and the regulation of transport development on the other."

The speaker said control of all forms of transportation would be too large a task for one board to handle. Under his proposal, one body would have control over rates applying to all forms of transportation. The other would control and guide the development of all interstate transportation facilities.

Suggests Separate Boards.

Mr. Wheeler urged that the interstate commerce commission retain its authority over railroad rates and in addition be given control over rates of the other forms of transportation. The second body would be known as the Transportation board. Each organization would be answerable only to congress.

"The regulation of freight and passenger rates is a highly technical matter, requiring years of specialized study," Mr. Wheeler said in discussing the functions of the interstate commerce commission. "Moreover, such regulation is purely judicial and partly legislative in character, the method rather closely resembling those of a court.

"The tasks assigned to the Board of Transportation differ decidedly in the subject matter with which they deal; and the methods would more largely involve those of leadership and advice, although legal power would be available in certain cases. The difference in subject matter, and mental attitudes required to perform these tasks would in accordance with sound organization principles justify their assignment to separate commissions."

Mr. Wheeler would give the transportation board broad powers of investigation and inquiry concerning all major transport developments. It would be charged with the task of leading and influencing development through conference and advice, and it would possess legal powers to control developments.

Legal powers, under Mr. Wheeler's proposals, would permit the transportation board to issue certificates of public convenience and necessity, to inaugurate or abandon services, to approve or disapprove consolidations of railroads, or combinations of railroads with other forms of transportation. The board also would have the power to control developments through regulation of security issues. Further, the board would be given some participation in national highway and waterway policies.

"The board would be charged with the task of viewing the transportation needs of the country as a whole, and might well become a board of economic planning for transportation," Mr. Wheeler added.

Taylor Comes to Chicago as National Bank Examiner

William Taylor yesterday assumed his new duties as chief national bank examiner for the 7th federal reserve district. He was formerly chief examiner for the Cleveland district. A. P. Lyburn, whom he succeeded here, has been transferred to the Cleveland district.

DOLLAR RISES AS GAMBLERS COVER "SHORTS"

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 15.—The dollar came back into favor with continental dealers in foreign exchange today. After a weaker opening it firmed steadily in the London market to as high as $3.95⅜ to the pound sterling. It was reported in some quarters that there were some actual transactions abroad at a full point higher than that figure.

Speculators abroad, who have reaped a handsome profit by repeated drives against the dollar recently, apparently covered their short commitments today on the belief that the inflation policy of the United States would not be as extensive as at first expected.

The continent also sold other currencies for American dollars under the influence of the trend in the London market. It was evident that some of the uncertainties regarding inflation in this country had been discontinued.

At one time during the day the local foreign exchange market showed sterling a full 2 points off from Saturday's closing price, while French francs reacted to 4.59 cents. Dutch guilders which have been subjected to a heavy strain in recent weeks, causing a drain of large proportions on the Dutch gold reserves, dropped 30 points.

WHEAT EASIER; TRADERS AWAIT U. S. FARM PLANS

See Processing Tax, Inflation Delayed.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Wheat traders await the next step in the government's program to raise the price of basic agricultural commodities. Recent official announcement that the inflation plan will not be used unless it was necessary, and a statement by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace yesterday to the effect the processing tax would not be levied until fall were regarded as eliminating two of the factors which have had a strong effect on the market of late.

The trade still leans strongly to the belief that the government's program will be decidedly constructive, but there is a strong disposition to go slow until it is made known just how the disparity between wheat and commodities that the farmers buy will be corrected. However, it was noted that a good class of buying developed on a break which carried July wheat off 1⅝ cents from Saturday to a low of 73 cents, and sharp rallies were made from that figure.

Wheat Ends Fraction Lower.

Closing trades on wheat were ⅝ to ¾ cent lower. May finished at 72⅛ cents; July, 73¾ to 73⅞ cents; September, 74⅛ to 74¾ cents, and December, 76¾ cents. Winnipeg lost ⅞ to 1 cent in Canadian funds, while Liverpool dropped 1¾ to 2 cents. Political news induced some liquidation in the English market.

While awaiting word from Washington, operators in the wheat market are paying more attention to the outlook for the new crop. The Ohio valley sent in complaints of excessive rains, causing damage especially on low lands. In Kansas the disposition was to raise estimates of the probable crop.

Corn is regarded by the trade as a weather market. While only moderate rain was shown in the main belt over the week-end, the forecast indicated showers over a wide area, which was construed as of sufficient importance to bring in fair buying on an early break.

Corn Closes About Steady.

Corn futures closed unchanged to ¼ cent higher despite the decline in wheat. May was 45⅝ cents to the last, with July 47⅛ to 47¼ cents; September, 48⅞ to 49 cents, and December, 50⅝ cents. Routine news was ignored.

Oats finished ⅛ to ¼ cents higher, with damage reports received from the Ohio valley and Illinois due to excessive rains. May was 26¼ cents, July, 26⅝ cents, and September, 26⅞ to 27 cents at the last. Rye lost ⅛ to 1¼ cents for the day, with May at 54⅜ cents; July, 55¼ cents, and September, 56⅛ cents. A car of fancy seed barley was sold by a Chicago handler to go to New England at 64 cents a bushel, the highest figure for this grain in several years. Futures were dull and ⅝ cent lower, with July closing at 37¼ cents and September at 39⅛ cents.

COMMERCE BODY BOOSTS CITY AS FINANCE CENTER

The executive committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce has appointed a standing committee of the association to be known as the Chicago financial market committee. The members are Mark Brown, chairman of the Harris Trust and Saving bank; Peter B. Carey, president of the Board of Trade; Paul H. Davis, president of the Chicago Stock Exchange; M. B. Kennedy, attorney; Allan S. Noyes, president of the Chicago Curb Exchange association, and E. C. Wampler of Lawrence Stern & Co.

The new committee will have as its principal activity the promotion of Chicago as a great financial center. The committee will also consider and make recommendations to the executive committee of the association regarding matters affecting Chicago financial interests, its securities and commodity markets.

DU PONT VOTES USUAL DIVIDEND OF FIFTY CENTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 15.—Directors of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., declared today the regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share on the common stock, payable June 15 to holders of record May 25.

Action of the stock recently and predictions that the company's business had shown improvement in the current quarter pointed to the usual declaration at this time. Payment of the regular dividend of 25 cents by General Motors, in which Du Pont has a substantial stock interest, also foreshadowed favorable action by Du Pont.

Gold Clause in Bonds Sets Up Problem

BY HOWARD WOOD.

The fellow who owes a debt payable in gold and likewise the fellow to whom there is owed a debt payment in gold are both wondering how abandonment of the gold standard and inflation will affect them.

It has been estimated that there are outstanding roughly 100 billion dollars of bonds and mortgages which must be paid at maturity in "gold of standard weight and fineness" if the creditors so desire.

* *

The inclusion of the so-called "gold clause" in this vast number of contracts was the direct outgrowth of the "greenback" era following the civil war. People who lent money wanted to make certain that the debt when due would be paid in the same kind of dollars as those originally lent.

All United States government obligations—more than 20 billions—and scores of billions of municipal, railroad, utility and real estate bonds and mortgages contain the gold clause.

As long as the federal government maintains the ban on gold holdings in excess of $100 the "gold clause" could not well be enforced even if it were held to be legally binding.

If, however, the ban is to be removed at some future date, and especially if the gold content of the dollar is later on to be officially reduced the enforceability of the gold clause might be a tremendously important matter.

The attitude of the United States treasury, however, is not encouraging to those creditors who hope to collect gold in payment of debts owed them. The treasury the other day refused to redeem either interest or principal of United States government bonds in gold.

Theoretically this was "repudiation" of the gold clause, but practically it was merely being consistent. The actual repudiation occurred earlier and in two stages: First, when the treasury ceased paying out gold in exchange for paper money; and, second, when it placed the embargo on the export of gold from the United States.

Financial experts in Great Britain and other nations have been loud in their denunciation of the United States for refusal to pay gold to holders of United States government bonds abroad. They have been striving to build it into an international incident.

The chief purpose, of course, is to give the United States a black eye and make us look like a nation of welshers. Then we'll all be just pals in a world full of welshers. If people can be convinced that the United States doesn't honor its financial obligations then it won't look so bad if European nations don't live up to their own financial contracts in paying us war debts.

The United States treasury hasn't defended its action, but it has an excellent defense. This nation's debt is a domestic debt. It is represented by bonds and notes and treasury bills and certificates sold in the American market. What little of these securities are held by foreigners they came over here and bought. And all of it is payable in dollars, not pounds, francs, lire, or any other foreign currency.

* *

Nations borrow money in one of two ways, either from their own people or from people in another nation. "Internal" loans are usually payable in the currency of the borrower. "External" loans are normally payable in the currency of the lender. United States government bonds are "internal" loans.

The repudiation, therefore, in America's case occurred when the United States left the gold standard and affected American citizens primarily. Foreigners were affected only incidentally. We had done no foreign borrowing.

Great Britain herself found it easy to repudiate her gold basis contracts. In fact, she has already built up a watertight legal alibi against honoring the gold clause.

* *

In a decision that for circumlocution yields nothing to Alice in Wonderland the English high court of justice has put the stamp of approval on the payment of gold clause contracts in depreciated currency. This decision has been upheld by the Appellate court.

The court held in the case of Societe Intercommunale Belge d'Electricite, decided Oct. 27, 1932, that:

"In my judgment, to attempt to impose upon the debtor an obligation to pay in a particular form and not anything which is legal tender is an attempt to do something which cannot be enforced if the contract is a mere contract for the payment of money."

Chicken and Pot Version of the Business Cycle

Closed Chicago Banks' Chances of Opening Rise

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Prospects for the reopening of several more of the 8 state banks in Chicago which have not been licensed since the end of the banking holiday are taking on a brighter hue as a result of the general increase in confidence.

Banks which were regarded as hopeless by the state banking authorities a few weeks ago are now described as having a "fair" chance of reopening. Not all of the 8 banks still closed are expected to resume business, but officials of several are aggressively pushing reorganization programs.

Need New Capital.

In nearly all cases new capital is required. As a result of spreading confidence stockholders and others are showing a greater willingness to put up money. A few weeks ago the problem of selling new stock in banks was insurmountable. Depositors, too, are assenting more readily to partial waiver of their claims on the theory that they will realize as much or more in this manner than through receivership.

The South Chicago Savings is understood to have raised a substantial amount of new money and is now seeking deposit waivers to fill the $750,000 quota of new capital set by the state auditor. Officials declare that they are within "striking distance" of their goal.

The Halsted Street Savings has obtained the approval of the national bank to take over the old business. New capital and approval of depositors to plan are being sought.

Plans for reopening are also being made by suburban banks closed since the moratorium. The First Lake County National is awaiting approval from Washington on a plan calling for new capital and segregation of slow deposits.

The Suburban Trust and Savings bank, Oak Park, will open tomorrow, with $150,000 of new money. Approximately 50 per cent of the $570,000 of depositors will be free.

Member Banks Open.

Of the 768 federal reserve member banks in this district 750 have either opened or have been placed under conservators according to the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago. This leaves 18 banks on which no action has been taken. The 281 banks in charge of conservators are accepting "cash box" deposits and working out reorganization plans.

Of a total of 704 state banks in Illinois 568 have been reopened for unrestricted business. The banks opened represent about 93 per cent of the total state bank deposits.

Two downstate banks were granted permission to resume business today on an unrestricted basis, State Auditor Barrett announced last night. The banks are the Buffalo Prairie State bank of Buffalo Prairie and the Farmers' State bank of Cullom.

SEEK RAILROAD TAXES TO HELP ITS COMPETITOR

A curious situation wherein a railroad was asked to retain a piece of property so that it could be taxed to support a service that was competing with it recently was reported from the east. The Norfolk & Western was seeking authority from the interstate commerce commission to abandon 54 miles of branch line track in Wayne and Mingo counties, West Virginia. Along 25 miles of the track the two counties had built a concrete highway, which trucks were using.

In seeking to prevent the track abandonment, the county authorities were reported as saying that such action would mean the loss of taxes which would result in the counties having to default on the road bonds. An examiner for the interstate commerce commission recommended the abandonment.

* *

The United States Supreme court yesterday denied a petition for injunction sought by several New York dock companies to restrain the Pennsylvania railroad from operating trucks from its New Jersey waterfront rail heads to Brooklyn, Manhattan and Queens. No decision was handed down but the denial of the petition was interpreted as giving the railroads a right to operate truck services in conjunction with their rail operations.

During the bank moratorium in March ticket agents on the Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee and the Chicago, Aurora, and Elgin railroads gave out several thousand railroad tickets on credit. A check up yesterday disclosed that this experiment in generosity had been 100 per cent successful. No ticket agent had lost a dime through the extension of these courtesies.

Reports from Boston say that recent sharp advances in the wool trade there have begun to turn some attention to the possibility of importing wool to take care of the growing demand in this country. Manufacturers continue to buy aggressively, despite the sharp rise.

According to J. A. Roth, farmer and live stock producer of Fulton county, Illinois, who has been shipping to the Chicago market since 1885, 20 years after the Chicago stockyards opened the market on its present location, another $1.00 advance in live stock and 50 cents for corn in the country will not only put agriculture on a paying basis, but will take care of most of the farmers' debts incurred in the last two years.

Farmers in many parts of the country during the last two years of low prices have formed meat rings, each farmer taking his turn to slaughter a hog or a beef and distribute it to neighbors, trading pound for pound. This has brought ruin to many of the small town butchers but has saved the farmers a good many dollars.

WORK AND PAY GO UP AS TRADE BOOM WIDENS

Day's News Tells of Steady Gains.

News of a cheerful nature continues to come from various parts of the country. Some dispatches tell of increased business in various lines, others tell of factories going back on a full-time basis and still others report wage increases.

WALTER E. OLSON.

In Akron, O., the General Tire and Rubber company is operating at full time capacity for the first time in more than three years. In celebration of the event President William O'Neill ordered prolonged blowing of the factory whistles and the management passed around cigars, cigarets and candy to the employés. Signs reading "Happy Days are Here Again" are placed around the factory.

The company, which is now operating on four six-hour shifts daily, for the last several weeks has been rehiring old employés who were laid off during the slack period.

The R. J. Reynolds Tobacco company started a night shift in its cigaret plant at Winston-Salem, N. C., adding 600 workers to its pay roll. Officials said an increased demand necessitated an expansion of operations. A 5½ day schedule of day work has been followed for some time.

Californians Coming to Fair.

W. J. Black, passenger traffic manager of the Santa Fé railroad, announced yesterday that around 5,000 Californians will start arriving in Chicago Thursday morning. The Californians are coming at the rate of 1,000 a day, Mr. Black said, traveling in two special trains and in extra cars of the regular trains. The visitors are taking advantage of special rates to visit the Century of Progress and eastern relatives and friends.

C. H. Frost of the Frost Printing company says that the prices of printers' supplies are advancing, and tells of an increase of 1½ cents a pound in the price of cheap bond paper in a little over a week.

J. C. Allen, sales manager of the Butler Paper corporation, asserts that the price of sulphite papers has gone up 3 cents a pound. "We are more optimistic in the paper industry," Mr. Allen said yesterday. "For the first time in a long period we note some activity. While orders are still small, these small orders grow into large ones."

Olson Rug Company Expands.

A decided improvement is reported by Walter E. Olson, president of the Olson Rug company, who states that not only has there been an increase in the number of units sold, but the dollar volume is ahead of last year. Mr. Olson says that the improvement has been so marked during the last sixty days that the Wilton rug department of the factory, which recently restored its workers to a five day week schedule, is putting on an additional night shift, making a total of 16 working hours per day for the department.

"I am happy to say our business is ahead of last year by a healthy margin," Mr. Olson said. "This is particularly significant because prices are still 20 per cent lower than a year ago. I attribute this gain largely to the renewed confidence of the American people, thanks to the inspiring leadership of President Roosevelt and the untiring efforts of our newspapers, which have so ably assisted in the solution of our problems.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 15.—German bonds skated downward today, on the news released by Dr. Schacht to the effect that Germany's creditors in this country will be summoned to Berlin to discuss revision of debt service. Losses ranged from 1 to 5 points. German 5½s and 7s slumped heavily into new low ground for 1933, accompanied by weakness in other German corporation and municipal issues.

Simultaneous weakness developed in other European bonds, including issues of Italy, Poland, and Britain. Growing political tension in Europe has brought a stream of liquidation into foreign bonds generally.

The effect of Dr. Schacht's statement, given out here following his conferences with President Roosevelt in Washington, upon the market was greater than when Germany last week abrogated the gold clause on the 5½ per cent and 7 per cent government loans.

Readjustment Is Expected.

It is now regarded as almost inevitable that some adjustment of service on German dollar loans either in the nature of a moratorium or payment in blocked accounts in Germany, will be made. Germany's trade balance, at low ebb during the first several months this year, is dwindling further as a result of trade reprisals growing out of the Hitler policy of nationalism.

The advance in other bond groups came to a halt today as nervousness over the European situation combined with uncertainty over administration policies to check activity for the rise. Trading volume fell off sharply in both domestic corporation and government issues.

U. S. Government Bonds Weak.

United States government bonds sagged a trifle as dealers and bondholders awaited signs of federal reserve buying of government bonds under the power granted by the farm bill inflation amendment. No buying was apparent today.

Opinion throughout the street was that purchases of governments under the new bill will await the senate's confirmation of President Roosevelt's nomination of Mr. Black as head of the federal reserve board.

Profit taking occurred in all groups of domestic bonds and prices were from 1 to 2 points lower in most active issues.

American National Insurance.

Would you please advise me concerning American National Insurance? —K. S. S.

American National Insurance company, Galveston, Tex., has been writing life insurance since 1905. It is a stock company. The company writes a substantial amount of industrial insurance.

Insurance in force has shown a downward trend since 1929, partly due, no doubt, to general decrease in industrial activity (which cuts down industrial insurance) and partly to conditions affecting insurance companies generally. Insurance in force at the close of 1932 totaled $482,755,000, against $542,054,000 the year before and $572,968,000 on Dec. 31, 1930.

Against policy reserves (contractual liability to policy holders) of $37,794,000, reserve for investment losses of $2,100,000, and other liabilities of $2,090,000 admitted assets were $49,443,000.

Assets included $4,456,000 of real estate, $773,000 real estate sales contracts, $19,010,000 mortgages, $11,790,000 bonds (amortized values), $753,000 stocks (June 30, 1931, values), $2,522,000 cash, $6,233,000 policy loans, and $4,527,000 collateral loans.

In 1932 74.3 per cent of expected deaths (as computed by mortality tables) occurred, against 75.7 per cent the year before and 87.1 per cent in 1930.

Q. R. S.-De Vry.

I have 500 shares of Q. R. S.-De Vry common and wish to dispose of them. Will you please tell me how to go about it?—Mrs. W. D.

"ORS went into bankruptcy last summer and was sold at auction last August. The returns were inadequate to pay the debts, and, of course, nothing was left for the stockholders."

Bonds Deposited.

I do not seem to be able to get correct information as to the amount of bonds that have been turned in to the protective committee. I should like to know this before I turn in my bonds. They are Texas Electric railway first and refunding 5s, due 1947. —M. L.

On May 6, 1933, there were deposited with the protective committee $3,394,000 of these bonds. This was 62.3 per cent of the $5,444,000 bonds that were outstanding in the hands of the public.

LIFE INSURANCE CHIEFS WARY OF FARM LAW BONDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 16.—While desiring to cooperate to assure successful administration of the emergency farm mortgage act, executives representing twenty-nine of the leading life insurance companies holding farm mortgages told Henry Morgenthau Jr. today that they were opposed to any general writing down of mortgages or their wholesale exchange for federal land bank bonds under the terms of the emergency legislation.

For refinancing the outstanding farm mortgages the land banks under the direction of the new farm credit administration are authorized to issue up to two billion dollars of bonds which may be sold or exchanged for mortgages held by the insurance companies and others. Loans on or exchanges of bonds for these securities may not exceed 50 per cent of the "appraised normal value" of land mortgaged plus 20 per cent of the insured improvement, however, and Mr. Morgenthau last week said that "in order to effect an exchange of first mortgages for bonds it is anticipated that

SUPREME COURT PUTS CHECK ON CHAIN RECEIVERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 15.—The number of receivers chosen throughout the country for the same bankrupt concern will be greatly reduced under an order issued by the Supreme court today on application of a number of prominent New York lawyers.

Under the custom that has obtained, when chain stores or other linked establishments have gone into receivership, ancillary receivers and incident attorneys cold be named in any District court where the branches of the bankrupt concern were situated. This practice has led to great expense, and as a consequence the New York lawyers petitioned the Supreme court to make a change in the arrangements.

Lawyers Ask Curb.

The lawyers asked the Supreme court for an order under which ancillary receivers throughout the country may be appointed only with the approval of the court where the bankruptcy proceedings are instituted and with consent of the receiver "appointed by that court.

The petition was signed by well known law firms which alleged that no necessity existed for appointment of ancillary receivers in chain stores they had handled. They noted that bankruptcy of chain stores, due to the depression, has afforded opportunities for practices in ancillary proceedings "quite contrary to the spirit and purpose of the bankruptcy act."

Unnecessary Receivers.

They said:

"By reason of the far flung activities of these chains, a certain type of collection agencies and others purporting to act for creditors have found an opportunity to profit through the unnecessary appointment of ancillary receivers and these practices have become prevalent throughout the United States."

As an example of the cases they had handled where no necessity exists for ancillary receivers, the lawyers said that ancillary receivers were named as follows:

Miller's, Inc., 22.
Retail Chemists Corporation, 5.
Snyder's Hat Stores, Inc., 13.
United Cigar Stores Company of America, 8.
McLellan Stores company, 17.
Louis K. Liggett company, 4.

In each of these cases, it was said, the primary receiver was in position to control all the affairs of the bankrupt estate through the main office of the bankrupt, pending election of a trustee.

HOGS GET UP TO $5.05, NEW PEAK, THEN FALL BACK

Finish Weak to 10 Cents Lower; Cattle Steady.

New highs were established in several divisions of the live stock market yesterday, but the going proved too fast in some species and prices fell away in places toward the close.

Top hogs reached $5.05 for full carload lots, while a short load averaging 278 pounds sold at $5.10. These prices were highest since middle of August and only 10 cents under the highest point in nine months.

Top steers advanced to $7.25.

The new crop of lambs raised the peak for ovine stock to $8, while the old crop of wooled lambs sold at $7. The latter price equaled the highest since last July and was within 50 cents of the high point of that month.

Hogs Finish Lower.

Uncertainty developed in hogs after speculators had given the trade a pretentious little push, assuming that local packers would be in the market with big buying orders again. The expected orders did not materialize, however, and trading soon quieted down and commenced to drag toward the finish on a weak to 10 cents lower basis.

Notwithstanding the heavier receipts of cattle, the market moved into a stronger position and many instances of 25 cents advance over last Thursday's selling were found. Medium and heavy steers that were a drug on the market several weeks ago are wanted at the most advance. These kinds are selling fully $1.50 to $2 above the low point of the winter and are closer to the top quotations of light weights than they have been in months.

Heavy Beeves at $5.75.

Weighty beeves at $5.75 yesterday were similar to the kinds selling at $3.75 at the low point.

Two carloads of prime, 1,047 to 1,082 pound steers sold to Swift at $7.25, the top. A string of 94 averaging 1,072 pounds brought $7, while the bulk cashed at $5 to $6.25. Top yearling heifers advanced to $5.90.

New gains in wool prices and the optimistic tone in reports from that market, coupled with light sheep receipts, sent lambs to new high levels for the year. Lambs without fleece closed at $6.75 to packers, a new high for this class since April, last year.

Numerous loads of wooled lambs sold to packers and city butchers at $7.00, the 1933 high mark, while new crop springers from Colorado reached $8.00. California spring lambs sold at $7.50.

LARD TRADE TWO SIDED; CLOSE SLIGHTLY LOWER

Lard stocks in Chicago are 35,564,391 pounds, an increase of 10,208,634 pounds since May 1. A year ago stocks were 58,120,081 pounds, 22,555,670 pounds more than at present. Stocks of dry salted clear bellies are 10,586,167 pounds May 1, compared with 9,569,171 pounds at the end of April, and 17,561,270 pounds May 14 last year.

Trade was active in lard futures, with the market more two sided, meeing sales for profits and hedging on the bulges and good buying support on breaks. Lard futures declined 15 to 17½ cents early, with a rally later, making net declines for the day 2½ cents. Cash prices were lower, regular being $6.77½, loose $6.07½, and leaf $6.00. Bellies were unchanged to 2½ cents lower, the latter on July, with cash lots unchanged at $7.25. Fresh pork loins were higher at 7½ to 10 cents, and trade in dry salted meats was about an average.

USED AUTOMOBILES FOR SALE.

IT STANDS TO REASON

since the Studebaker Sales Co. has been offering the outstanding auto values in Chicago for the last 25 years—that today, also, the quickest and safest way to get a real car bargain is to go to

STUDEBAKER

FORD ROADSTER, 1932. Here is a nifty sport model with rumble seat and many nice extras. Has the finest performance, and it's a rare Ford bargain at $325.

STUDEBAKER COUPE, 1931 Dictator 8, with roomy rumble seat. We claim that the finish, upholstery, tires, and motor are like new, and you'll agree with us if you see and drive this car. For quick sale, $395.

PONTIAC COUPE, 1930, with wire wheels, side mounts etc. It was driven very little and we gave it a thorough "going over" in our own shop. If you are figuring on spending $250 and up for a good coupe you'll find this Pontiac is the very thing for only $325.

CHEVROLET SEDAN, 1931, with side mounts and many convenient extras. Finished a striking light green. Actually driven only a very short time. You'll make a substantial saving at our price of $295.

GRAHAM SEDAN, 1931. It's the last word for beautiful appearance and sparkling performance. Has many costly extras. For today, $245.

BUICK SEDAN, 1929 MASTER 6 that we recommend as the outstanding Buick purchase in Chicago. If performs as though it had a new motor and the appearance is flawless. Very fully equipped. $295. Specially priced at $295.

CHRYSLER COUPE, 1929 model 75 with spacious rumble seat and many extras. Finished a smart cobalt blue. The lines are very trim and it has plenty of speed and power. It's a winner at $295.

HUPMOBILE SEDAN, 1931 Century 8 with wire wheels, side mounts, etc. From bumper to bumper this Hupp spells class with a capital C. Has magnificent performance. It looks and runs like a $1,000 car, but our price is only $575.

LINCOLN PHAETON, 1928. This is one of the finest open car buys offered in town. It was owned by a wealthy family who gave it the best of care. Has side mounts, ton-neau windshield, driving light, trunk rack heater, etc. Has been repainted Lincoln Grey. Finished a smart robin's egg blue. Actually worth considerably more than our special price of $395.

NASH 8 SEDAN, 1932 de luxe model with wire wheels, side mounts, etc. When we say this N sh looks and runs like new we really mean it. The upholstery looks and feels unusual. Motor is 100 per cent. Only $785.

STUDEBAKER BROUGHAM, 1931 Commander 8 five pass. 4 dr. de luxe model that is a real beauty. It's finished in attractive brown. Has especially wide doors and is roomy. Equipped with wire wheels, side mounts, trunk, etc. Has free wheeling and safety glass throughout. We sincerely say that this is one of Chicago's most outstanding auto values at $595.
